Bennett lashes out at media

'Tricks' affair court matter

By AL FORREST

VANCOUVER — Premier Bill Bennett drew a standing ovation from about 1,000 Socreds today with a sharp jibe at the media and its preoccupation with the "dirty tricks" affair.

Bennett told the party's annual convention the proper place to resolve the dirty tricks issue is not in the media but in the courts.

"In a democracy, trials are not carried out and conducted and the accused condemned in the media. God help democracy if that becomes the final court of the land."

The remark brought a roar of applause from the Socred delegates.

Bennett said a police investigation is underway and no one should be judged unless charges are laid.

Anyone who feels he has been accused unfairly also has recourse to the courts.

The premier divided his keynote speech almost evenly between campaign tactics and energy development.

On the question of energy, he sided in general terms with Alberta against Ontario.

On campaign tactics, he said: "I have not, nor will I ever, advocate improper tactics in order to achieve election."

He said all party members must measure up to high standards of honesty and fair play.

At the same time, he said, the party should not seek vengeance but should judge all of its members with understanding and compassion.

The premier said he was surprised to return from his recent Pacific Rim tour to find campaign tactics to be occupying the attention of the media.

He said he immediately accepted responsibility for whatever unfair tactics might have been used during the provincial election campaign.

The premier said development of energy resources would be the central theme of the next four years of his government.

He said ferry services will be expanded, highways extended and rail lines will be conducted to resources where economically feasible.

He said eastern Canada will learn that the real action is the West.

Meanwhile, one of the party's researcher who is a key figure in the dirty tricks scandal has been given a slap on the wrist and asked to report to work Monday morning.

Ellen MacKay will be given a reprimand for her part in the affair, told "not to do it again" but won't be

$18M story error

British Columbians would not have to pay anywhere near $18 million a day for Alberta oil if Canadian oil prices matched world prices.

Energy ministry economist Ted France said a news story by the United Press Canada news service, carried as the main story on the front page of Wednesday's Victoria Times, contained a "gross error".

France said the mistake did not originate from Energy Minister James Hewitt or any officials of the ministry but from a calculation error by a UPC legislative reporter.

The article, which appeared in the Times and other publications and was widely broadcast, quoted Hewitt as saying that B.C. would have to pay $18 million a day for imported oil if the price was set at world levels.

In actual fact, said France, the total payments would amount to only about $3.0 million a day.

He said B.C. consumes about 160,000 barrels of oil a day with 120,000 barrels being imported from Alberta.

The current price per barrel is $13.75 plus 50 cents for gathering and quality charges. The total cost per day in B.C. works out to about $1.7 million.

The world price is between $24 to $25 a barrel.

The Times regrets its failure to doublecheck the UPC story and apologizes to its readers and to Energy Minister Hewitt for publishing incorrect information.

Constables stop human torch

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Two city police officers talked for five tense minutes today before making a desperate move which prevented a 21-year-old gas-soaked man from setting himself on fire early this morning in a coffee shop.

Constables Bob Stiff, 29, and Brian Tugwell, 30, managed to grab a lighter away from the man as he sat poised to flick it into flame.

"It was perhaps a stupid thing to do," Tugwell said. "But nothing else could have been done.

"I don't know whether the guy realized how close he came to finishing us all off. If he had lit that lighter everybody in the place would have gone up with him."

Patrol Inspector Les Mottershead said the man, whose name has not been released, went into the Gorge Mohawk self-service station, 510 Gorge East about 1.40 a.m., bought 83 cents worth of gasoline, then poured it over himself.

He said the gas soaked the man's head and saturated his down-filled green army parka.

After paying for the gas, the man calmly walked to Coffee Mac's in the next block and took a seat in a booth at the rear of the restaurant.

Alerted by a service station employee, the two officers arrived minutes later to find the man sitting in the booth with a butane lighter in his right hand.

His thumb was on the flint wheel and he kept murmuring to himself: "I'm going to do it . . . I'm going to do it."

As about two dozen patrons in the restaurant looked on with horror, Stiff and Tugwell approached the man, began talking to him and asked him for the lighter.

The man refused and Stiff slipped into the booth beside him. Tugwell took a position on the other side of the table.

Tugwell said in an interview today he and Stiff continued talking for about five minutes, and when they realized they were getting nowhere, Stiff quietly slipped his arm around the man's back.

Stiff said he grabbed the man's hand and managed to push his thumb off the flint wheel.

Tugwell simultaneously lunged across the table.

"It was a close call," said Tugwell. "At one point Bob lost his grip but he quickly recovered."

Together they managed to get the lighter out of the man's hand.

The man has been admitted to Eric Martin Institute.

Clark rejects Quebec plan

OTTAWA (CP) - Prime Minister Clark said today the Parti Quebecois government's blueprint for independence is totally unacceptable, adding that he has "confidence in the good sense of Quebecers" that they will support federalism in the referendum next spring.

"As the leader of the national government, I naturally accept the responsibility to lead the development of a renewed federalism," Clark told reporters a day after the Quebec government published a white paper on sovereignty-association.

The document contains proposals which include:

— All powers now with the federal government would be transferred to Quebec;

— Quebec's national assembly would have exclusive power to make all laws and levy all taxes on Quebec territory like any independent state;

— Quebec would remain a member of NATO and NORAD and abide by St. Lawrence Seaway Treaty;

— All Canadians living in Quebec would have right to Quebec citizenship with a separate Quebec passport;

— Quebec would offer to negotiate with the rest of Canada maintenance of "the present Canadian economic entity;"

— Movement of people, goods and capital would remain and the Canadian dollar would be the common currency;

— An independent Quebec and the rest of Canada would set up four institutions to run the proposed economic community between them;

— The community would include a council, a commission of experts, a court of justice and a central monetary authority.

— The referendum on sovereignty-association will take place next May or June and the question will require a simple "yes" or "no" reply;

— There would be no unilateral declaration of independence immediately after the referendum;

—The Quebec government would guarantee old age pensions, family allowances, veterans' pensions and direct subsidies to farmers during a transition period;

— Job security is guaranteed for all federal civil servants residing in Quebec who join the Quebec civil service after independence.

Clark, who has been criticized by opposition party leaders for refusing to become aggressively involved in the campaign, said he does not see himself "as an emotional rallying point" in the referendum debate.

However, Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau could be an emotional rallying point because he is a Quebecer and a former prime minister who has improved the lot of French-Canadians, Clark suggested.

Trudeau responded to the white paper Thursday by calling it an attempt to mislead Quebecers into supporting separation from Canada.

PQ paper causes dollar dip

LONDON (Reuter) — The Canadian dollar tumbled on European foreign exchange markets today after news of Quebec independence moves and a fall in Canada's foreign currency reserves but later staged a partial recovery.

It fell as low as 84.10 U.S. cents compared with Thursday's London closing price of 84.47 U.S. cents.

It later recovered to around 84.29 U.S. cents as some commercial buying and apparent support by the Bank of Canada came into the market, dealers said.

At noon in Montreal, the dollar stood at 84.25 U.S. cents.

The Canadian finance department announced that Canada's foreign currency reserves fell $591.3 million in October to $3.92 billion.

Figures released today show official holdings of international currency re-

Military to get boost in pay

OTTAWA (CP) — Armed forces servicemen will get a two-stage pay raise covering the next 18 months, averaging 6.4 per cent retroactive to Oct. 1 and 5.4 per cent next April 1.

However, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said in a statement today that pay increases for generals and medical officers will be introduced when pay raises for comparable public service groups are approved.

The minister's announcement deals with one of two armed forces pay problems that have spread discontent among servicemen across the country recently.

Servicemen have complained about the delay in approving annual pay increases. And they have protested rent increases for married quarters on armed forces bases.

Under the new pay plan, a private will earn $608 a month after the April increase, up from $536 before the October pay boost.

A sergeant radar operator will receive $1,590 a month, a $180 monthly increase. A major pilot will get $2,775 monthly, a $225 raise.

Gangster killed in police ambush

PARIS (CP) — Jacques Mesrine, wanted in Canada for murder and armed robbery and the man regarded as France's Public Enemy No. 1, died today in a hail of police bullets, with a girlfriend, two grenades and a French poodle at his side.

Mesrine, 42, after two bloody decades of murder, bank robbery, kidnapping, prison escapes and cunning humiliations of Canadian and French authorities, was gunned down in his grey BMW automobile in a meticulously prepared ambush staged by 80 police officers, including six sharpshooters.

Sylvia Jeanjacquot, 29, the suave, hard-bitten killer's latest girl-friend, was shot in the head and seriously wounded in the hail of 21 police bullets that hit the car.

Police sources said 18 bullets riddled Mesrine who did not have time to return police fire or use his grenades — although the pin on one grenade was partially pulled. The poodle also was killed.

One hour after Mesrine's car was cut off by six police vehicles, including a canvas-covered truck containing the marksmen, his body was still slumped over the steering wheel and throngs who had raced to the working-class Porte de Clignancourt neighborhood of northern Paris pressed up to the bullet-shattered windshield for a final look.

An accomplice of Mesrine was arrested three hours later in the police sweep co-ordinated by Police Chief Maurice Bouvier and woman detective Mirielle Balesrazzi, who had been assigned to lead the Mesrine manhunt.

The six sharpshooters hiding in the canvas-covered truck ended in a matter of seconds long months of fruitless searching for the notorious Mesrine — son of a bourgeois family, a graduate in architecture and a soldier decorated for his heroic exploits in the Algerian war.

Mesrine's long career in crime and his love for thumbing his nose at police made him a folk hero in France.

Between March, 1962, and 1967, he was sentenced in absentia to 4½ years in prison on three different charges.

Fleeing to Canada in 1969, he abducted industrialist Georges Delaurier and extracted a ransom of $200,000.

After a number of holdups in the United States, he was later accused of the murder of a Quebec hotel owner and two Quebec game wardens.

Black guerrillas attack S.African police station

Times new services

Black guerrillas blasted a police station with hand grenades and automatic weapons fire in an early-morning attack today in Soweto, a sprawling South African black ghetto. Two policemen died of bullet wounds. Another policeman and a civilian bystander also were wounded.

All the shooting victims were black.

Police units poured into the community of more than one million people, located 16 kilometres southwest of Johannesburg, to mount roadblocks and search house-to-house for the attackers.

The guerrillas, who police credited with a well-planned and well-executed attack, vanished into the night after the explosions and gunfire at the police station. Police said they are uncertain how many were involved in the attack, the second of its kind in Soweto this year.

About 12:30 a.m., the police station was rocked by an explosion, the police said. It wasn't immediately known how many policemen were inside at the time, but two of them rushed outside to investigate and were cut down by bursts of gunfire from Soviet-made rifles.

A third policeman was hit in the leg by bullets. The condition of the civilian was not known.

Immediately after the first explosion and the initial gunfire, the police said, the attackers attempted to storm the station by hurling hand grenades and firing their weapons. However, the attackers disappeared during the ensuing gun battle.

The police station was damaged and several cars parked outside were punctured by bullets, authorities said.

On May 3, guerrillas attacked another police station, killing one policeman and wounding five other persons. Police arrested one person in connection with that incident, but he later escaped.

Police Minister Jimmy Kruger warned after the first attack that more assaults could be expected. At the time, police said security measures at Soweto police stations had been tightened.

In June, 1976, Soweto was hit by bloody black rioting, which resulted in hundreds of deaths. The upheaval began as a student protest over education policies, but later vented general black resentment of the white-minority government.

Also, in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, an explosion ripped through a wool shop in the eastern border city of Umtali today injuring 12 persons, two of them severely, a military spokesman said.

Eleven of the victims were women.

The blast blew out the front of the shop in Main Street. Witnesses believed it was caused by a bomb.

One said: "The front of the shop went out and there was blood and glass all over the place."

It was the second blast in the town centre in a month.

On Oct. 15, a bomb blew the roof off a clothes shop in the same street. There were no casualties as the owner spotted it and cleared his shop.

Umtali, on the border with Mozambique, is the headquarters of the Zimbabwe Rhodesian security forces eastern command.

The area is heavily infiltrated by guerrillas of the Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army of Robert Mugabe, co-leader of the Patriotic Front.

Pioneer killed

A member of a pioneer Mayne Island family died Wednesday night when struck by a car driven by his nephew.

Norman William Georgeson, 58, was killed almost instantly when hit by a car driven by Mark Aitken, RCMP said.

The two are members of a family that settled on Mayne Island before the turn of the century.

Cpl. Harry Danyluk said Georgeson was walking on Fernhill Road towards the firehall to watch the annual Halloween fireworks display.

Aitken and five other members of the family were travelling by car to the firehall when the accident occurred at 7:45 p.m.

Phone fraud tapped

NEW YORK (AP) — A college switchboard operator has been accused of defrauding a telephone company of more than $1 million during the last four years by selling cut-rate overseas calls which avoided the billing process.

Robert Dunlap, 36, of Manhattan, is alleged to have netted $100,000 from the scheme which employed several persons to sell the cut-rate calls to businessmen.

He has been charged with theft of services and possession of burglar tools (the blue box).

New York Telephone Co. said the average cost of an out-of-country call is $3 a minute or $45 for 15 minutes. Dunlap is alleged to have offered the calls for as little as $5 for 15 minutes.

Dunlap, a 10-year employee at New York University, earned $15,000 a year as a night-shift switchboard operator but drove a $25,000 sports car, authorities said.

Businessmen who used his service would call Dunlap at the university switchboard and he would then place the call to any part of the world, authorities said.

He placed the calls by using a so-called blue box to circumvent telephone company billing devices, authorities said.

"It was a classic blue box scheme," said a spokesman for the Manhattan district attorney's office.

The blue box is an electronic device which allows the caller to dial toll-free 800 or 555 exchanges and then keep the line open to dial another number once the original conversation is ended.

It was during a routine check that telepone company investigators noted that the university was logging an exceptional number of long-distance information calls that lasted up to an hour.

"We have telephone company printouts," said an investigator for the district attorney. "We determined who the switchboard operator on duty was and we had the telephone company monitor the board."

Harriet Norris, a spokesman for New York Telephone, said that after the criminal charges against Dunlap are resolved, the company may seek restitution from those who took advantage of the cut-rate calls.

A low pressure centre west of the Oregon coast continued to move very slowly east during the night. Some rain was reported over northwestern Washington and southern Vancouver Island. Most of the interior and north coast had patchy clouds with temperatures in the interior dipping to near -10 in some localities. The low should continue moving slowly east today and turn southeast on Saturday as it nears the Oregon coast. Some rain will spread to most of the south coast with a risk of a few showers in the southwestern interior.

Ferry dispute over, but bickering lingers on

The long-drawn B.C. Ferry dispute is all over except the formal signing of a new contract.

Members of the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers union have voted 78 per cent in favor of accepting an agreement with the B.C. Ferry Corporation.

The executive had recommended acceptance of the contract which will give the 2,700 ferry workers an eight per cent a year increase in each year of the two-year pact.

Under the old agreement, an able seaman received $1,230 a month, a chief cook was paid $1,437, a dishwasher earned $1,071 and a master of a large ferry was paid $2,354.

The union executive had recommended acceptance of the pact, but refused to submit it to a vote until a fired shop steward was reinstated.

However, the executive reversed its decision on the vote because of pressure from the membership. The executive decided Oct. 13 not to allow a vote until Bob Peacock, a Horseshoe Bay terminal steward, got his job back.

He was fired for his part in a Sept. 6 work stoppage the corporation said was illegal.

A Labor Relations Board hearing into the firing is scheduled Nov. 15-16.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Ferry Corp. is planning to ask the LRB to have scores of licensed officers pulled out of the Ferry and Marine Workers' Union now that a new labor agreement has been settled.

Company officials say while the bid to have the officers removed from the bargaining unit is not a top priority, preparations are being made to go before the board.

Last year, the government-owned company asked that 150 officers be removed from the union, but the labor relations board allowed only 33 masters of major vessels to be removed from the unit.

Bill Bouchard, corporate relations manager, said Thursday the list that will be presented to the labor relations board has not yet been completed and a different approach may be used in hearings.

The move to have more people excluded from the bargaining unit has led to complaints from those involved who complain that since they were made "management" they are buried in bureaucracy, lose money because of a ban on overtime for managers and say they have lost job security and protection in case of misjudgments.

Some ferry captains say on at least two occasions secret company inquiries have bowed to union-represented captains and found fault with non-union captains, although the non-union officers say the fault lay elsewhere.

One of the incidents was the Aug. 9 grounding of the Queen of Alberni in Active Pass in which non-union Capt. Al Bahry was held responsible. Bahry's vessel ran aground when he changed course to avoid a collision with another ferry.

"They ought to give Bahry a medal for avoiding that collision," one captain said.

Ferry captains say a move by the corporation to exclude more officers will erode the authority of a skipper over his ship and crew.

But some union officials say the attempt by the company to have more members excluded from the bargaining unit could have the effect of unifying the bickering licensed officers and their subordinates.

Lucrative contract ends Endako strike

FRASER LAKE (CP) — A bitter eight-and-a-half month strike at Canada's largest molybdenum mine ended Thursday as employees of Placer Development Ltd.'s Endako mine voted by an 80-per-cent majority to return to work.

The first shift at the mine, hit by a walkout of 485 workers last Feb. 14, is slated to be on the job early Friday.

The contract, termed by union spokesman Peter Cameron the best ever obtained in B.C.'s open-pit metal-mining industry, provides for a wage and benefit increase totalling 37.5 per cent spread over a 30-month contract retroactive to last Dec. 31.

The agreement was worked out last weekend with the help of Labor Minister Allan Williams and mediator Ken Albertini.

There were only 154 votes cast in the vote held by the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers as the majority of strikers have left the community to look for work elsewhere during the lengthy dispute which several times erupted into violence.

Mel Thompson, a Placer Development spokesman at the mine about 160 kilometres west of Prince George, said about 125 miners have quit since the strike began. He expected about 30 to 40 per cent of those would return to work at the Endako mine and the other employees would have 14 days to take up their jobs.

By the end of the contract in June, 1981, hourly wages to the mine employees will range between $9.26 and $11.75. In the last contract, pay ranged from $6.72 to $9.10.

Both figures included a cost-of-living allowance averaging nine per cent.

The contract also features an innovation which Cameron said will have far-reaching effects on other settlements in the open-pit mining industry.

The company will recommend that the Endako mine have a common contract expiry date with the company's Gibraltar mine near Williams Lake, also hit by a tense walkout late in 1978 and early this year. In return, the Gibraltar workers will get additonal five-per-cent raises in March, 1980.

Under the tentative agreement, disciplinary actions undertaken by the company against 13 employees who allegedly were involved in illegal actions during the strike will be reduced.

An employee that the company wanted fired will be given a one-year suspension instead. Six others will have six-month suspensions cut to 10 weeks and the remainder will have three-month suspensions chopped to five weeks.

All the suspensions are subject to grievance procedures and arbitration.

The amnesty issue for the 13 employees was a major factor which delayed a settlement.

The Endako mine provides about 10 per cent of the western world's requirements for molybdenum, which is used in the manufacture of specialty steels.

After the strike began, about 125 non-union employees continued to operate the mine at about one-third its normal capacity. Shipments of the ore out of the mine were harassed by strikers.

Trucks hauling the ore were shot at on at least one occasion, rocks and steel ballbearings were used to smash windows, power was cut on one occasion and a small wooden bridge to the mine was burned.

Bawdy house issue closed

RICHMOND (CP) — Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Thursday the case of the Vancouver prostitute, who pleaded guilty to operating a bawdy house which attracted men in high places, is closed as far as he is concerned.

"There may be any appeal but I don't think there will be," Gardom said in an interview.

Wendy King, 31, was fined $1,500 for operating the bawdy house between May and September, 1978, and ordered to do 200 hours of community work, preferably with the elderly.

A police investigation into her activities and seizure of a notebook containing 800 names, including some said to be socially prominent, led to the resignation of Chief Justice John Farris last December.

Judge Darrell Jones of Vancouver provincial court ordered his clerk to seal the transcripts of a police wiretap which discovered the operation as well as the notebook.

No new milfoil plague, but . . .

No new major infestations of Eurasian water milfoil were discovered in B.C. lakes this past summer, Environment Minister Rafe Mair said Thursday.

But Mair added that reports of no new infestations "shouldn't lull us into any form of complacency," because the weed is still a very serious threat in the province.

Ministry spokesman Peter Newroth said the situation worsened in a number of lakes in the Lower Mainland and Okanagan Valley where the weed was already known to exist, especially in Cultus, Osoyoos and Wood lakes.

Eurasian milfoil is a fast-growing weed which chokes lakes.

Uranium claim blankets town

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two environmental groups claimed Thursday that uranium exploration claims made by a Vancouver firm now cover the town of Summerland in the Okanagan.

The Sierra Club of Western Canada and the uranium education committee of the South Okanagan Environmental Coalition say the claims cover the entire townsite and all the land around the RCMP headquarters, hospital, arena and golf course.

The groups say the mining claims were registered Oct. 18 under several different names but all with the same Vancouver address. This address is the home and office of D. G. Leighton, president of D. G. Leighton and Associates.

The company has been ordered by the royal commission of inquiry into uranium mining to reveal the locations of 30 uranium finds — which it termed "deposits" — discovered in B.C.

The commission ruled this week that D. G. Leighton and Associates and the provincial ministry of health, which received the information from the company last month, must make the disclosure to the inquiry by Tuesday. However, the information won't necessarily be made public.

A spokesman for D. G. Leighton and Associates said in an interview that the environmental groups are correct in their statement that the company's new uranium exploration claims cover Summerland.

The environmental groups stated Thursday that the people of Summerland have the right to know full details of uranium exploration in their area.

All too consistent

This is frightening. And unfortunately it fits in all too nicely with the tone of Alberta's recent ultimatum given to the Canadian people about the price it will charge for its oil.

The Alberta government appears to have begun a questionable practice of trying to muzzle certain lobbies in the province through the licencing of fund raising campaigns.

The Alberta Fish and Game Association has been informed that it cannot use its annual raffle proceeds for projects designed to fight government policy. The association's manager, Paul Morck says his organization received permission from the government to hold its raffle. But he says there was a rider — some $23,000 dollars needed for environmental lobbying could not come from the raffle proceeds.

The fish and game people rightly rebelled and asked for an explanation. Morck says he was told by the government's chief licencing officer that the projects opposed government policy.

The veto included refusal to use $3,000 from the lottery to organize a petition to preserve a wilderness park. There are rumors the government intends to alter the park's status. It did not allow $4,000 to be spent to cover the expenses of association members who attended conservation board hearings on a new heavy oil plant at Cold Lake. And spending $16,500 to have a representative appear before conservation-related hearings was also forbidden. Morck says the association has been attending those hearings for 10 years, courtesy of lottery funds.

An appeal to Alberta's attorney general's department has so far brought no reply.

Former president of the association, Bob Scammell says "we'll (the association) get to the point where nothing we do will meet with their approval. We may not be able to operate."

Scammell, in the extreme, is quite right. Nobody would question the need for a government to license lotteries to avoid the possiblity of lottery organizers lining their own pockets under the guise of charity. But to censor legitimate work by a recognized association with a history of fund-raising through lotteries is wrong.

The evil is compounded by the fact the government is selectively forbidding activities that run contrary to government policy.

It would seem that the public, by deciding whether to purchase tickets, is far better qualified to determine if its money should be used to support the associations endeavors.

No government in a free society can afford such arbitrary measures, whether it involves oil prices or a fish and game association's lottery.

Oiling barter techniques

The highlight of many an overseas holiday has been the deal struck between John Tourist and Senior Merchant. Walking out of a curio shop with a lovely but practically useless carved wooden elephant for less than half the asking price is an experience that seems to uplift the soul. There is comfort in believing that you got the rock bottom price, even though it took you two hours to come to an agreement. For some the biggest joy is telling a haggle story.

Dickering in some countries is an economic ritual, for everything from bread to bus tickets. It's a practice most Canadians take to like a Penguin to Antarctic waters. It is expected, it's fun and many return to their Canadian suburb with a quiet dream — to dicker with the Safeway cashier over a buggy of groceries.

Haggling in the chain food store will likely remain a dream although a 10 per cent discount for a bulk purchase of one or two commodities is not unheard of.

Common wisdom has also put the big oil companies beyond the tongue of the diligent dickerer. But Times reporter Al Forrest spun one of the better haggle stories recently and helped dispel that belief.

In an age when people tend to worry more about whether they will even be able to buy home heating fuel, who would have considered bargaining for it?

Provincial energy ministers have declared that there is a 75 per cent chance that Canadians will face shortages of heating oil and gasoline within two years. Nevertheless, there is still competition. Oil companies across the country, when confronted, will reluctantly slice one to three cents a gallon from heating oil prices in order to enlist new customers or keep the old ones.

The pitfall of this type of market, of course, is that there is a two price system. The asking price, and the price the oil company will come down to in order to retain the business. It is not hard to decipher the fair price.

The asking price would be paid by those who don't haggle, and the odds are there are many, many homeowners who don't bother.

The skilful consumer in this society is a comparative shopper, taking the price quoted at one store and comparing it to a competitor's. However, it looks as if there may be some cracks in the price tag syndrome (what you see is what you pay), and comparative shopping might only be half the battle in getting the best possible price.

There is nothing to lose by trying to negotiate a lower price.

Now, has anyone else got a new haggle story?

Stiffer laws, and prayer

WASHINGTON — The blunt and highly-readable autopsy of the Three Mile Island accident released this week by the Kemeny Commission is a landmark document that should be studied in every country where nuclear plants are in place.

It is a painstaking work of common sense and clarity, free from the technical convolutions and woolly arguments that have featured previous studies. It is a layman's guide over dangerous terrain, with a warning: "Proceed with prayer and extreme caution."

Along with its Reader's Digest simplicity, the 180-page report is remarkably honest with itself. In its opening pages, for example, the 12 panelists, including a union leader, a conservationist and a Pennsylvania housewife, concede that they do not pretend to be a high-court jury on the future of nuclear energy.

Political involvement

This question, they say, "involves the kind of economic, environmental and foreign policy considerations that can only be evaluated through the political process."

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, a congressional expert on nuclear matters, put it another way: "The future of the industry is going to be determined as much on Wall Street as in Washington."

The Kemeny panelists, who were clearly shocked by the circumstances that almost turned Three Mile Island into a catastrophe during that scary leak in March, were torn by a variety of forces during their six months of investigation.

Indeed, in reading about the incredible safety gaps, sloppy regulation and helter-skelter panic they uncovered, one is surprised that they did not decide to paint a death's head on each of the 72 nuclear plants now in operation in the U.S.

They would have had just cause. The Pennsylvania reactor, before it went wrong, had received a fairly high safety rating from the Washington regulators. Yet the Kemeny report says: "We are convinced that an accident like Three Mile Island was eventually inevitable."

The anti-nuclear crowd have accused the commissioners of timidity in the light of the evidence. When it came to the crunch, say people like Ralph Nader, they refused to prescribe the hard medicine.

On the surface, they have a point. The Kemeny panel makes it clear that the arch-villain at TMI was the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the overseers of nuclear safety who were caught by surprise and who reacted in an inept fashion.

This same body has approved the six dozen power plants now churning out electricity, and it has already given the go-ahead for nearly 100 more.

Why didn't the presidential panel propose an immediate freeze on all new building?

Eight of the commissioners felt some kind of moratorium was called for until the industry put its house in order. Arizona Governor Bruce Babbitt, one of the eight, told newsmen: "The only way to wake them up is to hit them over the head, and keep hitting them over the head until the whole environment is changed."

But in good conscience, they could not agree on the mechanics of this "bludgeon" approach, so they abandoned it.

This was the sensible and realistic approach. For all their agonizing over nuclear dangers, Americans consume 30 per cent of the world's energy and there is no sign that the hunger is abating.

The commission had to acknowledge that kilowatt is king. The 92 nuclear plants now in various stages of construction will triple the industry's capacity to produce electricity.

No one has ever been killed by an operating nuclear plant in the U.S. furthermore, the commission said, the radiation released by Three Mile Island is unlikely to cause a single fatal cancer case.

Attention to detail

The value of their report lies not in its key proposal — the arguable point that the NRC should be replaced by a regulatory czar working with an executive agency — but in the careful chronicling of what happened, minute by minute, on March 28.

Blinded by their machines and their volumes of rules, the industry and its regulators were unable to cope with a small problem they allowed to grow into an international scare. When matters got hot, communication broke down. Officials fell all over themselves on things like a possible meltdown of the fuel core, the famous "hydrogen bubble," and the amount of radiation released.

Ironically the Kemeny report, for all its stern language about the human failings at TMI, may yet become the salvation of the nuclear industry in the U.S.

Peace Fund

Last year, a small group of friends (Quakers), concerned that we are praying for peace, yet paying for war, began to look for ways of reconciling this difference between belief and action. We were inspired by campaigns in the United States and Britain, to protest the spending of taxes on arms and the military, and to find alternatives.

Both the British colonial and the Canadian governments have welcomed pacifist immigrants to Canada — Quakers, Moravian Brethren, Mennonites, Hutterites and Doukhobours — and given them assurance that they would not be compelled to kill, by giving conscientious objector status during wartime. Since Confederation, governments have allowed for the direction of school taxes according to religious preference, also a matter of conscience.

Modern warfare, with its emphasis on sophisticated, expensive weapons depends more on arms than on armies, so that personal refusal to fight is not enough to absolve the individual from responsibility for killing. It is through our taxes that we wage war today.

We believe that the government should respect the right of those who object to killing through taxes, on religious or moral grounds, and provide a legal alternative. A peace Tax Fund, similar to one now in the legislative process in the United States, should be established here, so that taxpayers who object to their taxes being used for killing should be able to direct them to such a fund, to be distributed to bona fide peace organizations for peace research, education and action.

Meanwhile, until such a fund is established, we suggest that taxpayers contribute as much as possible to registered organizations which have peace research, education and action programs, before December 31st, so that they may use the receipts for income tax deductions next spring. Two such organizations are the Canadian Peace Research Institute and Project Ploughshares (sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches and many other religious and secular organizations). This would not only help to maintain and extend their peace work, but would also reduce taxes payable, including taxes for war-related purposes. Taxpayers who do this should write to the Minister of National Revenue, Walter Baker, to inform him of their action and their reasons for it, and to urge the establishment of a Peace Tax Fund.

For more information on the Taxes for Peace, Not War Campaign, write to us at the above address. — Edith Adamson, Peace Tax Committee, 1831 Fern Street.

Objectionable

Along with my Sept./Oct. Hydro bill, I received the usual Hydro newsletter. This propaganda organ had an article called 'B.C. Hydro's Position on Nuclear Power' and had the galling contempt to publicly state that: 'Mr. Bonner made it clear that B.C. Hydro does not have any plans for nuclear development in the province. He added that he, personally, had not advocated nuclear power at any time.'

In the very next sentence, however, in almost direct contradiction, Hydro Chairman Robert Bonner assures us with: "However, as head of the utility and as one who is familiar with national public policy which foresees a major role for nuclear energy in Canada in the future, I am aware that at some stage we will to face that prospect in British Columbia as well."

Numerous articles in our newspapers can attest to his nuclear advocacy (i.e. on Nov. 9, 1978, it was reported that: 'Bonner said Tuesday that Hydro would have to start construction of a nuclear power plant in the province within 10 years as part of a provincial effort toward energy independence. "Of course nuclear will be part of our future whether people like it or not," Bonner told a meeting of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C.' and how do you like this one from, appropriately enough, April 1, 1979: 'B.C. Hydro Chairman Robert Bonner, who has advocated the establishment of nuclear power in the province, said last week in an interview that the Canadian-made Candu reactor is safer than the one now emittingly radiation at Three Mile Island.' Consequently, I strongly resent our Hydro bills being used to subsidize this Machiavellian, hypocritical and slick publication which represents the equally odious views of its chairman. — Richard Krieger, 1260 Walnut Street.

Paying taxes to purchase armaments is immoral, says pacifist.

Oily nonsense

In the Oct. 22 Times, there was an article headed "Exxon profits double" stating that Exxon Oil profits in the third quarter of 1979 were $1.14 billion — double what they were in the third quarter of 1978, and that they were one of the highest profts in U.S. business history.

In the Oct. 23 Times on the front page is a report on the meeting of the provincial energy ministers where Fraser Allen, representing the Canadian Petroleum Association, is reported to have said that prices of gasoline and heating oil should triple in Canada by 1986. Why? Allen said, "The large increases are necessary to finance massive energy projects needed to increase the domestic oil supply."

One might reasonably ask: How much of the great increase in reported profits of the oil companies of Canada since 1974 have those companies thus far re-invested in exploration and in research for new methods of extracting oil from shale and oil sands?

A syndicated article by Richard Gwyn appearing about a month ago in the Times claimed that 110 to 120 per cent of the costs of exploration in the Beaufort Sea by Dome Petroleum is paid for by the taxpayers of Canada.

Gwyn goes on to state "(a) there's not the slightest evidence the industry needs more money (how could it when the taxpayers are providing almost all the exploration funds anyway) and (b) there's not the slightest evidence there's any relation between higher oil prices and increases in oil production."

Increasing the price of crude oil at the well head is going to result in: (a) higher prices for gasoline and heating fuel;

(b) an increasing rate of inflation (as other prices will escalate as a result of increased fuel costs);

(c) increased Canadian dollars being exported from Canada to foreign investors in the large multi-national oil companies.

The only argument for higher gasoline prices is that this might encourage oil conservation. A higher price for gasoline can be brought about without increasing the profits of the big oil companies. It is rumored that the Clark government is considering a large increase in the federal excise tax on oil. This would increase the price of gasoline and would also increase the income of the federal government. Such an increase in income could be used to decrease the federal deficit or could be channeled through Petro-Canada into exploration and research in better methods of oil extraction. If we must increase the price of gasoline and heating fuel to conserve oil, this is the sensible way to do it.

To argue that oil prices must go up because oil companies need more money to make Canada more self-sufficient in oil production is utter nonsense. — J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street.

Found wanting

Mr. Bennett's recent statement that the so-called "dirty tricks" were a problem of the Social Credit party but not of the government, is surely carrying semantics rather far.

When an official employed by the governing party's caucus prepares and distributes 150 cassettes urging government supporters to do unethical, if not downright criminals things, that surely is more than just a party problem. I, for one, am fully prepared to accept the premier's word for it that he does not personally condon that type of dirty and stupid political activity but when caucus employees are involved, more than a personal declaration of disapproval is necessary. Mr. Bennett's equating the stupid actions of NDP supporters (and, may I say, Social Credit supporters) in vandalising opposing parties' election material, with the present expose of dirty tricks simply does not wash. No right thinking NDPer would condon such tactics. However, the thunderous applause on the tapes would indicate that in Social Credit circles there was general approval of the so called dirty tricks. If this is a true indication of their thinking I can only say "God help democracy!"

In a democracy cabinet ministers are part of caucus and thus must share responsibility for the actions of caucus. Theoretically, an employer is responsible for the action or lack of action on the part of the employee. The caucus, and that includes the government, is responsible for the acts of its employees. To deny that is a direct negation of what democracy is all about.

Mr. Bennett's reaction to questions by reporters does little credit to either himself or the party in power. Social Crediters have never hesitated to refer to their opponents as "Godless Socialists" and "unprincipled materialists". Unfortunately, for the present administration the people are going to judge this government by its actions and not just by its words.

From the time Mr. Bennett read a document in Central B.C. knowing that document to be stolen, through the deliberate gerrymandering of B.C. constituencies, through its sabotaging of efforts to preserve B.C farmland, until today, the record of unethical actions on the part of this administration is such that no right thinking citizen can feel proud. For Mr. Bennett the writing is on the wall and it says in unmistakably plain letters "Weighed and found wanting". — Eric Faure, 1253 Hastings Street.

Sick jokes

We have for long wondered why a newspaper like the Victoria Times should have reason to fill a valuable space on the centre pages with the syndicated "Feiffer" material. It is almost always drivel — the sort of stuff sometimes used by bored grade seven or eight youngsters to decorate washroom walls or unused pages in textbooks.

The effort of Feiffer on Oct. 15, however, goes too far — anyone who thinks cancer is a subject for humor must unfortunately have a very sick mentality.

Those many of your readers who have had experience and close contact with this killer disease and with the suffering it causes must be appalled that it should be used in the manner shown.

Please keep these sick jokes out of the newspaper that so many of us like to enjoy each evening. — Denis R. Stubbs, 541 Cedar Avenue, Duncan.

An Osprey soars over its nest

Will Osprey return?

Somewhere between here and Southern California, three Ospreys are making their leisurely way south, unaware that the nest they called home last summer — and, for the parents, for several summers before that — is now an unrecognizable pile of vegetation in Simon Henson's yard.

No, Simon didn't climb the 100-odd feet up to the nest and dislodge it, the wind did that; Simon just rescued the nest out of curiosity.

Simon has been curious about Ospreys for some time, curious enough to devote long hours to watching the several pairs of them that nest around Victoria. He does this for two reasons — first, he'd just like to get to know these great avian fishermen a little better; and second, he hopes that what he learns might be reflected in his work, sculpting. And, you guessed it, one of Simon's favorite subjects is the Osprey.

The nest in question formerly carried an address on Prospect Lake. It was a victim, as so many Osprey nests are, of its own size and the elements. Ospreys return year after year to the same nest and, year after year, they add something new. The result is that after many years of these additions, the nest becomes just too big for the tree it is in and the first winds of winter usually bring it, and the tree, down.

The loss of the nest is not a disaster as far as the Ospreys are concerned. If there's enough of the big tree left, they might start all over again in the same place. If not, they'll seek out a new tree, or take over an existing nest of a Red-tailed Hawk and begin the cycle anew.

Since the wind at Prospect Lake didn't bring the big Douglas Fir down, just the nest, there's hope that the Ospreys can start again at the old stand. If not there, then they should be able to find an alternative nearby. Whatever they do, it seems reasonably certain they'll be able to get re-established again to provide Simon and the residents of Prosect Lake with more spectacular bird-watching for years to come.

As for the nest itself, Simon has had some fun poking through the mass of twigs, leaves and branches discovering what it is that Ospreys consider good building material. He's found that, in addition to the usual, the actual bowl of the nest — where the eggs are laid — was a densely packed mat, or platform, of moss, peat and bark. There were also many fine pieces of charcoal which makes one wonder if the big birds know about the sweetening effect of this material.

Also embedded in the platform were the remains of the main course of several former meals. There were fish bones — among them many so-called "ear" bones which can be used to identify and determine the age of the fish. There were pieces of the shells of clams, tiny pieces of egg shell — the Osprey's own, probably — and there was the shell of a limpet.

Limpets aren't known as prime food for Ospreys so we can only speculate on how this one got into the nest. It might have been brought by one of the adults for the same reason — which, by the way, no one knows why — that such oddments as porcelain door handles and soft drink bottles find their way into Ospreys' nests. Or, it could have been the left-overs from the meal of a passing Crow. Crows have a habit of using these big nests — when not occupied by the nesting birds — as places to haul their gleanings for a quiet repast.

While I'm generally optimistic about the chances of the Ospreys reestablishing themselves on Prospect Lake, there is one disquieting element that might affect their success — development. While Ospreys are adaptable birds, the loss of their nest, coupled with some sort of development in the area — which a plethora of surveyor's markers seems to suggest may be in the works — might be more than they could accept. Let's hope not.

A Trust no longer to be trusted?

THE SUN
An Editorial

The mandate given the Islands Trust when it was set up by the New Democrats in 1974 was to "preserve and protect (the) unique amenities and environment" of all the islands in the Strait of Georgia from Denman south and all the Islands in Haro Strait and Howe Sound.

To accomplish that, it was empowered — implored might be a better word — to make recommendations to the cabinet, which, not unreasonably, was expected to act.

Two terms of Social Credit government later, we have a situation on Gambier Island where the trust is standing alone, it seems, in a fight with a developer who has already staked out three-quarters of the island and now wants to start open-pit mining of copper and molybdenum.

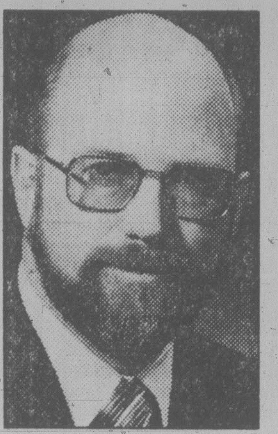
Off to the side, seemingly not interested in what the trust thinks or recommends, stands the cabinet. Brooding and, for the most part, silent.

The most the trust has been able to get out of Energy and Mines Minister James Hewitt is that guidelines prepared by his ministry "provide for a thorough assessment of all mine development proposals" and will take care of concerns over Gambier.

Even that tidbit was more than the trust had been able to get out of Environment Minister Rafe Mair for the longest time.

It was only after one of the two Gambier trustees on the Islands Trust wrote to Premier Bill Bennett complaining that Mr. Mair was not answering his mail that he went on record as saying that mining was not prohibited in Howe Sound and industrial development will be "subject to the most careful scrutiny and review to protect environmental quality."

We could be doing the cabinet an injustice by suggesting that it is indifferent to what is happening now and what could happen in future on Gambier Island, but the fact that nothing has been done either to discourage the mining promoter or encourage the trust makes it easy to mistrust motives, however sincere and honest.



HEWITT

MAIR
. . . little to say

The almost cavalier fashion in which Mr. Mair is said to have signed the death warrant for 626 acres of Langley farmland — a sentence suspended last week by Premier Bennett — seems to be reminiscent of the manner in which he is alleged to have allowed Islands Trust mail to go unanswered from February until September.

The surprise is that the Gambier mining promoter has shown as much interest as he has in trying to ensure, or at least convince the trust and the residents of the island, that the environment will be protected.

The trust has never wavered in its opposition to the mine. The government has yet to demonstrate that it even recognizes that a contradiction exists between an open-pit mine (that will require a mill, tailings pond, road, dock, and 300 workers commuting daily by boat) and the preservation of an island of 60 permanent residents, 600 summer residents, three church camps, no paved roads, no cars, and no commercial enterprises such as stores.

Denman and Mayne islanders are already embroiled in battles with developers and in both cases the Islands Trust, the elected Johnny-on-the-spot, has found itself at odds rather than in harmony with government.

The question is: Why would a government which sensibly gave the trust exclusive jurisdiction over land use planning and regulations within the islands, and provided for general trustees to be elected rather than appointed, now act, or seem to be acting, as though the trust is no longer to be trusted?

Burn low, foul furnace

Heating conservation tips:

Number One. Insulate your brain. Your brain is like a thermostat. When it detects that the temperature has fallen to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, it automatically cuts off heat to the body. This is followed by shivers, purpling of the skin, goose bumps, anger at the political party in power and, eventually, rigor, leaving the body extremities so brittle that if struck with a small hammer they will snap off. Hence the expression, "We're having a little cold snap."

The trick is to prevent the brain from realizing that the exterior temperature has fallen. The best way to carry off this harmless deception is to insulate. A padding of fiberglass insulation three inches thick secured from the frontal hairline to the tops of the ears to the back slope of the skull is recommended by the Department of Energy for best results.

This will prevent the brain's natural heat from leaking off into the atmosphere where it is wasted. In a small, crowded room, this lost brain heat may be recaptured by other persons to warm their fingers and toes. You may not mind this if you are a philanthropist, but if you aren't you will scarcely be amused to see other persons using your precious brain heat on their minor appendages. Insulate and avoid hard feelings.

If unable to pay insulation costs you may make do with a thick woolen cap. It is only 50 per cent as efficient, but if the skull is lined with a layer of cotton wool or a thick mass of crumpled newspapers before the cap is installed, the brain will be fairly contented in all temperatures down to 35 degrees Fahrenheit. Incidentally, don't let the brain start working on the Celsius scale. Readings there are so low in comparison to the Fahrenheit scale that the brain may go into a depression, start thinking it will never see another 80-degree day again and give up its normal labors.

Unfortunately, you cannot take the federal tax credit to recover the cost of insulating the brain unless you can prove it is your principal place of residence.

Number Two. Tie down loose ears — nothing creates a deeper sense of being chilly all over than cold ears. Like the toes and fingers, ears are of practically no interest to the brain's heating system. The relationship between the brain and the ears, toes and fingers is like that between a landlord and the tenants of a rent-controlled apartment. The ears, the toes and the fingers all keep banging the pipe for more heat, and the brain's usual response is, "the furnace has broken down."

The trick with ears is not to let them flap free in the outer air. If you have ears that do, buy a roll of duct tape and secure them flush with the side of the skull. This will annoy the brain, since the ears will be absorbing some of its own heat through the wall of the skull, and the brain may retaliate by trying to make them itch. If it does, you simply have to scratch. This will stimulate blood flow in the ears and make them even warmer.

Number Three. Use a finger toaster — since most people cannot work, eat or dial the telephone while wearing gloves, they think there is nothing to do about cold fingers except suffer. What nonsense.

The best way to keep fingers warm is to bring the two hands together, fingertips to fingertips, and cup them around a burning lightbulb. The lightbulb costs very little to operate and the 100-watt variety will warm the fingers in a jiffy and keep them supple enough to do four or five minutes work down to 40 degrees Fahrenheit before the warming process has to be repeated.

Bringing the hands too close to the bulb may, of course, result in severe light bulb burns in the palms and sizzling of the fingerprints. Medical treatment for these conditions can, however, be deducted from your income tax if you have already paid other hospital or surgical bills of bankruptive magnitude during the taxable year.

If in public places where no light bulb is available, some warmth can be transmitted to the fingers by holding a cigarette, burning end up, between tightly cupped hands. This can be very effective in a no-smoking area since non-smokers may assert their right to breathe cold air so furiously that your blood pressure will rise enough to drain a little precious heat from that niggardly brain and pump it down to your fingers.

Number Four. Weather-strip your toes — cold feet are the eternal curse of winter, but they need not be once you understand that 90 per cent of the coldness of the feet results from the looseness of the toes. Four gaping cracks at the front end of the foot let freezing air in to romp through from bottom to top and frolic all over the rest of the foot.

Weather-strip those cracks with a good tight sealer and the cold air will no longer be able to treat your feet as its playthings. The most effective sealer is a good waterproof glue. A disadvantage is that glued toes make their operator walk like a giraffe on stilts. If appearances count for more with you than suffering, consider weather-stripping the toes with flexible, double-play plastic. This permits a natural walk and creates a reasonably good seal. In case of fire, however, remember to tear out the sealers immediately or the burning plastic will create a highly toxic gas capable of suffocating your socks.

RJH auxiliary helps buy scanner

By PAT DUFOUR

About 400 women are responsible for the Royal Jubilee Hospital getting its latest expensive piece of equipment.

They are the women who belong to the hospital's women's auxiliary.

On Thursday president Edna Keppy and treasurer Audrey Ridley were shown the latest equipment acquisition their group helped make possible.

It's a highly sophisticated computerized axial tomographic (CAT) scanner which will cost over $1 million when it is completely installed.

It is the second CAT to come to B.C. One was installed at Vancouver General Hospital about six months ago.

Jubilee radiologist Dr. Dan Sinclair says the auxiliary played a key part in making the CAT project possible.

Provisions for a CAT had been in his budget since 1974 and finally received hospital board permission in 1977.

The funding of such major pieces of equipment is split 75-25 with the provincial government picking up the bigger tab and the hospital the remainder.

Sinclair went to the auxiliary to ask the women to pledge the amount the hospital had to find and the group came through with a promise of $127,000, one quarter of the $790,000 price tag for the scanner. Renovations to the radiological unit and extras have now amounted to $411,571, bringing the total cost to $1,201,571.

"We all (each hospital department) have our own pet projects. I suppose it so happened it was our turn," Sinclair said.

Mrs. Keppy said the auxiliary has about 174 active members who raise funds by selling their goods at the hospital's gift shop, trundling carts of wares from ward to ward and selling at their Thrift Shop on Johnson Street.

There are about 230 associate members, who no longer feel physically able to do their turn at the hospital.

Many of these, however, help by producing arts and crafts for sale.

Among those in the latter category is Miss Norma McDonald who was president when the auxiliary was formed 54 years ago.

Mrs. Ridley said many of the auxiliary's hardest-working members join after they have been widowed or after their children have grown and moved away.

Mrs. Keppy stressed that the organization is not a social group. The days of the big bazaars and raffles are over, she said.

Instead they concentrate on hours of service, including the visiting of patients at the hospital.

The only concession to socializing is the annual luncheon and gift boutique. This year it will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 14 at 11 a.m. in the nurses' residence on Richmond Road.

It won't raise a great deal of money, Mrs. Ridley said, but will give the members a chance to get together.

Not resting on their laurels, the women's current project is improvement of the extended-care area at the Memorial Pavilion.

"The auxiliary is providing furnishings for the sun rooms and a quiet room where patients can meet with friends and families," Mrs. Keppy said.

UVic short on blood

The University of Victoria fell short of its reputation as a generous supplier of blood donors at a three-day Red Cross clinic this week at the Student Union Building.

Although 714 responded to a call for donations at the clinic, the total was the lowest since 1974.

On several occasions in the past 15 years more than a 1,000 have given blood.

Red Cross officials think many students were unaware there was a clinic on the campus.

Emily Carr class ends, but house stays open

Although the Emily Carr arts centre ceases operations this week, the Victoria house where the famous artist was born will remain open to the public with a minimum of disruption, Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis promised Thursday.

He said "an agreement to disagree" is at the bottom of a dispute which has Bill and Rosalie Bowie shutting down their art programs this week after seven years of leasing the 116-year-old home at 207 Government from the province.

He said he's sorry the Bowies are shutting down the arts centre, but hopes the same programs they offered the public can be carried on.

Curtis invites public suggestions and submissions from organizations — the Bowies included — about the future use of the house.

The Emily Carr Arts Centre Society delivered an ultimatum to the government last month which it couldn't accept, said Curtis, and he took at face value its threat to withdraw if certain conditions weren't met. He said he certainly doesn't consider it an eviction.

"I thought what they wanted was not reasonable so we agreed to disagree. They made demands more than we were prepared to accept. I guess they too have to be reminded that the building belongs to all the people.

"My responsibility is not to the Bowies but to continuing the kind of thing the Emily Carr house has been. I don't want to be remembered as the minister who let the house fall into disrepair."

He praised the Bowies for the work they have done in the past.

"I'm sorry they're leaving. They probably overextended themselves in terms of a commitment of time, which is both to be admired and regretted."

In the next two months, Curtis said he would like community proposals for the use of the home, for children or amateur painters or "for those who just want to soak up the atmosphere of Emily Carr."

Curtis' mentioned one restriction: "I don't want the Emily Carr house to be a sterile museum."

It should heave "people doing things and having some fun."

The house itself won't close except for the actual period when renovations are being carried out.

Meanwhile, the Bowies have announced they are going to fight to stay in the house. Bill Bowie said he plans to file a complaint with the provincial ombudsman and has talked to a lawyer about the dispute over their lease.

Dayliner drops second coach

Reduced passenger traffic since summer's end has prompted Via Rail to take one of the Dayliner coaches off the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway daily run.

Increased traffic resulting from publicity about the battle to save the service from oblivion forced the E&N to add a second Dayliner coach 15 months ago.

The second car will still be used on Saturdays, holidays and other days when warranted, according to Mike Williams, a Via Rail spokesman in Winnipeg.

John Cooper, chairman of the E&N Steering Committee which was formed to save and protect the service, didn't find fault with the decision, but criticized Via Rail's failure to promote ski tours to the northern part of the run.

The committee promoted such tours in 1978, but Cooper says he's been too busy to do it this year.

The passenger total for October was about 3,500, down from 5,300 in the same month last year, but still more than half of the passenger total for the whole year of 1976.

Also affecting traffic totals is the $4 minimum fare, no matter how short the trip. It used to be $3.

'Nazi' tactics backfire

Two Teamster union members on strike against Bushnell Optical of Canada Ltd. in Vancouver apparently did their cause more harm than good Thursday when they picketed Robinson's sporting goods store on Broad Street.

The information picket line was set up after store owner Doug Robinson refused to remove guns scopes and binoculars from his shelves and return them to Bushnell.

When Chris Rengert and Frank Barber, Bushnell employees and members of Teamsters Local 351, asked Robinson to get rid of the Bushnell products, he asked them what their grievance was.

"They told me they weren't prepared to discuss it," Robinson said today.

Robinson said he tried to find out what the union's grievance against Bushnell was but said the men flatly refused to discuss the matter and demanded the goods be returned to Bushnell.

"I told them I thought this was still Canada and not Nazi Germany and they walked out in a huff," Robinson said. "After they threatened to picket the store, we just told them where to go."

At noon, the two unionists returned with signs saying that Robinson's was handling struck goods.

They told reporters they struck Bushnell July 6, a month after their contract had expired. Since the strike, the pair said Bushnell has moved its warehousing operation to Calgary and called it Aries Distribution.

"I still can't get over it," Robinson added. Their threats were intimidation of the worst kind."

PCB checks for Salt Spring

Although mink breeders, chicken farmers and other consumers of animal feed on Vancouver Island have been assured that island-produced feed is free of PCB contamination, a Salt Spring Island feed store isn't so sure.

Foxglove Farm and Garden Supply is asking Salt Spring farmers for samples of island-raised chicken to check for PCB, or polychlorinated biphenyls.

The chemical, used as a coolant in electrical heat transfer equipment, accidentally spilled into a tallow pool in a Montana slaughterhouse in June.

The tallow was subsequently shipped to three Fraser Valley feed companies, ending up in various animal feeds.

Some contaminated feed did reach Salt Spring, but how much is not known.

The latest PCB concern involves Fraser Valley mink producers. Federal and provincial veterinarians promised the mink producers Wednesday they will do a crash testing program to determine levels of the toxic chemical PCB in mink feeds.

The commitment came at a special meeting between government officials and the executive of the B.C. Mink Producers Association, which fears the $20-million industry could be wiped out because of PCB in the feed.

The government officials said the contaminated tallow was used for about a month before detected.

From the feed companies, the chemical ended up in chicken feeds and when eaten by the birds was stored in their body fats. Waste chicken parts were then sold to companies supplying mink feed.

Provincial veterinarian Dr. Bob Avery said after the meeting that if the PCB levels are high enough "mink either have reproduction failure or if it is at particularly high levels it is lethal."

Testing of chicken meat headed for consumers has so far shown only .4 per cent had PCB levels of more than 3 parts per million, said Ralph Houghton, head of the federal health of animals branch for B.C. More extensive results will be known next week.

No chickens have been ordered seized so far, although 25,000 birds in Washington state were slaughtered when it was found they had levels of more than 4 ppm.

Canada has no tolerance level for PCB. The U.S. level is 3 ppm.

Houghton said the government still is testing more than 100 tons of feed seized from the Abbotsford firms. Any that is beyond .035 ppm will be destroyed.

He admitted there is a slight possibility that the PCB also has found its way into pet foods produced in the Vancouver area, but the government has not tested any pet foods.

Feed produced by Vancouver Island feed companies incorporate tallow exclusively from a rendering plant near Chemainus, Island Processing. No off-island tallow has been incorporated into island-produced feed.

Foxglove is looking for Salt Spring birds that were fed feed bought between Aug. 15 and Sept. 20.

Teacher grads demand high

Chances of University of Victoria education grads getting a teaching job are second only to those of law graduates, says assistant dean of education Robert Swailes.

In fact, 80 per cent of education students who receive their certificates at UVic get a job within 18 months. The other 20 per cent change their minds or leave the labor force for various reasons, he said.

Swailes said in general, universities are unable to meet demand for teachers in English, French, maths, commerce, industrial education, art, community service and guidance.

Only in social studies and general science specialties is there an oversupply of qualified teachers.

But there is no quick solution to the shortage in other fields, Swailes says.

But while it is true there are fewer teaching jobs in the metropolitan areas of Victoria and Vancouver due to declining student enrolment, there is always opportunity for teachers who are mobile and prepared to work in non-urban schools, says Dean Norma Mickelson.

Reports of teacher oversupply have been taken out of context to apply generally in the province, when it is the reverse that is true, the dean said.

The shortfall should become apparent in 1982 unless there is a rise in certification for secondary teachers.

Bank robbers sentenced

NICE, France (AP) — A criminal court sentenced three persons to prison terms of between five and seven years for the Nice sewer bank robbery three years ago, but the jury acquitted three others. The thieves stole an estimated $10 million in cash and jewelry by digging a tunnel from a sewer to the safe-deposit vault of a local bank. Only a small part of the loot has been recovered.

company reports

Alberta Energy

Alberta Energy Co. Ltd. has announced its after-tax net earnings for the first nine months of 1979 were up 39 per cent over the same period last year.

After-tax net earnings totalled $19.3 million or $1.28 a share compared with $13.9 million or 92 cents a share in the 1978 period.

Cash flow was up 93 per cent to $39.8 million.

The company said in a news release the increases were mainly attributable to natural gas and oil revenue. Earnings from pipelines, coal and other operations also contributed.

Union Oil

Union Oil Co. of Canada Ltd. has reported net earnings for the first nine months of this year as $13.3 million or 92 cents a share.

The profit compared with $9.7 million or 67 cents a share last year for the same period ended Sept. 30.

Union Oil said the increased earnings were a result of higher product prices and increased natural gas, crude oil and natural gas liquids production.

Imasco

Imasco Ltd. reported a 21-per-cent jump in profits for the six months ended Sept. 30, 1979, compared to the same period last year.

Profits for the six-month period ended Sept. 30 were $31.4 million, or $3.01 a share, compared with $25.9 million, or $2.48 share, for the corresponding period last year.

Second-quarter earnings rose by 10 per cent to $15.5 million, or $1.48 a share, from $14 million in 1978.

Half-year earnings of Imasco's subsidiary, Imperial Tobacco Ltd., rose to $47.9 million compared with $38.6 million for the six months corresponding months of 1978.

Domtar

Domtar Inc. reported a profit for the third quarter ended Sept. 30 of $26.3 million, or $1.77 a share, compared with $19.4 million, or $1.31 a share, for the same period last year.

Earnings for the nine-month period rose to $69.6 million, or $4.67 a share, from $41 million, or $2.75 a share.

Sales and revenues totalled $385 million for the third quarter and $1,101 million for the nine-month period.

Domtar attributed the improvement in earnings to higher sales volumes and prices for pulp and fine papers, as well as the addition of a corrugated paper and linerboard business to the company.

CanWest Gas

Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Edmonton-based Canadian Utilities Ltd., has reported a 50-per-cent increase in profits for the first nine months of 1979 compared with the same period last year.

Canadian Western, which supplies natural gas to more than 215,000 southern Alberta homes, reported net earnings to Sept. 30, 1979, of $7 million or $2.29 a common share.

Northwestern Utilities Ltd., another Canadian Utilities subsidiary serving northern Alberta, also reported profits ahead of last year. Net earnings were $8.6 million compared with $6.4 million in 1978.

Placer

Placer Development Ltd. reported profits for the first three quarters of this year Tuesday of $53.4 million or $4.41 a share compared with $17.6 million or $1.46 a share for the same period last year.

The increase was due to higher molybdenum and copper prices, said company spokesman W. D. Thompson.

The company also reported extraordinary earnings of $92 million, or $7.59 a share, resulting from exchange of Placer's 27.1-per-cent interest in Mattagami Lake Mines Ltd. for a 5.5-per-cent interest in Noranda Mines Ltd.

Times Mirror Co.

Times Mirror Co. has reported third-quarter earnings of $42.5 million, or $1.25 a share, up from $31.3 million or 91 cents a share in the third quarter of 1978.

Revenues for the 12-week quarter ended Oct. 7 were $410.8 million, Times Mirror chairman Franklin Murphy said, up from $352 million the previous year.

Earnings for the first three quarters were $109.4 million, or $3.22 a share, up from $94.6 million, or $2.73 a share, in the first three quarters of 1978. Revenues for the 40 weeks ended Oct. 7 were $1.2 billion, up from $1.06 billion a year ago.

Times Mirror publishes Los Angeles Times, the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper, Newsday, and Dallas Times-Herald. It also has interests in book publishing, forest products and television.

$1B Taiwan coal contract hinges on reserves study

A $1-billion, 25-year coal contract with a Taiwanese utility is conditional on a feasibility study proving that high-quality thermal coal reserves of 60 million metric tons exist, says the president of Norco Resources Ltd.

John Wilson told a news conference that Norco has spent $2.25 million since 1976 studying the possiblities of mining the Bowron River area coal and needs another $3 million to complete the required feasibility study.

Wilson said the $3 million will be obtained soon, but he did not say who would provide it.

Although a tentative agreement was signed last month, the company has not yet embarked on the first phase of government regulations for mine development.

The project also needs provincial government approval. Government officials expressed surprise Wednesday at the announcement of the deal between Norco and Taiwan Power Co. that would result in construction of an $80-million mine and creation of 600 jobs near Prince George.

Dan Tidsbury of the mines ministry said there has been no formal submission of a coal development at the field level.

Murray Galbraith, of the ministry's inspection branch, said that, to his knowledge, Norco has not reached the stage where guidelines are set for development of the mine.

Wilson said Norco recently acquired an additional seven coal licences in its Bowron River property from Zulu Explorations Ltd., giving it a total of 16 coal licences covering 40 square kilometres or the entire coal basin.

Before this acquisition, Wilson said Norco had obtained from the B.C. department of mines six coal licences on March 28, 1979 in addition to three licences it has held since 1974.

Of the $81 million funding (including cost of the feasibility study) necessary to put the mine into operation, $30 million is to come from Taiwan Power, $30 million from B.C. investment sources and $18 million from other sources, Wilson said.

He said in return for its $30 million, Taiwan Power will have an equity position in Norco, but not more than 30 per cent.

Norco has about 2.55 million shares outstanding and about 1,100 shareholders.

Wilson said getting the coal from the mine site would require a CNR spur line. No discussion about financing the spur line will be held until completion of the feasibility study.

Keith Douglass, director of engineering services at Norco, said the preferred port is Prince Rupert, which now does not have coal-handling facilities.

WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A HITACHI COLOR TV? The first reason would be because it has proven to be the most reliable TV on the market. It received top rating by one of the consumer magazines. In the last three years, we have had only one set break down which was a very minor problem. The second reason is the picture quality. Hitachi developed a new picture tube which gives you a brighter, sharper picture. The third reason is the exclusive 20-year warranty on all solid state parts and 3-year warranty on all parts and service. We service all our own sets and have special service rates based at cost for our own customers.

The CF-16 means business in British Columbia.

There are many reasons why General Dynamics' CF-16 is the right choice as Canada's new fighter aircraft.

Performance, cost and maturity are three good ones.

But there are also some good reasons – business reasons – why the CF-16 is right for British Columbia.

Our industrial benefits programme means we'll be sharing manufacturing technologies with Canadian industry from sister companies like Otis Elevator, Carrier Corporation, Essex and Sikorsky Aircraft, all units of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's highly diversified parent, United Technologies Corporation. These technologies can be applied to new products and new markets, not just new aircraft. And the real value of the technologies is that they're labor intensive. Which translates directly into jobs. And helps a lot of Canadian companies compete more effectively in a worldwide marketplace.

Best of all, we know how to make an industrial benefits programme work. We've proven it in Europe with an extensive coproduction programme in four partner countries, including both assembly and testing of our F100 engine.

Behind us are a track record and an attitude that show we mean business in Canada:

- Pratt & Whitney Aircraft of Canada is the country's leading aerospace manufacturer.
- Otis is Canada's largest manufacturer of elevators and escalators.
- Essex is Canada's leading supplier of automotive wiring harnesses.
- Carrier is one of Canada's major suppliers of air conditioning and heating equipment.

Since the beginning of the new fighter programme, United Technologies has placed over $120 million worth of business with Canadian companies. Some of it right here in British Columbia. Which means we already have a stake in British Columbia's vitality – and we're growing.

The CF-16 is a mature, proven weapon system already selected by Belgium, Denmark, The Netherlands and Norway as their new fighter for the 1980's. A fighter that's setting impressive operational sortie records, as well as new standards for industrial cooperation.

If the CF-16 comes to Canada, there's a lot that comes with it.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market rose sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said shares of Bank Canadian National and The Provincial Bank of Canada were to be removed from the trading list at the close Friday and be replaced at the opening Monday with shares of National Bank of Canada, formed from the merger of the other two banks. The shares will be listed in the industrial category.

Shares of Carolin Mines Ltd. of Vancouver will be listed for the first time at the opening Tuesday in the mining category.

Vancouver

Computer problems halted transmission of the Vancouver Stock exchange noon report today, but early trading was active.

Volume at 7:39 a.m. PST was 252,759 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 37 advanced, 30 declined and 51 were unchanged.

New York

Stock prices showed some scatterd gains today amid hopes for some letup in the recent tightening of credit by the Federal Reserve Board.

Late Thursday the Federal Reserve reported a $1.3 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week.

The figures brought some tentative signs of progress in the effort to slow monetary growth.

Citibank of New York today deferred action on raising its prime lending rate, although its formula called for an increase to 15½ from 15¼ per cent.

Chrysler rose ¼ to $8¼. On Thursday the Carter administration put its support behind a plan to provide the troubled company with $1.5 billion in loan guarantees.

London

The London stock market fell sharply near the close of trading today.

The Financial Times index was down 6.1 to 430.6.

Industrials, golds, oils and banks all declined.

Canadian shares firmed.

More Canadian trade sought by Puerto Rico

TORONTO (CP) — Puerto Rico wants a bigger share of Canadian investment, says Carlos Romero-Barcelo, governor of the U.S. territory.

Romero-Barcelo and some members of his cabinet were in Toronto to promote Canadian investment and trade for Puerto Rico. He met with representatives of a number of Canadian firms, including Cadillac Fairview Ltd., Northern Telecom Ltd., Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. and Wood Gundy Ltd.

"We need things like tourism and agricultural development," Romero-Barcelo told a news conference.

"Although the business climate in Puerto Rico soured a few years ago, it is now strong once again."

The Puerto Rican delegation has also been discussing food processing plants with McCain Foods Ltd. of Florenceville, N.B.

Canada imported about $50 million worth of goods from Puerto Rico last year and exported about $75 million worth to the Caribbean island. Canada's main exports to Puerto Rico are fish and lumber products and its major imports are organic chemicals and pharmaceuticals.

Romero-Barcelo said his government offers tax incentives to attract four types of labor-intensive manufacturing operations — machinery and equipment, electronics, precision instruments and drugs.

In the past, the island was known for relatively cheap labor and was considered an attractive place to do business since it also has free trade with the U.S.

"But we no longer advertise Puerto Rico as a good place to invest because of cheap labor . . . we're trying to get our wages up . . . ."

Starting Over "A DELIGHTFUL ROMANTIC COMEDY. WITTY AND FUNNY. BURT REYNOLDS' BEST. He reaches a breathtaking new plateau of screen acting."
— Gary Arnold, WASHINGTON POST

Starting Over "IT IS EASILY THE MOST ENTERTAINING FILM SO FAR THIS YEAR. IT MUST BE REGARDED AS A MINOR MIRACLE. Burt Reynolds, best performance since 'Deliverance.' Candice Bergen gives her best performance since 'Carnal Knowledge.' Jill Clayburgh is at her best. Every performance in the film is delicious."

Solar power plant planned

MANILA (AP) — West Germany plans to build the world's largest solar power plant using silicon photocells to produce electricity in the Philippines, says West German Ambassador Wolfgang Eger. He says the plant, a pilot research project, will be built next year in Bulacan province near Manila and will generate 10 kilowatts of electricity, enough power for a village.

Nimpkish the losers: McClelland

Health Minister Bob McClelland believes a federal inquiry into Indian health care at Alert Bay will only delay the day when the real problem of Indian health care — the conflicting roles of federal and provincial governments — will have to be faced.

While the federal and provincial goverments will be little affected by the outcome of the inquiry, the Nimpkish Indian band could be in for a rude awakenening.

In their enthusiasm to secure a public inquiry into their situation, the Nimpkish neglected to study provisions of the British North America Act and this could go against them.

Under terms of the act, the federal government can provide health care to registered Indians only — and only then if they reside on recognized reserves. Indians who do not qualify are excluded and there are no exceptions to the rule.

The provincial service, meanwhile, provides health care for all Indians, regardless of status or residence.

This, says McClelland, is the real problem.

Noting that the BNA Act provides for federal care of status Indians only, McClelland says he wants one system and and one standard of health care available to all residents of the province, regardless of ethnic origin.

"It is apparent that the federal government's uncoordinated efforts to deal with Indian health care problems, independent of a provincial plan to rationalize the care of the entire population of Alert Bay, will only serve to degrade the assistance that the natives deserve," McClelland says.

Because the Nimpkish feel they could do better at the federal level, they virtually ignored McClelland and focussed their protests on Ottawa, unaware that federal aid is restricted to status Indians only.

And the McClelland plan, which could provide status and non-status Indians alike with the very things they are so desperately seeking, cannot get off the ground without the cooperation of Ottawa and the agreement of the Indians themselves.

New ferry deal eyed in Charlottes

OTTAWA (CP) — B.C. wants to renegotiate its agreement with the federal transport department under which it operates ferry service to the Queen Charlotte Islands, the Commons transportation committee was told Thursday.

R. Y. J. Giroux, an administrator with the transport department, said Ottawa transferred responsibility for the ferry service to the province for $8 million.

Giroux said some of the ferry services "are not as adequate as we had foreseen."

Delta police internal probe led to charge

DELTA (CP) — An internal investigation, rather than an outside inquiry, led to a criminal charge against a Delta policeman, acting police chief Ken Brown said Thursday.

Brown said Constable Ernest Goodrich was suspended Wednesday when he was charged with common assault. It was the third suspension of a Delta policeman in two months.

But Brown said the action had nothing to do with a four-month B.C. Police Commission inquiry expected to end today.

He said Delta police members were assigned to investigate after Andre Dion, a Delta youth, complained he was assaulted Sept. 9.

The findings were turned over to the prosecutor, the common assault charge laid and Goodrich was suspended pending the outcome of the case, Brown said.

It was the first such action from an internal investigation since the attorney-general ordered the police commission inquiry into complaints by citizens dissatisfied with the force's handling of problems.

One result so far of the inquiry was the indefinite suspension Oct. 11 of another Delta policeman, Constable Douglas Merryman, when he was charged with assault causing bodily harm. That charge arose from an incident that occurred while Merryman was acting as a private security guard during his off-duty hours.

Police Chief Mervyn Smith was suspended Sept. 27 while the commission investigated purchases of used police cars by members of the force.

An interior report cleared Smith and three other policemen of any wrongdoing in that case, but Smith decided to take a leave of absence until he officially retires in early January.

Contempt facing broadcasters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief Justice Allan McEachern of the British Columbia Supreme Court indicated Thursday he would find a television and a radio broadcaster guilty of criminal contempt.

McEachern said that broadcasts by CKNW talk show host Gary Bannerman and BCTV newscaster Russell Froese were "calculated to prejudice and interfere with the conduct of a major criminal trial."

"The said words are clearly calculated to prejudice the fair trial of an accused by stating that he is a person of bad character, who has been investigated for drug and stolen property matters.

"When we reconvene I propose, subject to any further submissions I may receive from counsel, to make a finding that both respondents have committed a criminal contempt."

The contempt proceedings were initiated against Bannerman and CKNW and Froese and BCTV in October, 1978 concerning the trial of William Faulder Robertson, who had been indicted in a cocaine conspiracy trial which turned out to be the longest criminal trial in B.C.

Robertson was convicted of conspiracy to traffic in cocaine and sentenced to 20 years in jail.

The comtempt proceedings were adjourned to be brought on again at the direction of the court.

McEachern rejected defence submissions that the year's delay since the proceedings were launched deprived the court of its jurisdiction.

He also rejected submissions that CKNW should not be held responsible for what Bannerman said because he was an independent performer and the station had no prior knowledge of what he was going to say.

Alcohol abuse no laughing matter

By AL FORREST

VANCOUVER — Health Minister Bob McClelland said Thursday he wants to bring in laws to control alcohol abuse but can't because the proposals would be resented, laughed at and rejected by the public.

British Columbians are not yet ready to accept limits on their lifestyles despite growing evidence of the dangers, he said.

McClelland said that during the past four years he has encountered so much evidence of alcohol contributing to early deaths, suicides and traffic fatalities that he has been trying to find some way to legislate against liquor abuse.

But any attempt would be doomed to failure, he said.

"A large section of the public would consider me a laughing stock — Carrie Nation in trousers going around breaking up bars," the minister said.

In a speech to the Women's Auxiliary at the Social Credit convention here, he said alcohol, along with cigarettes and soft living, have become the major killers in this province.

The four official major causes of death are heart disease, cancer, stroke and motor vehicle accidents, he said.

Of the four, only some forms of cancer can be cured when detected early.

McClelland said the other three are all related to abuse of alcohol or some other faulty lifestyle.

The solution: more exercise and less alcohol, rich foods and cigarettes.

McClelland said he has become frustrated because the B.C. health budget has doubled to $1.2 billion in four years without resulting in the cure of any more patients than in 1975.

Most cases doctors are merely treating the after-effects of drink, smoking and faulty lifestyle.

McClelland said all he can do is list the mounting evidence about the dangers.

—It has been demonstrated that the growth of unborn children is retarded if the pregnant mother smokes.

—It has been learned that any alcohol consumption by a pregnant woman may injure the fetus. Earlier, medical experts were recommending a maximum of three ounces a day, but now are recommending no drinking at all during the nine months.

'Oversight' slashes dam power

HUDSON'S HOPE (CP) — B.C. Hydro has incurred extensive power losses at the W. A. C. Bennett dam because an oversight made it impossible to close a diversion gate in the downstream Peace Canyon dam, Chris Boapman, Hydro's project manager at Peace Canyon, said Thursday.

Boapman said the gate wouldn't close because workmen neglected to secure dogging beams before the build up of the Peace River reservoir behind the dam in northeastern B.C.

When it came time to close the 50-ton hydraulic gate about three weeks ago, it wouldn't go down, Boapman said.

The gate was 25 metres under water, making it necessary to empty the reservoir, with a capacity of 175,000 acre feet of water, to remove the beams.

To speed up emptying of the reservoir, engineers at the Bennett dam, 22 kilometres upstream, cut back the water supply for the G. M. Shrum generating plant, thus reducing its power output for about a week.

"There will be fairly extensive costs because of the loss of power production," Boapman said.

A Hydro spokesman in Vancouver said figures weren't complete on the power and financial loss resulting from the faulty gate.

He said Hydro made up the lost power by borrowing from Calgary Power and by stepping up output at the Burrard thermal plant in Port Moody.

Boapman said the reservoir has since been restored to full capacity.

The first of four generating turbines at the $500-million Peace Canyon dam will go into operation on schedule in December with three more to start up next year.

Bennett favors oil price threat

Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday he supports Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed's threat to raise oil prices without federal approval.

Bennett also said such a move would not be detrimental to Canada.

"The growing strength of Alberta does not weaken the country as a whole, but strengthens it," Bennett said.

Noting that Alberta has been threatening to raise oil prices to world levels since 1974, Bennett said he is not surprised that Lougheed is prepared to act unilaterally should bilateral negotiations with Ottawa fail to produce an agreement.

He said the other provinces will have to learn to live with the shifting of economic power to the west.

Bennett said he would be remiss if he didn't get the best price for B.C.'s natural gas, adding that resources belong to the provinces and not Ottawa.

"The Alberta position is completely consistent with what he (Lougheed) has said at every energy conference I have attended since 1974 both as premier and as leader of the opposition," Bennett said.

"We want top dollar for B.C.'s gas," he added.

"We would be attacked by people in this province if we didn't get full value for their resources."

Bennett said it's time Canada looked not at preserving the status quo but, perhaps in the tradition of this country, that people and business and industry move where the energy and source of supply is.

Union pulls $6M from Commerce

The B.C. Government Employees' Union has decided to withdraw more than $6 million it has deposited with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce because of bank officials' actions in a labor dispute.

Union general secretary John Fryer said in a news release Thursday the decision was made to support the Union of Bank Employees who have been unable to negotiate a contract or sign a union security clause with the bank.

Fryer said the bank's management has taken a "union-busting" stance in the contract talks and the BCGEU is prepared to organize a boycott by his union's 47,000 members against the bank.

The bank has been found guilty on three separate occasions of violating federal labor laws, Fryer said.

Residents ante up in Minnie Mt. fight

Residents in Cadboro Bay are ready to contribute more money to the legal battle over Minnie Mountain housing development.

Cadboro Bay Residents Association president Dick Boss said Thursday he is encouraged by the initial response to a questionnaire mailed out to several hundred area residents.

So far 58 of 60 persons have answered the questionnaire and say they favor continuing financial support.

The questionnaire asks the residents if they want to keep fighting Saanich and developers Broadmead Farms Ltd. over the housing development planned for Ten Mile Point.

The association raised $7,000 earlier this year but still owes $2,700 in court costs and will need another $5,000 to continue the fight.

All Liberal MPs to appear for vote to defeat gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — The word has gone out to all Liberal MPs to be in their places Tuesday for a vote of non-confidence in the Progressive Conservative minority government, possibly on the question of energy prices.

It will be the first opportunity for the Liberals to back up the tough talk earlier this week by party leader Pierre Trudeau who suggested the Liberals should get to work to throw out the Clark government.

The decision to push ahead with the non-confidence vote was made at a meeting Wednesday of the Liberal's 30-member parliamentary advisory group, the so-called "shadow cabinet" of key party critics in the Commons.

"The crunch is coming sooner than expected," said Liberal party whip Tom Lefebvre, "even sooner than we expected."

Lefebvre (Pontiac-Gatineau) is responsible for mustering Liberal MPs in the Commons and he says few excuses for absence will be tolerated. Leaves of absence have been cancelled.

The subject of the motion has yet to be decided, although several Liberals said Thursday they expect it will deal with the supply and price of energy. They suggested it would probably be worded in such a way as to ensure support from the 26 New Democratic Party members in the Commons.

If all Liberals turned up, they would have 112 votes. Combined with the NDP it would be 138.

Joe Clark's Tories can muster 136.

Liberals say that if the Conservative government survives, it will be with the support of the five-member Social Credit contingent in the Commons, which supported the Tories two weeks ago on a non-confidence motion.

The Socreds have become increasingly restless in the last few weeks over their inability to get the recognition and procedural privileges of a party in the Commons. Commons rules require a party to hold 12 seats for such recognition.

They staged a protest walkout from the Commons last week to make their point.

A number of Liberals stressed Thursday that the purpose of the motion is not to bring down the government, although they now are willing to risk that possibility.

A major reason is to help erase the growing perception that Liberal fear of an election is hampering their ability to oppose the Conservatives in the Commons.

"We want to establish definitely in the minds of Canadians where we stand and where they stand," said former consumer affairs minister Warren Allmand, from the Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace.

Lloyd Axworthy (Winnipeg-Fort Garry), one of only three Liberals elected West of Ontario May 22, said: "I don't think anyone wants an election."

"But something has to be done to put a good jolt into the system," he said.

He said the Liberals believe that Clark is increasingly demonstrating an inability to use the authority of the federal government on behalf of all Canadians.

The dragged-out discussions on energy prices and threats from Alberta Premier Lougheed to set his own prices were an example.

In the last non-confidence vote, there were 10 Liberals absent, four of them because of "pairing" agreements with Conservatives.

Under pairing, an MP who must be absent can make an agreement with an opposition member not to appear for a vote.

Lefebvre said pairing will still be permitted but only in the case of bereavement in the immediate family.

"In the the case of a very serious illness which is certified by a doctor, I would be willing to discuss a pairing arrangement," Lefebvre said.

Crews fear Via safety

OTTAWA (CP) — Safety conditions aboard some Via Rail passenger trains are so bad that crews are afraid to go to work, says former CNR locomotive engineer Charlie Turner, now the Liberal MP for London East.

He told the Commons transportation committee that he's been told of cars entering maintenance shops for repairs and leaving without being touched.

"That's a helluva way to run a railway," said Turner.

Transport Minister Don Mazankowski said he respects Turner's contribution to transportation issues since he became an MP in 1968, but added he is sure matters are not as bleak as the Liberal member described them.

The minister recited statistics showing train collisions, train-car smashes and other incidents are on the decrease except for accidents involving trains with dangerous cargos.

Turner replied that he had spoken to a number of Via employees "and they are not all liars."

"Much of the equipment is old and poorly-maintained," Turner said.

Train crews were asked to leave Toronto with brakes rusted out on some coaches and flat spots on wheels beyond the permissible range.

"Engineers were involved in these incidents and can verify the dates but no one rally wants to point a finger at fellow employees," Turner said.

"You must work together and hope for the best.

"Engines are dirty, leaking fuel oil and lube oil, and exhaust fumes enter the cabs like you wouldn't believe," he added.

He said shop crews lack sufficient training and mechanical knowledge.

The committee was told that some Via equipment is 25 years old and is being improved to better meet the needs of today's passengers.

Interest to peak at 16%?

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian interest rates will likely rise another full percentage point before they moderate, the president of the Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank predicted Thursday.

Eaton told a conference on business innovation "we may see a 16-per-cent prime rate in Canada" in the near future.

"That situation may persist from four to six months in Canada before there is a downturn."

Truscott seeks probe

TORONTO (UPC) — Stephen Truscott told the Toronto Sun Thursday that only the intervention of Prime Minister Joe Clark can clear his name.

The Sun said today Truscott, convicted in 1959 at the age of 14 of raping and murdering 12-year-old Lynne Harper, telephoned the newspaper to give his first newspaper interview in 20 years.

"I'm hoping people will write to Mr. Clark and ask him to reopen my case," the Sun quoted Truscott as saying.

"Because of what happened to me, I don't have much faith in the Canadian justice system anymore. But I believe this is my last chance. I want to clear my name more than anything."

Truscott, living under an assumed name with his wife Marlene and their two children in an Ontario town, said an independent investigation ordered by Clark was his last hope for clearing his name.

"I've gone through the police. I've gone through the courts," he said. "What else is left?

"I did not kill Lynne Harper. I know that if there is an independent investigation I will be cleared. That's all I ask for, an independent investigation."

Truscott, who spent 10 years in prison before being paroled, has always maintained that he was innocent.

Interest in his case was rekindled recently with the publication of a book by Bill Trent, called Who Killed Lynne Harper? which claimed there was evidence someone else killed the girl.

Truscott told the Sun his lawyer had warned him not to discuss the book's allegations.

"There's more to this case than meets the eye," he said. "I'm relying on Mr. Clark."

A spokesman for Ontario Attorney General Roy McMurtry said Thursday the book's allegations were being checked, but it was unlikely there would be a major review of the case.

Truscott said he had previously offered to take lie detector tests, but "I was told it wouldn't do any good because it wouldn't be admissible in court.

"They gave me LSD and truth serum in prison and I never confessed because I didn't do it."

Import growth hurts industry

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government study released Thursday says Canada has lost more than 24,000 jobs in the electrical and electronics industry during the past five years and foreign imports of such products have displaced about 50,000 Canadian workers since 1966.

"This industry is in real trouble," said Ken Rose, a committee member and vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. "If we can't get together to correct some of the inequities, we may as well sit back and watch it self-destruct."

Industry Minister Larry Grossman said he is concerned about the deteriorating state of the industry, which accounts for about 10 per cent of the manufacturing jobs in Ontario.

The report notes that about 35 per cent of electrical and electronics products sold in Canada are made in other countries. Imports have grown to $2.5 billion from $583 million in 1966.

"The Canadian market is the most open in the world . . . (while) many countries with whom Canada trades discriminate against Canadian-made products," the study says.

The committee criticized the federal government, noting that Ottawa is committed to reducing tariffs, which will "mean more imports and even fewer jobs for Canadians in manufacturing."

Otter crash kills three

BIG TROUT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Three people were killed Thursday when a twin Otter aircraft struck an airport tower and crash-landed in Big Trout Lake near this community about 600 kilometres north of Thunder Bay.

A spokesman for Austin Airways Ltd. in Timmins said their regularly-scheduled flight between Pickle Lake, about 400 kilometres north of Thunder Bay, and Big Trout Lake was carrying two crew members and one passenger.

Dead are the plane's pilot, Philip Wyndels, 27, the co-pilot, Ronald Johnson, 30, both of Sioux Lookout, Ont., and Ronald Lukianchuk, 35, of Kenora, Ont.

Police said Johnson's body has not been found, but he is presumed to be dead.

Alta. eyes lottery to fund Olympics

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta will ask the federal government to establish a new Olympic lottery as part of a financing package for Calgary's 1988 Winter Olympics bid, Parks and Recreation Minister Peter Trynchy said Thursday.

Trynchy said in an interview the lottery and a three-way, federal-provincial municipal split of financing for the $217.5-million bid will be discussed soon with federal Amateur Sport Minister Steve Paproski.

Trynchy said during the legislature's question period the Alberta government supports Calgary's selection as the Canadian bidder for the 1988 Winter Olympics. He said the government will help the city's application to the Olympic committee in 1981.

The Canadian Olympic Committee (COC) decided at a meeting Sunday in Montreal to forward Calgary's bid to the International Olympic Committee which will decide on a games site early in 1981.

Trynchy said the lottery, similar to the Olympic lottery for the 1976 Montreal Summer Olympics, was proposed by the Calgary Olympic Development Association (CODA).

"We have to convince the Canadian government it (the Olympics) is a national event."

Auto test

by Richard Russell

Fiat, those people who provide Gilles Villeneuve with his Ferrari in Formula One, have done a complete rethink for the North American market and the result has to be one of the most completely rust-proofed cars for sale in North America.

This little devil has undercoating in places most cars don't even have paint. The car is built using a great deal of rust-proof zincrometal in critical areas; the car is then thoroughly under-coated at the factory before being shipped across the Atlantic.

When the cars arrive at Autoport they are once again undercoated by Fiat personnel. The plastic fender-liners are then installed and the car is as ready as any to face the elements.

To back it up, Fiat provides a three-year warranty against corrosion perforation, and to back up their faith in the very tough mechanical components they offer a two-year warranty against mechanical defects as well. This is the best warranty in the small car business.

So what is the car like to drive?

An absolute ball!

Typically Italian, the little wonder just begs to be driven. The 1500 cc engine is a jewel.

The engine is a very smooth little piece of work that started instantly at any temperature and idled as smoothly as anything in its class.

The Milton Tribune Homes, August 8, 1979

The Fast Lane

by Jim Kenzie

Typical of Italian design, the Fiat abounds with unusual touches. The square overall shape is relieved by a continuing round motif, that is seen in the door handles, heater controls, instruments, and even the door lock buttons. It gives the car an all-of-a-piece look, and is much more pleasant than an overabundance of straight, Teutonic lines.

POPULAR MECHANICS

. . . extensive rustproofing and improved quality control put the Strada several leagues ahead of its predecessors. The body uses Zinchrometal in all rust-prone areas, as well as PVC undercoating and plastic inner fender liners. The fit and finish impressed me as top-quality throughout.

CAR AND DRIVER

. . . it underscores our contention that the Strada really is prime Car-of-the-Future material.

The only choice seems to be whether you choose to buy the Car of the Future now, or wait for the future. We think those of you inclined toward early conversion will find much comfort in this Fiat.

The Toronto Sun

by DAN PROUDFOOT

You have an affair with a Fiat, you understand. You don't simply own it in the way you buy, drive and ultimately wave goodbye to other mass-produced automobiles.

Pure Fiat means more fun to drive. The gearshift is so light it feels as though you need only to use your little finger to progress through the five forward speeds. The brakes are a delight, sensitive and sure. The engine likes nothing better than high speed operation.

New-car smell

The car even comes with the characteristic Fiat new-car smell, a kind of essance d'gusto. But the Italian company also has broken new ground, for the Strada offers exceptional ride and quiet at touring speeds compared both to earlier Fiats and to the competition.

DENVER, COLO. POST
by Bud Wells

A test of a sharp-looking two-door hatchback showed the Strada's best features to be good handling characteristics, especially in the snow; comfortable seating with lots of legroom and a strong-performing engine.

MOTOR TREND July 1979
by Bob Nagy

When driving cross-country, the one facet of an interior that very quickly asserts its presence is the seating. The Strada merits very high marks in this area.

What was especially noteworthy was that even at freeway speeds, the Strada, which weighed in at just under 2100 pounds, practically ignored the 30-40 mph gusts that were causing obvious problems for many other larger and heavier vehicles.

In addition to its outstanding stability, that Strada delivered a remarkably quiet ride.

AUTOWEEK FEBRUARY 19, 1979
by Jim Gandy

The Strada, by contrast, feels firm, stable, and predictable. Through a judicious combination of spring rates and shock valving, Fiat has made the 2050 lb. Strada give the driver the impression of a car weighing 3000 lbs.

The impression of weight translates to an exceptionally comfortable car to drive for long stretches.

Friday, June 1, 1979—Santa Cruz Sentinel

We found the brakes to be exceptional. It was our impression that they are the best offered in this field. They are vacuum-assisted disc up front and drums in the rear.

The econobox class is probably the most competitive in today's automotive marketplace. And the Fiat Strada has much to offer any buyer. To overlook the Strada when shopping for a new car in this class would be a mistake.

By Arnold Wechter

ROAD TEST/Oct. '79

Begs to be driven hard on serpentine roads. Has ride that swallows dips and bumps, and "easy chair" seat and stickability rivalling some sports cars. Designed to carry 4 and does so spaciously, along with lots of luggage. Top performer of these 5 cars. It's a real "fun car." Rating: A+.

ROAD & TRACK—September 1979

The Strada amassed a whopping 11 firsts (more than any other car) in the areas of ride and handling, braking, body structure, front and rear seating, ease of folding the latter, luggage and loading, the shopping bag contest, quietness and ingress/egress.

The Strada's long suit is interior practicality, an important set of criteria for cars of this class. Comments like "Love these large, comfortable seats," speak for themselves . . . its rear seat bottom can be tipped forward to increase carrying capacity. The cargo area is tall enough, for instance, to carry full shopping bags out of sight.

OAK BAY
TRAFFIC SAFETY

Oak Bay's record in providing facilities for its citizens, such as parks, the Recreation and Senior Citizens' centres, and the Library, has been excellent.

In some areas, however, we have been lacking. Many of our citizens walk about Oak Bay by day and night to use these and other facilities. We need safe street crossings for all, but especially we must be mindful of the safety of our children and the elderly. We must light and mark our crosswalks clearly throughout Oak Bay, particularly along Oak Bay Avenue and Cadboro Bay Road.

If elected as your Mayor I will see these things are done.

Trudeau told reporters the paper was a "tactical document" that does not give Quebecers a clear choice in deciding their future.

He said he didn't think Premier Rene Levesque has given "Quebecers a clear option," and if voters decided for sovereignty and not for association, the result would be independence.

"It (the Quebec government) is either naive, or it is trying to get people for independence," Trudeau told reporters. "The Parti Quebecois wants independence, and if they don't get a vote for association, then that will mean independence."

He added one of the gaping holes in the document was that it did not deal with what would happen if voters decided against sovereignty. "Sovereignty and association go hand in hand. One cannot work without the other," he said.

New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent said the white paper contained "no fundamental surprises at all."

He urged Clark to respect the views of Quebecers and take into consideration that there may have been problems in the past, "but I hope that he will have the understanding to help . . . .

"I should also say that it would be illusory for Canadians to believe that there will be an easy answer."

In Quebec, Liberal leader Claude Ryan attacked the document outright, calling the analysis contained in it "biased, falsified and truncated."

It emphasizes the negative aspects of the federal system, but does not mention positive measures such as hospital insurance, medicare, equalization payments and the Official Languages Act.

The white paper presents the problems in a false way, the Liberal leader said, and it is only addressed to French-speaking Quebecers, ignoring those who speak English or other tongues.

Ryan added that Premier Levesque is "bluffing" when he says a "No" vote in next spring's referendum will shut the door to constitutional change.

Most provincial premiers chose to reserve comment Thursday night, with most indicating they wanted a chance to leaf through the document's 100-odd pages.

"We just don't react immediately to things until we've had a chnce to get a good feeling for them," explained an aide to Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed.

British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett, preoccupied with a provincial Social Credit party convention in Vancouver, referred the paper to his intergovernmental affairs minister, Dan Campbell, who had no immediate comment.

Nova Scotia Premier John Buchanan commented that the proposal would create two levels of Canadians — one of which would be independent but would also have special association with the other.

"We would be much more prepared if Quebec separated (although) we don't believe it will separate," Buchanan said. "We would be much more prepared to make Canada work in a fractured sense if Quebec separated."

Michael Cassidy, Ontario NDP leader, said the paper "is clearly a definition for virtual independence. As far as the people of Ontario are concerned, nobody and no party will support that kind of vision offered for Quebec."

Gerald Regan, Nova Scotia Liberal leader, said the white paper contained "provisions (which) would not work out even if they were accepted.

Dollar takes dive

serves at $3.92 billion at the end of October, down from $4.51 billion a month earlier.

About $467 million of that decline was in holdings of U.S. dollars, the currency used to defend the dollar on international money markets.

Despite the heavy intervention, the most significant since the Conservatives took power in June, the dollar steadily lost value throughout the month.

The monthly report on reserves showed U.S, dollar holdings down to $1.91 billion from $2.37 billion, other foreign currency holdings down to $12.2 million from $15.5 million and the reserve position in the international monetary fund down to $448.1 million from $466.5 million.

All figures are in U.S. dollars.

Special drawing rights in the IMF were down to $565.3 million from $640.5 million a month earlier.

The finance department said $51.2 million of the decline in IMF reserves was a result of the weakness in the U.S. dollar on world markets. Holdings in the IMF are in a composite of the currencies of the major nations in the fund and a drop in the value of the U.S. dollar causes all members' holdings to lose value.

Holdings of gold dropped to $988.6 million at the end of October from $1.02 billion a month earlier.

Part of the decline was a result of sales of gold to the Canadian mint.

The finance department also said there were no further drawings on stand-by credit facilities foreign or Canadian banks in October.

At the end of the month, total drawings on stand-by credit with Canadian banks stood at $500 million U.S., with $2 billion in credit unused.

There is still $3 billion in unused stand-by credit previously arranged with foreign banks, the same as a month earlier.

Media rapped for publicizing 'tricks'

fired, caucus chairman Jack Kempf has announced.

Ms. MacKay and senior researcher Jack Kelly, who resigned Oct. 9, advised constituency workers to play dirty in the last provincial election campaign and offered advice on how to use phoney names to plant letters to newspaper editors in support of Social Credit.

Ms. MacKay is quoted on the tapes as saying sending letters over false signatures is "easier than you think."

"The caucus decided it was only fair to ask Ellen back to work and to discuss the problem with her and I'm hopeful she will return to work Monday," said a disgruntled Kempf, who had publicly called for Ms. MacKay's resignation.

"Certainly what was done by Jack Kelly and Ellen MacKay was not sanctioned by caucus and certainly it will be my duty to tell her that it can't be done again."

In another developmet, it was revealed that a ministerial assistant who denied listening to the campaign instruction tape advocating underhanded tactics apparently quoted extensively from it in preparing an election manual for constituency presidents.

The premier has insisted that no one in authority listened to the tape advocating dirty tricks between the time it was recorded at a party meeting in September, 1978, and when copies were handed out at a Social Credit mini-convention in Kamloops in April, 1979.

But a copy of the presidents' seminar manual prepared for the same convention shows that someone drew extensively on material in the tapes, although the section dealing with dirty tricks was not included.

The manual states it was compiled and edited by George Lenko, the ministerial assistant to Human Resoyrces Minister Grace McCarthy.

Bennett has said that Lenko was in charge of making the tape, but was out of the room when party members were advised to write letters to newspapers under fictitious names.

And Hugh Harris, Social Credit party executive director, says someone lied about his involvement in the scandal and he wants to find out who it was.

Radio station CJOR quoted an unnamed party source Wednesday as saying Harris, Premier Bill Bennett, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm, and Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy all attended meetings at Harrison Hot Springs and a Vancouver hotel in 1974 to plot the dirty tricks campaign of phoney letters and organizing callers to radio talk shows.

Harris said he is prepared to take a lie detector test, make a sworn statement, and take legal action to find out who the source is.

"I don't believe that somebody should be able to go out and say a statement untrue about anybody under the cloak of an undisclosed source. I believe I have to nip it in the bud now," he said.

"I won't have people lying about me. I have three young boys and a wife who I am responsible to. I'm responsible to a lot of constituents.

"They have to know me to be telling the truth and if I don't find out who said this and have them retract it then it will happen again and again and again."

Harris said he didn't have time to take a lie detector test Thursday but will make arrangements for one Monday at the conclusion of the Social Credit convention.

Your memory banks been prodded lately?

By
DEREK SIDENIUS

A new self-development technique gaining popularity in the U.S. has found its way to Victoria.

Called guided imagery, the technique aims at helping persons achieve a greater use of their innate skills and abilities.

While scientists may scoff, adherents such as Grant Gudmundson believe the technique can work wonders if properly applied.

Gudmundson, a 40-year-old native of Salt Lake City, was in Victoria recently, part of a multi-city lecture tour across North America to promote the idea.

In an interview he said guided imagery represents a breakthrough in mind development.

The theory behind it is intriguing, if not scientifically provable.

Its basic premise is that all cells of the body contain memory banks, storehouses of information collected since birth . . . and even before.

The mind is not consciously aware of these banks but if it could be made aware of them, then there is almost no limit to what a person can do in realizing his inborn capabilities, Gudmundson says.

The crux is tapping the enormous potential.

And that is where guided imagery comes into the picture.

Gudmundson says the procedure is similar to hypnosis yet differs in outcome.

Hypnosis elevates the subconscious and depresses the conscious. Guided imagery tries to achieve a balance so that the two states of mind operate on the same plane.

The person creating the imagery guides the subject into an imaginary setting — a cave at the bottom of the sea, a thick forest, a high mountain — where's he's told he'll meet a particular teacher who will impart the desired knowledge to him.

The subject is then left undisturbed for several minutes before being brought back to his normal state.

Gudmundson says the knowledge is already stored in the subject's body cells, and, although forgotten by the conscious mind, can be recalled if the mental processes are properly stimulated.

To achieve the required stimulation, he says, a person has to learn to develop a way of sequentially activating the right and left hemispheres of the brain.

He notes the two hemispheres of the brain handle separate functions. The right side dictates the person's creativeness and the left his practicality and sensuality.

There is a constant pull and tug between the two. But by going through mental exercises, alternately switching and emphasizing functions in either hemisphere, the person becomes more aware of his mental processes and thus more aware of the knowledge held within his cells, he says.

While the theories are unproven, Gudmundson says they offer an explanation for many psychic phenomena including prior-life experiences.

He says there is nothing supernatural about the powers of a psychic. What differentiates the psychic from the non-psychic is his ability to stimulate and activate the information contained within his body cells.

He believes the information has been passed down since the beginning of time. Each person is the sum of all lives that went on before him. Given total awareness the memories of those lives can be recalled.

Gudmundson says the guided imagery technique, first proposed by American psychologist Dr. Jean Houston, is gaining a wide following in the U.S.

In the past year, he says, he's counselled 2,000 to 3,000 persons.

He says in one case he helped an artist develop her talents after he'd guided her into an imagery pattern where she "met" Rembrandt. Another woman improved her shorthand after a imaginery session with Grieg.

Gudmundson: 'You have to fight a lot of charlatans'

Gudmundson, who dropped out of the University of Utah after one year as a psychology student, says he's been into parapsychology full-time for 12 years. He's formed his own company, Awareness, with headquarters in Salt Lake.

A former Mormon — he was excommunicated for his views — Gudmundson says he wants to give the arcane sciences a degree of respectability.

"The biggest problem we have to fight is the stereotype people have for psychics," he says.

"I suppose I should have a shaven head and wear a black turtle neck with a big medallion hanging down the front," he says, pointing to the V of the vest of his natty three-piece suit.

Gudmundson looks and talks more like a rather successful banker or businessman.

"You have to fight a lot of charlatans in this profession," he says.

He wants to make it quite clear he's not one of them.

TOWN TALK

Wonder how many people out there know that apple-bobbing — that's what Steve Maxwell of Shoreline school is doing above — is a throwback to the custom of trying suspected witches by water?

'S a fact. In the dread old days, if you were suspected of sorcery, the authorities used to stick you on a stool attached to a long pole.

You were immersed in a pool for a period of time and if you came close to drowning, you were presumed innocent.

If you came up AOK after 10 minutes under, you were considered to possess supernatural powers and were promptly burned at the stake.

Since Halloween is the time for witches and the like, the custom has dragged on in the innocent form above.

There's a guy called Gordy Stewart who drives a bus in the South Fairfield area.

He knows all the regulars and always has a cheery greeting and a smile, especially for the older folks.

Town Talk got a couple of calls from passengers who felt that his efforts and attitude towards making a bus ride more pleasant shouldn't go unrecorded.

His latest nice guy thing came Wednesday to celebrate Halloween.

Passengers said he had a big brown paper sack of candy bars under the seat and every youngster who climbed aboard (and some sweet-toothed adults) got a bar as a bonus to their bus ride.

Nice touch. The world needs more guys like him.

At least one woman who works in a rest home for the elderly is incensed at Judge Darrell Jones' edict that Vancouver prostitute Wendy King do 200 hours of community work, preferably with senior citizens, as part of her sentence for keeping a bawdy house in the West End.

The caller, who phoned Town Talk, wouldn't give her name but said she works at a rest home in the Gulf Islands.

She says people who work with the elderly need special skills and doubts if King has them.

In any event, the sentence seems strange. We thought Wendy was engaged in community work all along.

Saanich aldermanic candidate Robert Geddes wants voters to know he's not the odd man out in the municipal elections.

Like all the other Saanich candidates, he too lives in Saanich, not the Fairfield district of Victoria as the Times reported Tuesday.

That's another Robert Geddes, like candidate Geddes, also a student at the University of Victoria.

The candidate says he will be on the ballot as R.K. Geddes and he'll campaign under his middle name of Kim — to avoid confusion with his father, who is also Robert Geddes.

Nov. 5 looms as an important day in the life of Sydney Farebrother.

He got a pedometer — one of those gizmos you strap to your leg to see how far you've walked — June 5, and the last time somebody looked he'd walked 459 miles.

(Are you and your non-existent 60-year-old Swede listening, Participaction?).

Anyway, that's an average of more than 2½ miles a day which is not bad for your average Canadian, but Farebrother's not average.

He turned 84 last Friday and while Nov. 5 will mark six months of measured walking around the quiet streets of Esquimalt, it doesn't include his seven miles of swimming in the same time period.

Crystal winners

The new Crystal Garden will feature a family-oriented restaurant called Rattenbury's and seven retail shops ranging from an old-fashioned soda fountain to a gift shop featuring Polish imports.

The winners of a competition among more than 60 applicants for the leased space in the renovated Crystal were announced by Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis.

Christopher Kausten, who used to own Jason's restaurant in Bastion Square and has been part of the management of the Keg and Cleaver chain since 1976, got the nod for the restaurant. It will seat 150 people and serve mainly steak, prime rib and seafood.

Former school trustee Peter Dorazio and clothier Michael Goldberg took one of the commercial leases along Douglas Street for their ice cream shop. Late 19th century decor, hard ice cream and old-fashioned sweets will be featured.

Mrs. Nora Higgin will open a gift shop featuring quality handicrafts from Europe and South America and Mr. and Mrs. Adam Golebiowski will have a shop specializing in wall hangings and folk art of Poland, products unique to the Pacific Northwest.

An eight-hour photo processing store will be opened by Mr. and Mrs. Geoff Scoffield, owners of Island Color Labs in Victoria.

Terry and Margaret Borsman, now in the retail business, plan a shop selling soaps from around the world and B.C. glycerine soaps cut from blocks displayed in the store. Teas, sweets and awarding winning products from the Design Centre in Britain will also be sold.

Antique dealer Barbara Hollick will open an antique and collectibles store featuring small antiques, silver, china and porcelain and artwork. Milton Tisdale will open an art gallery specializing in Canadian art.

United Way gaining

The United Way fund drive is running ahead of last year.

Figures released today show the campaign has collected $676,839 or 66.4 per cent of its $1,020,000 goal.

At this stage of last year's drive, $652,000 had been collected.

Meanwhile, University of Victoria student beer drinkers have turned over $2,400 to the campaign as a result of an Oktoberfest they staged on campus.

Official must issue permits

City council's fire prevention committee decided Thursday to order the building inspector to issue permits to allow fire safety upgrading work to proceed on seven Victoria apartment blocks.

Meeting in secret, the committee made no changes to the list of required improvements.

The deletion of heat detectors — which the fire department maintains are required by the National Building Code — still stands.

Committee chairman Ald. Larry Ryan said today he hopes the apartment owners will go ahead with the work originally asked of them by the committee on Aug. 23, when heat detectors were deleted.

The city building inspector has refused to issue permits for the work because the plans had not been approved by the fire department. And the fire department wouldn't approve the plans because they didn't include heat detectors.

Chief Eric Simmons, who was at the in-camera committee meeting, said Thursday he preferred not to comment and any statements should come from the politicians.

Ryan said today the committee discussed the general subject matter of fire upgrading and the inspectors refusing to issue permits, and endorsed a resolution — which will go to council next Thursday for final approval — ordering the issuance of permits.

"We would hope that the apartment building owners will assume their responsibility," Ryan said.

Assistant municipal manager Colin Crisp said permits could go out as soon as council deals with the resolution.

The apartment buildings affected by the order are Beacon Towers, 240 Douglas; Seaview Towers, 450 Douglas; Princess Patricia Apartments, 701 Esquimalt Road; Lord Simcoe apartments, 450 Simcoe; Goodacre Towers, 350 and 360 Douglas, Regent Towers, 415 Michigan; Charter House, 435 Michigan.

Candidates questioned on funds

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Jobs, tourism, team policing and campaign funds were the central issues at a Victoria all-candidates meeting Thursday night at James Bay community school.

Asked if they are prepared to disclose the sources of their funds, mayoralty candidates Ald. John Hayes and Murray Glazier said they are financing their own campaigns with a few donations in small amounts from friends.

(See story on aldermanic candidates on page 32.)

David Borgstrom said he is broke and isn't spending any money on signs or ads.

Ald. Bill Tindall told the audience of about 60 persons he is accepting donations in kind — signs, printed material — but wasn't prepared to identify the donors.

Hayes, who said he's lived in James Bay since April, took a strong anti-tourist stance and said it's time Victorians started doing things for themselves.

"My dream is an excited city. People enjoying themselves, not tourists. People doing things."

Victoria should have a farmer's market "just for us. A yacht race — just for us and not the millionaire yachtsmen from Seattle and Tacoma. Expand the free bus service for us — not tourists.

"I think we need something better for our own people than minimum wage plus tips," said Hayes.

Glazier outlined his record of opposition to major condominium projects in James Bay, and said Victoria lacks a plan for the future. In the last 10 years council has just "reacted to the proposals of special interest groups one after the other."

Tindall said he doesn't have a dream but something concrete instead.

"Although Victoria is a unique city, one of our shortcomings is to provide employment for our young people. I have a concept for a research park to create jobs for local young people."

Borgstrom, an unknown last-minute candidate who said he is "dead serious about running for mayor," stated that with its great harbor and weather Victoria is the "San Francisco of Canada." It has everything. "All we need is a plan."

On policing, Borgstrom said as a probation officer, crime prevention is the only route to go.

"If you're talking prevention you're talking team policing. Let's go for team policing."

Tindall said more research needs to be done. Victoria could take the best parts of other cities' team and community policing methods, but he noted it would probably require another eight or 10 officers to make it work.

Hayes said Saanich's system is working well.

"There's no reason why we can't do the same in Victoria."

The sharp differences between the candidates on the subject of citizen participation were outlined when Hayes and Tindall attacked Glazier's Cityplan 80 scheme to set up a task force of up to 100 residents to map out the future.

"One hundred people on a committee isn't going to solve any of our problems," said Hayes.

He said he would set up a neighborhood advisory committee, however, but without as many people. Hayes said he has outlined specific promises in his campaign.

"If you don't want me to do them you better not vote for me."

Glazier said that it isn't good enough to elect someone every two years, telling them to go away and solve our problems.

"We should come out of city hall."

Borgstrom promised a shadow city council of concerned citizens in every neighborhood.

All four candidates replied affirmatively when James Bay resident Max Hopper asked if they would open up the advisory planning commission, the appointed civic body which rules on rezoning applications and now meets in secret.

Hayes and Borgstrom want redevelopment of the harbor for people-oriented projects but Tindall said it is unrealistic to expect a pedestrian walkway from the Inner Harbor all the way to the Gorge. Victoria has to maintain an industrial harbor.

He said development has been stymied by some members of council who don't recognize the need to create employment in Victoria.

Too much liquor or the flu? Witnesses differ

Two policemen said they smelled liquor on the breath of a 34-year-old Esquimalt man but the man said he was sober and so did his neighbor.

The conflicting testimony came in the second day of the trial of Esquimalt constable James Askew, accused of assault causing bodily harm to Ronald Shingler in the police station Dec. 19, 1976.

Askew said he thought Shingler had had too much to drink and his pupils were dilated, eyes watery and red, face flushed and liquor on his breath.

Asked if eyes get red with the flu, he said it could be.

Cpl. Fraser MacDonald, officer in charge that day, gave similar testimony about Shingler's condition.

Neighbor Michael Wallace, 24, said he saw Shingler just before the visit to the station and he was sober.

Shingler told the court he had the flu and a temperature, his sinuses were plugged and he had ¾-ounce of apricot brandy at his mother's in the morning.

The case is a private prosecution, being presented by lawyer Robert Price.

Shingler said a neighbor had a habit of phoning police with complaints, especially about vehicles being parked more than 24 hours. He said it was the repeated marking of his vehicle's tires that formed the background to what happened.

Askew testified he received a call on the police car radio to go to Drake Avenue where he found Shingler walking up and down the road with a clipboard. He complained of vehicles parking on Drake and wanted them ticketed for overtime parking and a van ticketed for not having a valid inspection sticker.

The constable said he told Shingler he was not in a position to ticket vehicles. He checked the van and found it did have a valid inspection sticker. He told Shingler it was up to him to see his superior officer.

Back at the station he found Shingler, referred him to Cpl. MacDonald and left the room. He heard Shingler complaining and demanding action and heard MacDonald say "as far as I am concerned it's the booze talking and I advise you to go home." He said Shingler replied "yeah, I've had a few drinks, so what."

Askew said he returned to the main office where Shingler confronted him with his complaints and he advised him to go home.

Shingler continued arguing and Askew ordered him to go home but he made no attempt to do so.

He took Shingler by the left elbow and moved him over to the door and told him to take off and by the door Shingler threw his left arm in the air, his right hand came up, he spun around, and moved to a corner of the room against the counter.

Askew said he indicated with his left hand and said "you were told to get going, you had your chance" and pushed him over the counter top, telling him he was under arrest for suspicion of being intoxicated in a public place. He said he was satisfied that a breach of the peace had taken place.

He held him and MacDonald handcuffed him.

Shingler said "you have assaulted me" and Askew replied "you raised your hands to me first," which he told court he had taken as a threatening gesture.

The three men then went to the city police cells and en route Shingler complained the handcuffs were too tight. Askew said MacDonald replied that handcuffs were not to be sat on and to stop wriggling around.

At the city cells, Askew saw quite a few bruises on Shingler's wrists.

Asked if he was suggesting that Shingler self-inflicted the wounds, he replied "probably, yes."

Askew said he did think Shingler was intoxicated outside his house but when asked why he didn't arrest him then for being drunk in a public place, he replied "if you arrested every drunk in Esquimalt the jails would be full."

Cpl. MacDonald said Shingler first came to the police station about 2 p.m. wanting to complain about his tires being marked that day and asking who had complained. He went over the records and found no complaint lodged that day.

Shingler wasn't satisfied and continued suggesting someone was detailed to mark his tires. MacDonald said he told him to submit a complaint.

He left the station and MacDonald had Askew called to investigate Shingler's parking complaint. About 3 p.m., Shingler returned to the station and demanded to see him, in a loud and boisterous voice, wanting to know why the delay in Askew showing up.

MacDonald said Askew responded within 15 minutes but Shingler wasn't satisfied and wanted Askew to mark other cars. MacDonald said he told him it was not his place to tell police what to do but he could lodge a complaint.

Askew then arrived back, made a comment about a van and an inspection sticker, and left the room.

MacDonald said he told Shingler to leave because he was disrupting the dispatcher and said "it's pretty obvious you've been drinking" and it was "fortunate you're not driving." He said Shingler replied "sure I've had a few drinks, so what."

MacDonald said he went towards the door, Askew came into the room and said to Shingler that he had been told to leave, reached out and took Shingler by the left arm.

Askew reached with his right hand as he faced Shingler and he saw Shingler's arm come up towards Askew's face, then Askew pushed him over the counter and said he was under arrest for suspicion of being drunk in a public place.

He said Askew turned Shingler around, brought his arm up behind him and he (MacDonald) applied handcuffs.

MacDonald and Askew said Shingler stumbled as he was being led away, and MacDonald said he remarked "grab him Jimmy because that son-of-a-bitch will fall on his face and blame us."

The trial is expected to conclude today.

Constable speaks for jacket thief

A 43-year-old man with a criminal record, who had a city policeman speak on his behalf, was sentenced Thursday by Judge Montague Drake in county court to 30 days in jail and placed on probation for two years with a prohibition on drinking.

Herbert James Harris pleaded guilty two weeks ago to theft of a leather jacket on April 21 from Matt Fisher Leather Fasions, 1175 Douglas.

Defence counsel James Main said it was a spur of the moment incident incited by another person and his client was very intoxicated. His criminal record was related to unemployment and alcohol and urged a much smaller sentence than might normally be imposed.

Constable Frank Whitton said he has known Harris about three years and found him basically an honest and upstanding citizen. He had controlled his drinking problem and as long as he did that, he was no problem.

He said he stood by his comments knowing Harris has a criminal record starting in 1955 and running to 1978, including such offences as breaking and entering and theft, possession of stolen property and numerous convictions for false pretences.

Judge Drake said he would impose a minimum sentence in the circumstances.

KIM NAMED TOP PLAYER IN BIG FOUR

Kim Clark, the leading rusher for Victoria Dolphins, has been named the most valuable player in the B.C. Big Four Junior Football League.

The official announcement was expected at a news conference earlier today.

Hawks wing away

By The Canadian Press

Portland Winter Hawks scored eight goals in the first 21 minutes of play and then cruised to a 10-6 victory over Seattle Breakers Thursday night in one of two Western Hockey League games that featured the league's four U.S. clubs.

In the other contest, Billings Bighorns scored six unanswered goals in the final period to defeat Great Falls Americans 10-2.

In Portland, the Winter Hawks, with three goals each from Jim Dobson and John Multan, set a club record with their eighth consecutive victory.

With the victory, the second-place Winter Hawks now are six points behind Western Division-leading Victoria Cougars. The two meet for the first time this season in Portland on Saturday.

In Billings, Gord Stafford, Marcel Frere and Tom Cyr each scored two goals as the Bighorns moved past Calgary Wranglers into first place in the Eastern Division. However, Calgary has five games in hand.

8-2	Pherinikos (Melanson)	120	7
4-1	Mr. Bushman (Carter)	115	1
8-1	Prime Time Miss	110	2
1-2	Jungle Scout (Gibson)	110	3
Also eligible:
4-2	Miss Nomer (Owen)	110

Jocko Baby should get lead, even from post, and last with these. Island Pride may get to earn that honor if runs back to last. Brigadier Ted prompted pace in previous and would be no surprise.

2 Claiming ($2,500). Purse $1,500.
3- and 4-year-olds 1 1/16 MILE

7-5	Haymarado (K. Head)	120	3
5-5	Intrepid Blaze (Tompkins)	120	5
9-7	Duffus Castle (Carter)	115	1
(2-1)	Spirit Talk (Gibson)	110	2
(8-2)	Western Rambler (Smith)	120	6
5-2	Special Pac (Melanson)	110	4

Haymarado appears best of this lot and should be fit from routes. Intrepid Blaze could pose a problem if gets to set own pace. Duffus Castle gets leading rider and is no stranger to distance.

3 Claiming ($2,500). Purse $1,500.
3-year-olds and up ONE MILE

(8-8)	Decour (Owen)	118	1
8-8	Its Impossible (Hoverson)	117	2
8-8	Vixen Lass (Watson)	115	6
(8-3)	Lady Selena (Melanson)	117	4
(8-4)	Fielder Frank (J. Mena)	117	7
9-1	Our Neelie (J. Keating)	110	3
7-5	Split The Atom (M. Mena)	117	5

Decour has been right there in all here and was a worthy winner last. Its Impossible could please syndicate if runs back to previous form. Vixen Lass has been going evenly, may take to extra distance.

4 Claiming ($2,000). Purse $1,500.
3-year-olds and up 6½ FURLONGS

2-5	Hacker (Walker)	123	4
8-8	Tuff To Bluff (Owen)	115	6
(7-9)	Charlie's Capri (Melanson)	120	1
2-6	Weigh The Evidence (Gibson)	113	3
7-5	Triple Two (Carter)	120	7
5-6	Ala D (Frazier)	120	2
8-8	Lord Benjamin	123	5

Hacker wasn't far away in first out and might handle these. Tuff To Bluff has been there with similar and could do again. Charlies Capri has won last two on favorite track and likely will be favored. Weigh The Evidence has a world of speed, beware.

5 INVITATIONAL. Purse $1,800.
Fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and up ONE MILE

7-6	Boundary Girl (Carter)	115	3
(7-6)	Barbie Baby (Wilkinson)	121	5
(7-4)	Shannon Lia (Melanson)	116	1
(5-7)	Sly Gesture (Walker)	113	2
7-6	Little Bit Of Nana (K. Head)	115	4

Boundary Girl may like the added yardage and usually hangs tough. Barbies Baby never better, has won two, is one to beat. Shannon Lia could prove danger on front end.

6 INVITATIONAL. Purse $1,800.
3-year-olds and up 6½ FURLONGS

3-8	Winning Flanks (Tompkins)	120	6
(4-7)	Color Me Bold (Carter)	118	3
4-7	Diving Girl (J. Mena)	114	5
—	Boedie (Gibson)	116	2
(6-7)	Town Prowler (A. Smith)	114	7
3-3	Lucknory	112	1
7-7	Royal Pazazz (Owen)	111	4
5-7	Parkhead Prince (Walker)	113	8

Winning Flanks should improve off previous against better and may eke out close one. Color Me Bold is tough at this level and strictly one to beat. Diving Girl ran well in last, needs only slight improvement. Boedie has impressive prairie record.

7 THE VANCOUVER ISLAND DERBY.
Purse $2,500 1 1/16 MILE

(7-8)	Power Cell (A. Smith)	123	5
(7-7)	Gallant Purchase (Walker)	119	1

7-8	Garfield (Wilkinson)	115	4
7-7	Sultan's Command (Carter)	114	2
5-7	True Multi	112	6

Power Cell deserves high weight, can handle distance and needs only repeat last. Gallant Purchase was best in route and may press top one. C Leave appeared short in previous, may be fitter horse today. Garfield gets pull in weights, yet to hit best stride.

8 Claiming ($4,000). Purse $1,700.
3-year-olds and up ONE MILE

8-7	Big Midget (J. Mena)	120	3
(6-6)	Ack Ack War (Wilkinson)	117	1
3-4	Just Facts (Bilodeau)	113	4
(7-5)	Mr. Bradley (Owen)	113	2
8-7	Jewel Of The West (M. Mena)	120	7
6-6	My Son Eclipse (Watson)	109	5
6-8	Coaldust Kid (Smith)	120	6
6-7	Dark Summer (Carter)	114	8
Also eligible:
6-8	Nib Bill (Carter)	120
3-4	Pickle Pie (Walker)	119

Big Midget was barely beaten in blanket finish last, switches boy and should be tough. Ack Ack War has won two, both handily and could do again. Just Facts belongs here and should be on pace all the way in interesting heat.

UVic opens with victory

University of Victoria Vikettes are off and flying on their quest for the Canadian intercollegiate women's field hockey championship.

Vikettes, the recently-crowned Canada West University Athletic Association champions, survived a late surge to defeat York Yeowomen 2-1 in one of three games during start of round-robin play Thursday at UVic's McCoy Field.

All scoring came in the first half with Cindy Bray connecting for UVic at 14:25. Sarah Angus opened up a 2-0 lead with a goal at 19:30 before Kim Taylor got one back for York during the last minute in the half.

UVic goaltender Susan Oliver was forced to make several excellent saves during the dying minutes of the match as York swarmed around the net.

In another game, Toronto Blues defeated Dalhousie Tigers, 5-0.

Toronto led 3-0 at the end of the first half on goals by Donna Allaby, Cheryl Mitchell and Phyllis Ellis. Shirley Toogood scored both second half goals.

In the second game a second-half goal by Kathy Glenesk gave Manitoba Bisonettes a 1-0 victory over the University of Alberta Pandas.

UVic was scheduled to play matches against Tigers and Pandas earlier today.

Action continues at 8:15 a.m. Saturday and concludes with the final at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Holmes sparkles

Tom Holmes dunked 24 points Thursday to lead Victoria Athletics to a 104-70 romp over Junior Men in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Cedar Hill Junior High. Duff McCaghey and Rick Connolly each added 19 points for Athletics. Neil Cunningham topped the Juniors with 18.

Charlie, Habs do their thing

By The Canadian Press

The first meeting between Montreal Canadiens and Charlie Simmer is still more than a month away, but in the meantime the Stanley Cup champions and the Los Angeles sniper are making believers of their National Hockey League opponents.

The Canadiens, who had been hard-pressed in most of their previous games this season, skated to a comfortable 5-1 victory over Minnesota North Stars Thursday, abruptly ending Minnesota's four-game unbeaten streak and retaining overall leadership in the standings with a 7-2-2 record.

And Simmer, already the league's leading goal-scorer, fired his 12th and 13th of the season as the Kings downed New York Rangers 4-2 and extended their unbeaten record to five games.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Flyers stayed a point behind the Canadiens by defeating St. Louis Blues 3-1, setting the stage for an early-season showdown between the two leaders at Montreal Saturday.

Simmer, playing his first full NHL season after five years of commuting to various minor league clubs, scored the first and last goals as the Kings looked impressive in a victory over the team that put them out of the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring.

Philadelphia wrapped up its victory over the Blues with a pair of early goals by Mel Bridgman and Rick McLeish. St. Louis has not won in its last 21 visits to the Spectrum, a streak extending back to January of 1972.

The Canadiens, who had lost to Quebec Nordiques and tied Washington Capitals in their two previous outings, came out flying against Minnesota, building up a 3-0 lead by the end of the first period.

Power plays made the difference as Montreal capitalized on three of its four manpower advantages and successfully killed off two penalities.

Post sharing second in Japanese tourney

Times News Services

Three of the country's best-known professionals stood front and centre today in a pair of golf tournaments being played in Japan.

At Hanayashiki, Hisako (Chako) Higuchi took a one-stroke lead in a 54-hole, $125,000 women's tournament with a three-under-par 71 for a 36-hole total of 141. A stroke behind were Canada's Sandra Post and Lori Garbacz of the United States.

First-round leader Janet Cole of the U.S. shot a 76 — two over par — and slipped into a three-way tie for 16th place with a 145.

And in Hino, Tadami Ueno and Shigeru Kubota continued to share the lead in the $217,000 Japan Open. Both had five-under-par 139s after 36 holes with matching 69s today.

Tied at 141 were Taiwan's Kuo Chie-hsiung and Japan's Kenichi Yamada.

Soccer scouts checking talent

Players in the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League have a little extra incentive for playing their best these days.

Since the professional North American Soccer League adopted a rule raising the minimum number of North American players to three from two per team, scouts have been checking out local talent.

Toronto Blizzard invited Garnet Moen of Victoria West and Dave McCaig of Victoria Athletics to a "look-see" exhibition match in Toronto last weekend; Edmonton Drillers have contacted UVic players Peter Zachary, Dave Secco and goalkeeper Ted Van Waes and New England T-Men have approached Vic West coach Bob English for guidance.

The first match this weekend to come under scrutiny is the clash between last-place Castaways and Athletics at 2:15 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Coach Don Stenton of Castaways will be looking for at least one more goal from his squad. Castaways have two draws and four losses this season and all of the defeats have been by a single goal, including a close 2-1 loss to Vic West.

Mike Seal and Ziggy Karl have recovered from injuries and will be returning to the Castaways' lineup.

On Sunday, Vic West faces Gorge at Heywood Avenue Park, UVic takes on Oak Bay at Blanshard Field and Meston's Auto Body tackles Nanaimo in the Hub City at 2:15 p.m. Cosmopolitan Royals play host to Powell River at 11 a.m. at Topaz Park.

Chairman resigns

TORONTO (CP) — Denis Whitaker of Oakville, Ont., has resigned as chairman of the Canadian Equestrian Team after serving in the post since 1960.

Trios move up

Oak Bay Trios tripped Fuller Lake Flyers 11-8 in a hard-fought game Thursday night at Oak Bay Recreation Centre to take over second place in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Andy Turner fired three goals to lead the Trios, who moved one point ahead of the Flyers in the standings.

Gord Young and John Brown each added two for Oak Bay and singles were contributed by Lane Crockett, Ron Pearce, Geoff Courtnall and Steve Guille.

Dave Bodger and Len Meyer scored twice for Flyers while Greg Hollett, Keith Mazurenko, George Chadwick and Dave Branting added singles.

Wade Jenson of Oak Bay worked hard for the victory, blocking 44 shots, while Gary Baker and Jim Lebitschnig combined to block 34 shots for Fuller Lake.

Manager, pair of Mays among draft prospects

NEW YORK (AP) — For baseball owners equipped with a sense of nostalgia and seasoned by a dose of good humor, there were some interesting names available in today's 44-player free-agent draft.

Clubs needing help to run the show, for example, found a former manager and an ex-coach available.

The former manager was Don Kessinger, who started last season as both pilot and part-time shortstop with Chicago White Sox. He gave up both jobs in mid-season after batting .200 in 56 games with just 110 at bats. Kessinger is 37.

The coach is Jesus Alou, who directed traffic at first base for Houston Astros last season. He also was a part-time player, batting 43 times and hitting .256. Alou is 36.

The draft had two players named May. Catcher Milt May of the White Sox and pitcher Rudy May of Montreal Expos offered a unique opportunity to acquire a single-named battery at the same time.

There were also some glamorous names in a draft that has produced, by unofficial count, 34 millionaires since it was introduced in 1976.

Among the more exciting players available today were flame-throwing pitcher Nolan Ryan of California Angels; Bruce Kison, who started the opening game of the World Series for Pittsburgh Pirates; Dave Goltz, former 20-game winner with Minnesota Twins, and reliever Al Hrabosky, the Mad Hungarian of Kansas City Royals.

With more than 40 players available, each team could sign up to three free agents unless it stood to lose more. New York Yankees, for example, had five players in the draft pool — pitchers Don Hood and Jim Kaat, outfielder Roy White, infielder Lenny Randle and first baseman George Scott — and so could sign five free agents.

Toronto had the first choice in today's draft, followed by the Mets. Teams rotated by league, drafting in inverse order based upon their 1979 regular-season records.

The players available in the draft:

Jesus Alou, of, Houston Astros.
Paul Blair, of, Cincinnati Reds.
Glenn Borgmann, c, Minnesota.
Dave Chalk, if, Oakland A's.
Jose Cruz, of, Houston.
John Curtis, p, San Fran. Giants
Dock Ellis, p, Pittsburgh Pirates.
Dave Goltz, p, Minnesota.
Greg Gross, of, Phila. Phillies.
Dave Hamilton, p, Oakland.
Andy Hassler, p, New York Mets.
Don Hood, p, New York Yankees.
Willie Horton, of, Sea. Mariners.
Al Hrabosky, p, Kan. C. Royals.
Tim Johnson, if, Toronto B. Jays.
Jay Johnstone, of, San D. Padres.
Jim Kaat, p, New York Yankees.
Don Kessinger, if, Chi. White Sox.
Ed Kranepool, 1b, New Y. Mets.
Lerrin LaGrow, p, L. A. Dodgers.
Skip Lockwood, p, N. Y. Mets.
Milt May, c, Chicago White Sox.
Rudy May, p, Montreal Expos.
Joe Morgan, if, Cincinnati.
Fred Norman, p, Cincinnati.
Rowland Office, of, Atl'ta Braves.
Jorge Orta, if, Chicago White Sox.
Fred Patek, ss, Kansas City.
Tony Perez, 1b, Montreal.
Len Randle, if, N.Y. Yankees.
Merv Rettenmund, of, Cal. Angels
Nolan Ryan, p, California.
George Scott, 1b, N.Y. Yankees.
Tony Solaita, 1b, Toronto.
Dan Stanhouse, p, Balt. Orioles.
Rennie Stennett, if, Pittsburgh.
Rusty Torres, of, Chi. White Sox.
Wayne Twitchell, p, Seattle.
Bobby Valentine, if, Seattle.
Bob Watson, 1b, Boston Red Sox.
Roy White, of, New York Yankees.
Rick Wise, p, Cleveland Indians.
Jim Wohlford, of, Milwaukee.

Sport salmon fishing recovering somewhat

Now that the windy weather has abated a little, salmon returns have started to slowly pick up in a number of Vancouver Island areas.

Vern Exton was one of the lucky ones at Sooke. He boated an 18-pound coho Monday while trolling an anchovy off Secretary Island.

Most of the few catches coming in from the same site, however, are winter chinooks to 11 pounds.

Winter chinooks to 13 pounds and a few coho to the same weight are showing off Church Rock in Becher Bay. Best results were noted by trolling anchovies, five-inch minnows or white Squirts at depth between 130 and 160 feet.

A few returns are also coming from Beechey Head.

Action picked up Wednesday at Pedder Bay with several limit catches of chinooks to 13 pounds reported in the middle of Race Passage and off the kelp bed. Most were taken on green and silver hootchies or strip.

Oak Bay fishermen are experiencing slow returns but driftfishermen continue to land chinooks to 15 pounds on Buzz-Bombs and Stingsildas off the rocks along Victoria Golf Club.

Don Norbury, one of the highliners out Sidney way, is boating fair catches of chinooks to 10 pounds off Dock Island trolling hootchies at the 120 to 140-foot depth. Other returns of winter chinooks and a few coho were reported taken on white hootchies off Saanichton Spit.

A few fishermen running across Saanich Inlet to Cherry and Hatch points are taking coho on the surface with Hot Spot flashers and green and white hootchies.

Waters between Sandy Beach and the Bamberton tanks are yielding a few limit catches of chinooks to 19½ pounds along with a few coho to 13 on blue and gold, blue and silver, green and blue or green and silver hootchies trolled at depths from 100 to 175 feet.

Action has also picked up in Finlayson Arm, where Helen Newman caught an 18½-pound chinook Wednesday while trolling a Squirt in The Narrows.

Most of the catches were taken on Tomic Plugs or hootchie-type gear.

Further up-Island, a few coho to 10 pounds are showing in Cowichan Bay. Troll fairly slow with four ounces of weight and a bucktail rigged to a flasher on a 36-inch leader for best success.

Other coho catches are turning up off Maple Bay and Crofton.

Most salmon fishermen have forsaken the salt-chuck at Nanaimo to try their hand at landing some excellent catches of coho to nine pounds on No. 4 Mepps spinners or Sneaks in the Nanaimo River.

A few chinooks have been grabbing Flashtails trolled at the 100-foot depth off the Fingers.

A few chinooks to 12 pounds have been landed by driftfishermen off Qualicum and trollers have picked up chinooks off the ferry slip on Hornby Island.

At Campbell River, a few chinooks to seven pounds are showing in scattered spots.

Trout anglers are enjoying good success for hefty rainbows in the fly-fishing-only area at the top end of the Cowichan River. Best results were noted on an "egg" fly retrieved fairly fast.

Other good trout catches were taken on bait in Quamichan, Cowichan and Bear lakes.

Some of the smaller lakes north of Great Central Lake are yeilding fair catches of trout and all of the lakes in the Courtenay and Campbell River vicinities should be a good bet.

Yankees on a youth kick as major rebuilding starts

Times News Services

Last season, New York Yankees were like a roller coaster heading down a steep incline, as they plunged from World Series champions to fourth place in the American League East.

Now, they are hoping to head back up, also in whirlwind fashion.

Thursday, the Yankees went on a wild trading binge, whipping players around faster than a blackjack dealer at a Las Vegas casino. When the action was over, they had traded away seven players and acquired five, including centre fielder Ruppert Jones from Seattle Mariners and catcher Rick Cerone and pitcher Tom Underwood from Toronto.

In exchange for Jones and minor league pitcher Jim Lewis, the Yankees shipped catcher Jerry Narron, pitcher Jim Beattie, centre fielder Juan Beniquez and minor league pitcher Rick Anderson to the Mariners.

And in return for Cerone, Underwood and minor league outfielder Ted Wilborn, New York sent first baseman Chris Chambliss, pitcher Paul Mirabella and shortstop Damaso Garcia to the Blue Jays.

All of the player traffic was directed on a day in which the Yankees had introduced their new manager, Dick Howser, and officially named their new general manager, Gene Michael, who replaces Cedric Tallis.

After the two deals, a Yankees' spokesman said: "What we have done is fill our two biggest needs — for a catcher and a centre fielder. We also acquired some youth, getting a 24-year-old centre fielder and a 25-year-old catcher. The oldest player of the six we got today is Underwood, and he's only 26."

The Yankees' centre field job last season was shared by Mickey Rivers, Paul Blair, Beniquez, Bobby Murcer and Bobby Brown, and none proved successful.

The Yankees' catching problems became acute when all-star Thurman Munson was killed in a plane crash in midseason. New York finished the season with youngsters Brad Gulden and Narron, both left-handed hitters, behind the plate. Neither of them hit close to .200.

In Cerone, they got a right-handed hitter who batted .239 with 27 doubles, seven homers and 55 RBI.

Tallis will remain with the team, working out of his home in Shawnee Mission, Kan.

The Yankees also said Bob Lemon, who replaced Martin during the 1978 season and was replaced by him halfway through 1979, would work out of his Long Beach, Calif., home, evaluating prospects on the West Coast.

— In Baltimore, the sale of the Orioles to Washington lawyer Edward Bennett Williams was approved by stockholders. Fear of the club moving to another city was dispelled when Williams said all games in 1980 would be played in Baltimore.

— In Toronto, it was announced that Al Widmar, with Baltimore Orioles as a minor league pitching instructor for the last two seasons, had been appointed pitching coach for the Blue Jays.

— In Boston, American League batting champion Fred Lynn said he was baffled by persistent reports he would prefer to play in his native California. He said he wants to remain with the Red Sox.

— In Montreal, it was revealed that former major league pitcher Larry Bearnarth had been named as manager of Memphis Chicks, the AA Southern League affiliate of Montreal Expos.

DEMBOS to have their day

around our shores

Something new takes place at Cadboro Bay on Saturday when the DEMBOS of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club hold their shakedown races.

These are owners of Davidson, El Toro, Minto and other small dinghies, such as Sabots, who will turn out for fun racing.

Several years ago, Davidsons, El Toros and Sabots were out in numbers for fall and winter racing but have now been replaced by the more sophisticated Lasers, Fireballs and Tazers.

The DEMBOS will encourage non-owners and junior members of the club by loaning them their dinghies for alternate races, swapping, teaching and learning.

They will join the race circuit of the more sophisticated types, the first race getting under way at 1:30 p.m.

The following Saturday the DEMBOS will have their official opening day sailpast. If you have one of the old-style dinghies and want to join in the new program you can get more information by phoning any of these numbers — 385-0404, 592-6936 and 477-6006.

The club has also expanded racing privileges for both dinghy and cruising class boats. Now members of other registered clubs, such as the Turkey Head Sailing Association and the Canoe Bay Sailing Club can race as non-members by registering in RVYC's racing program.

Forty-two boats turned out for two around-the buoys races on Sunday. Fleetwood, owned by Doug Hemphill and Dave Richardson, won the first race for the faster Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet boats. Fleetwood is a home-built boat, designed by Doug and built by Dave, and is already proving herself a winner. So is Arkle, which is the same design and also home-built. Owned by Bruce Kenning, she placed second, Jack Foster's Sherlock following her in third spot. The second time around it was Arkle, followed by Fleetwood and Grant Watson's Kirby 25.

Gerry Porter's Lickety Split won the first race for slower PHRF boats, edging out Ron Jewula's Beowulf and Barry Wilton's Harmony. Top boats in the second race were Bob Grubbe's Fiddler, Bruce Klaver's Wings and Bob Callow's Minstrel.

Gary Cooney's Hocus, Larry Shorter's Kila Kila and Rod McBride's Lemolo led the fleet in the first race for Thunderbirds. In the next race it was Hocus, followed by John Dewey's Shuttlecock and Kila Kila.

In the Catalina 27 division Doug Ross' Amica won the first race, edging out Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream and Wayne Dunsmuir's Hey Jude. Top boats the second time around were Salty Dream, Amica and Bill Williams' Achilles.

Ed Life's Semiramis won the first race for Cal 20s, being followed by Don North's Polaris and Harry Marshall's Tongariro. Kenneth Wilson's Manitou was the only Cal 20 to finish within the time limit in the last race.

This Sunday the RVYC will have its first long-distance race of the fall and winter series, the first start being set for 10 a.m. This year there will be five divisions, three for PHRF boats and two for International Offshore Rule boats.

To encourage IOR racing locally, the club will waive the very expensive measurements that are needed for valid IOR ratings. If there is a similar boat in the area that is already IOR a boat can be given a provisional IOR rating, based on the other. This easing of the rules, however, will not apply to such sailing classics as the Swiftsure.

CBSC boats will be out again on Saturday for a six-miler in waters off Sidney. They will begin racing in the vicinity of the government wharf at 1 p.m.

Forty-three boats took part in Sunday's 7½-miler, which was won by Charlie Afford's Reefer. After her came Bill Hingley's Quintango, Larry Mofford's Main Brace, Jim Morris' Madeleine, Daryl Foster's Tzonqua, Steve Meredith's Solution, Barry Camp's Chantarelle, Gerry Guest's Auriga, Ken Martin's Stirling Shamrock and John Barker's Interlude.

Sailerettes and cruising class boats of th Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will compete for the Gearbuster Trophy on Sunday. The race starts in Esquimalt Harbor at 10 a.m. The club's dinghy sailors will have series racing, beginning at 1 p.m.

Bill Sargent's Southern Comfort is the over-all winner of B series for keel boats, the last races of which were sailed on Sunday. After her placed Doug Russell's Ithaqua and Ed Haines' Lotte. Ed's brother, Bob, came fourth in Baracoutta.

Vanderburg takes fourth major title

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (Reuter) — Helen Vanderburg added the Pan-Pacific synchronized swimming solo title to her list of 1979 achievements Friday.

The 20-year-old Calgary swimmer, who already had taken golds at the world, Pan-American and Canadian championships this year, won by a comfortable margin over her chief rivals — Linda Shelley of the United States and Yuki Ishii of Japan — although there seemed to be little to choose between the routines of the three.

Ishii provided a more bouncy routine, the Japanese music much brighter compared to the sombre, funeral-procession type arrangements of the other four finalists which the judges seemed to favor.

Vanderburg compiled 98.66 points Friday which, added to her Thursday's total, gave her 194.49 points for the two-day competition. Shelley took second place, receiving 96 Friday and a two-day total of 187.57.

Ishii finished with 182.74 points to 169.10 points for fourth-place Donella Burridge of Australia.

Rutledge finds water but still makes test cut

HUNTSVILLE, Texas — Jim Rutledge of Victoria managed to hit water hazards three times and had to settle for a 10-over-par 81 in the second round of the USPGA National Golf School test at the Waterwood National course Thursday.

That left the 20-year-old pro with 156 for 36 holes. He made the cut to low 90 and ties by three strokes but still needs two good rounds to qualify for a tour playing card. The low 25 and ties receive cards.

Former amateur star Scott Hoch of Raleigh, N.C., and former touring pro Skeeter Heath of Hampton, Va., share the lead.

Hoch, in his first attempt to qualify for PGA tour competition, fired a second-round 71, while Heath, trying to regain the tour rights he lost last year, carded a 72. They are tied at 143, one-over-par.

The only golfer to break par was Mike Donald of Hollywood, Fla. He shot a 69 to jump into a tie for second with Kirk Hanefeld of Nashua, N.H., at 144.

First-round leaders Bruce Douglass of Stoughton, Mass., and Tom Jones of Tulsa, Okla., both soared to five-over-par 76s and fell into a sixth-place tie at 146.

Two other Canadians — Gar Hamilton of Toronto and Danny Talbot of Beloeil, Que. — were nine strokes off the pace.

Spectrum flashy

DELTA — Spectrum set the pace as all three Victoria entries finished well up during the first round of the British Columbia "AA" high school girls' field hockey championship tournament Thursday.

Spectrum, the No. 2 Vancouver Island representative, scored two shutouts to earn first place in one of the four four-team sections.

Island-champion Mt. Douglas won one match and tied another for a share of first place in another section and Oak Bay, with a win and a loss, is second in its section.

Spectrum blanked Princess Margaret of Langley 3-0 on goals by Laurie Stephens, Dana Harpham and Julie Szegedi and then topped Vancouver's John Oliver by the same count on goals from Harpham, Bonnie Hutton and Trish Sherring.

Mt. Douglas tied Hillside of West Vancouver 1-1 on a goal by Alison Snow and bounced Delta 5-0 on goals by Snow (2), Nancy Charlton (2) and Lori Gordon.

Chrissie Monaghan scored twice and Sue Walton added one to give Oak Bay a 3-1 win over Churchill of Vancouver. Kelowna tripped Bays, 4-0.

Vera, Dennis earn fivepin rolloff berths

Vera Gibbons and Dennis Beckwith came up with sizzling series at Town and Country Lanes to top the fivepin divisions during the fourth week of competition in the 17th annual Victoria Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Vera topped the women competitors on southern Vancouver Island lanes with a 269-242-310 — 821 series in the Monday Niters League and Dennis nailed down men's laurels with a 249-332-322 — 903 series in the Friday Fun League.

In addition, both earn berths in the season-end Bowler-of-the-Year rollofs.

Before the judge

A 23-year-old recent arrival from Fredericton was released on $500 surety bail or cash deposit after he was charged Thursday in provincial court with attempted uttering of a forged cheque.

Norman Frank Estey, who has been in Victoria only a few days, was charged with attempted uttering and fraud in connection with a $420 cheque signed by Randy James and an incident Wednesday at the Bank of Nova Scotia, 3609 Shelbourne.

Duty legal aid lawyer James Main requested a remand until next Friday for election of Estey's trial method.

Judge Fred Green dismissed a charge against a 19-year-old because Crown counsel Richard Law was not able to prove "recent possession" of a stolen coffee machine.

Darryl Long, formerly of 3016 Jutland, was charged with possession of stolen property over the value of $200 following a break-in Jan. 13 at Gray Beverage Ltd., 486 Cecelia.

Sales manager Skip Chapman testified the coffee room was broken into and the coffee unit, leased from Coast Catering, was missing.

However, defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie argued that police didn't find the article at Long's residence until Feb. 10, thereby leaving the Crown with no evidence of recent possession, and that there had been testimony that a number of young people were seen in the apartment on occasions and that his client said he "wasn't there very much." MacKenzie said those facts didn't put Long in exclusive control or give him knowledge that the coffee machine was stolen.

A 33-year-old man convicted for the third time on a drinking-driving charge was sentenced to seven days in jail.

John Joseph Sampson had previous convictions for impaired driving and refusing a breath test demand on Sept. 4, 1971, in Sidney, and driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08, on Sept. 16, 1976, in Victoria. He received fines of $300 and $100 on the first occasion and $100 on the second.

Also fined for drinking-driving offences were: Gordon Simpson McMillan, 26, of 2319 Amelia, $400; and Robert Acheson Jones, 68, of 4101 Carey, $100.

Symphony concert tonight

Garry Graffman won one of the world's most demanding piano competitions, the American Leventritt, while still in his teens.

The award brought him to the attention of the international musical world and he subsequently became the first pianist to have recorded with all the United States' top five orchestras — New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Boston and Chicago.

The artist-virtuoso, whose current American season includes orchestra, recital and chamber music appearances from New York to San Francisco, and who has just completed his third tour of Japan and Southeast Asia, comes to Victoria to perform tonight and Sunday, as soloist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

In a pair of concerts conducted by Paul Freeman at the Royal Theatre, Graffman will play Beethoven's Piano Concerto No.3 in C minor.

For this event only, the usual Monday concert has been scheduled for tonight at 8, due to circumstances beyond the control of the symphony society.

Other works to be performed include Unanswered Question by Charles Ives.

Redheads only: Bastion

Young actors will be auditioned by Bastion Theatre on Saturday.

The company is looking for four boys, aged seven to 17 and only redheads need apply.

The copper-tops are required for Bastion's Christmas holiday production of the comedy, Life With Father. Rehearsals will begin Nov. 29 and the production runs Dec. 21 through Jan. 5. at McPherson Playhouse.

For Tennessee Williams' Cat On a Hot Tin Roof, which goes into rehearsal Feb. 5 for a Feb. 29-March 15 run, four boys and girls aged five to 10 are needed. Also required for Life With Father, is a matronly female for a small cameo role as a maid. A Canadian accent is mandatory.

Auditions for Bastion Theatre students will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at 1002 Wharf.

Anyone interested in any of the above roles should phone Helen Simpson-Baikie, 386-8301 for an appointment.

Students like early school shift

The school bell rings these days at 8:20 a.m. for Central Junior Secondary classes, allowing dismissal at 2 in the afternoon.

Students, parents, teachers and staff like the early shift forced upon them two months ago by the temporary closure of nearby Victoria High and they want to continue the modified school day.

The early hours were started while $1.6 million in renovations was completed at Vic High.

Central students went to school at 7:45, had 45-minute classes, a half-hour lunch and were out by 12:17 allowing Vic High students to take over the school for the afternoon.

In a survey conducted by principal Wally Eggert, 70 per cent of the four groups favored an even earlier starting time but it was felt school should not be dismissed before 2 p.m.

Periods are 56 minutes with four minutes between, which Eggert says allows sufficient time for gym changing and cooking classes.

The arrangement, started Thursday, has the approval of the district administration and awaits the endorsement of trustees.

Not everyone will be pleased with the experiment, Eggert noted, but he was not surprised at the outcome of his survey.

He said he could see by the tone of the school that children were happy with the arrangement during Vic High's tenancy.

"I think a junior high students needs a faster pace," he said. "They don't have the same timing as an adult. They need a greater variety of things during the day or they get bored."

He said many indicated they had a lot to do in the afternoon.

With most of it off, students can devote their energies to homework, social activities, babysitting and part-time jobs, the survey showed.

Parents seemed to concur, noting the time provides better opportunity for music lessons, medical and dental appointments and for meeting friends before supper instead of going out at night.

An even higher proportion of those surveyed — 78 per cent — favored a short lunch break instead of the customary hour.

A curious side effect of the enforced two-month situation was a reduction in vandalism at Central and marked improvement in attendance.

You are South and the bidding has gone:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠Q 6 ♡97 ♢AKQ753 ♣863
2. ♠Q6 ♡987 ♢AKQ753 ♣63
3. ♠742 ♡QJ96 ♢J5 ♣AK92
4. ♠963 ♡K8432 ♢10 ♣AKJ5
5. ♠QJ7 ♡653 ♢AQ94 ♣K83

1. Two diamonds. It may be tempting to respond three diamonds, after passing originally, to show values close to an opening bid, but the fact is that North's heart bid depreciated your values somewhat instead of elevating them. It is true that North may pass two diamonds, but it's likewise true that you probably won't lose a game if he does.

It's important to recognize that two diamonds is a forward-going bid showing 10 or more points — despite the previous pass — and that North will presumably give full weight to your affirmative response.

2. Three diamonds. Prospects for game are better this time, because you have three hearts instead of only two, and a potentially helpful doubleton in clubs besides. These factors add greatly to the promise of the hand, because a possible game in hearts looms more strongly on the horizon. If partner's rebid now were three notrump, your best bet would be to pass.

3. Three hearts. If you had not passed originally, the jump-raise in hearts would be forcing to game — and for that reason you would not bid it. (You would respond two clubs, planning to raise hearts next.)

But three hearts, after your initial pass, is now correct. North may pass, holding a skimpy opening bid, but if he does he is unlikely to make ten tricks. Remember that North is probably just as eager to score a game as you are, and that if he passes you're probably high enough. Note also that it would be wrong to respond two clubs, which is not a forcing bid after passing earlier.

4. Four hearts. Here you grab the bull by the horns and bid game. You shouldn't test your luck to see whether or not partner would bid again over a response of either three clubs or three hearts. Never trust partner unnecessarily in these situations. When you feel confident your side has a game, which is what you should feel here, bid the full strength of your hand.

5. Two notrump. After passing originally, this indicates 11 to 13 points, notrump distribution and stoppers in the three side suits. That's what you have, so you bid two notrump and let partner carry on from there.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, November 3, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on income potential, getting money's worth, basic payments and collections. Be ready for change, a variety of sensations, a special message from member of opposite sex. Be analytical, piece together bits of information and come up with complete story.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You locate what has been missing or lost: Circumstances turn in your favor—imprint style, stress independence and an original approach. Family member makes major concession. Be a "gracious winner." You reap benefits of unique arrangement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Much that occurs is backstage, behind the scenes and of a clandestine nature. Pisces, Virgo individuals figure in scenario. Fulfill obligation to one confined to home, hospital. Perceive situation as it exists, not merely as you wish it could be.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What seemed a haphazard arrangement becomes solid, requires commitment. Relationship intensifies—nothing occurs halfway. You have more responsibility and greater chance for success. Capricorn and another Cancer native play outstanding roles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Superior makes room for you at top—key is to focus on essentials. Accent on reputation, special honors, civic activities and standing in the community. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently—and so does the number 9.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with publication, communication, adding to knowledge and overcoming language barriers. Highlight independence, originality, willingness to take a chance on own capabilities. Get to heart of matters, define aspirations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Intuitive intellect provides resolution to dilemma. You gain access to information which can be transformed into profit. Spotlight on money as it affects partner or mate. One who aided you in past makes reappearance—don't permit pride to block progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid becoming enmeshed in endless details. Instead, perceive picture as a whole. Look beyond the immediate, get pulse of public. Avoid direct confrontations, play waiting game. Locate special legal document.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check routine procedures. Improve safety arrangements. Accent on service, pets, dependents and ability to break free from restrictions. Be willing to revise, review and to build on a more solid base. Message will be clarified.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Imprint style, apply personal creative touch. Accent on intensified relationship, speculation, getting point across in graphic manner. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure prominently. What seemed a lost cause is revived and you are revitalized as result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spotlight on homebase, completing major transaction and utilizing lessons learned in recent past. Redecorate, make purchase which aids in beautifying surroundings. Taurus, Scorpio natives figure in scenario. Be diplomatic in "family situation."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Forces tend to be scattered—know it and don't spread efforts too thin. Define terms, perceive potential, be receptive to suggestion by relative in transit. You will have rare opportunity to obtain story behind the story.

IF NOVEMBER 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are romantic, versatile, much aware of body image and fond of travel. Your sense of humor is highly-developed, and you are skilled at tickling "funny-bone" of others.

"Remember that teaser about dividing a big number, Dad?" Steve asked. "I've got another one with this serial number."

Tom looked. "Sure. It had me beat," he replied. Now you've got an 8-digit number, so what's the gimmick?"

"It's a good one," the boy replied. "To divide by 68 you just add one, and then take away the first pair of digits."

As simple as that! What was Steve's number? Thanks for an idea to P. C. Mehta, Toronto, Ontario.

Out-of-towners grilled

Some of the aldermanic candidates in the Victoria civic election Nov. 17 were tackled head on Thursday night over the fact they don't live in the city.

And they replied with passionate professions of commitment to the city.

The 12 candidates at the all-candidates meeting in James Bay were asked where they lived.

Five said their homes aren't in Victoria, while four other candidates — incumbent Ald. Bob Wright, Patrick Skillings, Frank Carson and Ken Sinclair, who are all Oak Bay residents — were not at the meeting.

"I'm one of those Oak Bay residents," confessed John Shields, president of the Victoria Labor Council who lives on King George Terrace on Gonzales Hill.

"I live in Oak Bay but I spend eight, nine, 10 hours of my day in Fernwood."

Shields is a social worker with the human resources ministry's Fernwood office.

"Then I go over to the labor council. It may be 10 p.m. before I get home. I feel my commitment is to the city. I feel my energy is committed to the city."

Your ideas and energy are more important than what side of the street you live, he added.

E&N brakeman John Cooper, who lives on Townley in north Oak Bay, said he's lived and worked in Victoria before, and lived in Esquimalt once.

"I have no inferiority complex whatever just because I live on the other side of some imaginary line."

He is a third-generation Victorian and considered his work as chairman of the Save the E&N Committee of benefit not only to the city but all of Vancouver Island.

Bus driver Gentry Hudson, a View Royal resident, said "just because I live beyond the fringe, as some people would put it, doesn't mean I'm not concerned about your problems."

Interest rates to drive up rents in '80?

Apartment dwellers can expect to pay more rent in 1980 if current high interest rates persist, says a spokesman for the Rental Housing Council of B.C.

Jack Hayes, council executive director, said Thursday in Vancouver that apartment owners whose mortgages are coming up for renewal are facing interest rates of 15 per cent and more, compared with the old rates of nine or 10 per cent.

The new high interest rates will also cause a slowdown in building new apartments, he added.

About 3,000 people attended the Royal Oak, Mich., funeral of Canadian-born Rev. Charles Coughlin, the conservative Roman Catholic priest who chastized popes, presidents and communists alike in Depression-era radio broadcasts heard across North America. Coughlin died at his Bloomfield Hills home four days after his 88th birthday.

Prince Andrew was among several Royal Navy cadets, some disguised as priests or nuns, who staged a beer-smuggling contest that provoked a complaint to the British defence ministry. Ian Greenlees, town councillor of Buckland, said that he was lodging the complaint because the group's extracurricular activity in his village was "offensive and irresponsible."

Walking Elk Shadow has turned to the American Civil Liberties Union in a bid to save his scalp. He says he's a full-blooded Indian — that a haircut would violate his religious beliefs. Trouble is, he's also a parole violator at Columbus Correctional Facility and Ohio prison officials take a dim view of flowing locks. The ACLU says the mandatory prison haircut would violate Walking Elk Shadow's First Amendment rights, and a temporary restraining order holding back the shears has been issued.

Mother Teresa, the nun revered as India's "saint of the slums," said in Calcutta she has had no peace since winning the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize and will retreat from the world for a month of silence before travelling to Oslo to accept her $193,000 award. "There has been no peace," the Yugoslav-born nun said.

It pays to do your homework. Witness Amy Carter, who has been studying Canada in school. Her mother was so impressed when she rattled off statistics about Ottawa and the Canadian people, she decided a field trip was in order. As a result, Amy will accompany Jimmy Carter and first lady Rosalynn Carter when they come here next week.

Being banned in Boston is an injustice, says Muhammad Ali, former world heavyweight boxing champion and fledgling actor. WBZ-TV, the NBC affilitate in Boston, refused to show Freedom Road, a two-part movie starring Ali, in his television debut, as a freed slave who becomes a U.S. senator and dies in a Ku Klux Klan massacre.

Dear Abby:

After my parents' divorce, my mother left town, and at the age of two I was adopted by my mother's sister and her husband, who were in truth my aunt and uncle. They were the only parents I have ever known, but I always knew that I had been adopted.

I didn't hear from my 'real' mother until shortly before my marriage, when she moved back to the city where I lived.

Since my 'real' mother had reunited with her family, she was invited to my wedding. When it came time to introduce everybody, to save a lot of explanations, I introduced her as my mother and my adoptive mother as my aunt because, technically, that's what they both were to me, right?

My adoptive mother was so hurt that she hasn't spoken to me since.

How should I have handled this whole mess?

Guilty

Dear Guilty:

You should have introduced your adoptive mother as your mother because (a) legally she is your mother and (b) she earned that name when she adopted you!

And you should have introduced your 'real' mother as your aunt or your mother's sister, because (a) legally that is what she is and (b) when she gave you up for adoption, she also gave up her right to be called your mother.

Dear Abby:

My mother and mother-in-law were here today singing the same song: 'Shame on you. How can you raise one child alone? Tammy should have a little brother or sister. You'll be sorry.'

How can we get them off our backs once and for all? Or do you think we are being unfair to Tammy?

Hassled

Dear Hassled:

You can get them off your backs by stiffening your spines and reminding them (respectfully) that you are adults now and capable of making your own decisions. And there is nothing 'unfair' about raising one child.

Dear Abby:

How do you feel about telling a woman that she has a run in her stocking or her slip is showing? Or telling a man his zipper is open or he has a button missing?

Mixed Feelings

Dear Mixed:

To tell a woman that her slip is showing, or a man that his zipper needs zipping, is a kindness since they are able to do something about it. But pointing out a missing button or a run in one's stocking is another matter. Nothing can be done about it; perhaps the person was already aware of it and hoped it wouldn't be noticed.

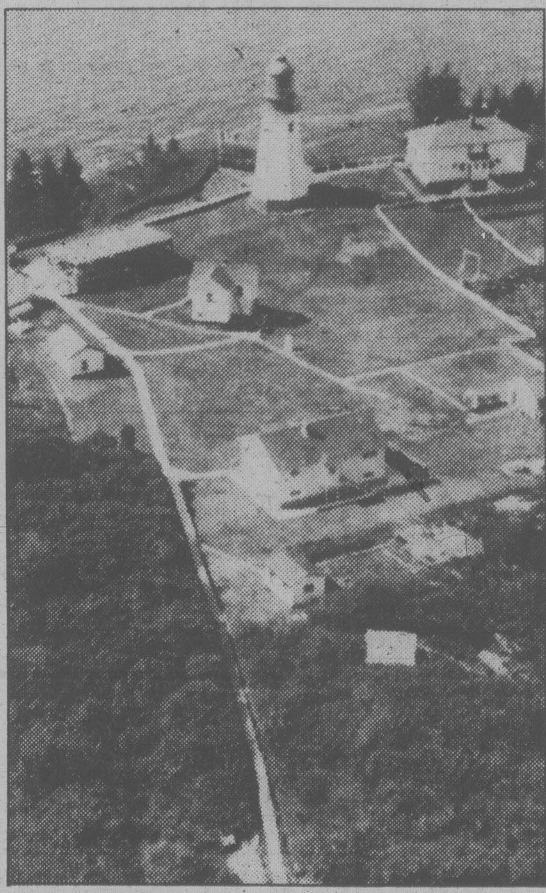
Trial Island light station off Oak Bay looks a trifle forlorn as wind-whipped November chill takes hold

Light keeping can be heavy



Pachena . . . no crowds here

By PAT DUFOUR

Looking out to Trial Island lighthouse off Oak Bay on a blustery November day brings to mind the rare breed of people who man such vital stations.

Bob and Peggy Nagel now man Trial Island, checking each day the light which shines continuously, sending out one flash every five seconds. Seven weather reports are sent out daily and in summer, when the island is tinder dry, an hourly firewatch is made during the dark hours.

Lonely as their life may appear to others, the Nagels live in comfort compared to those of their predecessors at Trial Island and other lightstations along our coast.

Take, as an example, Harold Okell who was the first lightkeeper at Trial Island. He and his wife Ada tended the light and fog alarm that was installed in 1906. Coal oil was used to fuel the light. The Okells were always on guard in case the coal oil vaporized and the wick corroded, causing the light to go out. That old light is the one on display outside the B.C. Maritime Museum in Bastion Square.

When the Okells had a baby they decided they had to keep a cow for the milk. Okell built a raft on the beach, tied the cow to the raft and rowed her over. At times the cow became lonely and the Okells were forced to rescue her as she tried to swim toward Little Trial Island.

Not even the cow would drink the water, brought from Victoria by government tender, because of the taste. It was toted in old whisky barrels.

Such problems as those of the Okells were commonplace among the breed of people who manned lightstations of the past. Yet to most, the light station remains an idylic image, since most of the sites are in fact the epitome of picturesque settings.

At Pachena, a typical light station on the Island's west coast, well manicured lawns and clean concrete walkways are the order of the day, and it appears the only thing lacking is thousands of milling people.

Letters in official files, however, bare witness that such occupations were for the hardy.

A letter from Ottawa in October 1890 refers to the keeper of the Brockton Point light in Vancouver, who had complained of having to sleep in the tower without a stove or fire of any kind. The frigid keeper was authorized to buy a small stove, costing not more than $5.

Another letter from Ottawa, this one written in February 1902, again refers to the Brockton Point keeper. This time his request for hot water connections to the bathroom at the lightstation was thumbed down. "Hot water in a bathroom is considered a luxury and if keepers desire luxuries they must pay for them themselves," the Victoria district agent was told. Ottawa noted that Brockton Point was the only station in Canada with a bathroom.

In 1912 the keeper of the Prospect Point station near the Lions Gate Bridge in Vancouver also wrote asking for help, this time for the men at the semaphore station. He informed the Victoria agent that they used to get water from the horse trough in Stanley Park but the supply had run out. The keeper complained the rain water tank was no more use than a birdcage because the water ran out as fast as it came in.

In July 1914 the keeper of the Eburne light on the north arm of the Fraser River was told by Victoria how to economize on the use of coal oil and wick. "There is no necessity to throw away the discarded wick end," the keeper was informed. "When using a fresh piece, splice the discarded piece on it. This will save considerable wick and you will find it in every way satisfactory if you are careful in sewing the two pieces together.

"By watching the light carefully, you will arrive at the exact height to turn the wick up where no charring will take place and an economical consumption of oil will be effected."

The installation of baths and hot water cisterns were becoming more acceptable by 1934 and in September the Victoria agent wrote Ottawa saying the keeper at Sisters Island off Parksville would do all the installing free of charge providing the department pay $65 for the bath, hot water cistern, piping and fixtures.

"The usual custom at stations where baths are installed is to place them in the kitchen and to cover them in such a way that they can be used as a settee when not used for their regular purpose," Ottawa was informed.

Compared to the old days, the Nagels and their modern-day counterparts live in luxury. But when the wind screams and the waves lash at their lonely stations their way of life still remains one for the challenged minority.

your health

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

Has there been any breakthrough in medication for extreme anxiety? Extreme pressures have been building up in me over the past three years. I lost my only child, a 34-year-old son, in a terrible accident. I know this caused all my troubles. It seems I just wasn't strong enough to cope with it. Valium doesn't help. I just can't relax.

Mrs. M.J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

Anxiety is a far-reaching, universal symptom that seems to flourish in this, man's most civilized, period. Attacks of anxiety may be transient during episodes of great stress, then disappear for long periods of time. Sometimes, anxiety becomes chronic and often disabling.

In most instances, it is possible to pinpoint a reason for the symptoms of anxiety. In other instances, there may not be any obvious reasons for the persistent distress of anxious feelings. Unfortunately, the painful experience of losing a child must leave its imprint on parents.

Charles Darwin made a remarkable observation when he said, "With all or almost all animals, even with birds, terror causes the body to tremble, the skin becomes pale, sweat breaks out and the hair bristles... breathing is hurried, the heart beats quickly, wildly and violently... utter prostration soon follows, and even fainting."

This is an excellent description of the incapacitating symptoms associated with bouts of anxiety. Man reacts in much the same way during periods of apprehension, stress, fear and anxiety. With bouts of anxiety often come periods of depression which add further to incapacitation and distress. When allowed to persist, the total happiness of the individual can be threatened.

There are dozens of drugs (Valium is but one of them) that can alleviate the symptoms of anxiety. In fact, there now is an enormous array of drugs, each one of which must be carefully evaluated and chosen for each specific person.

As you have discovered, drugs are not the total answer. Taking drugs for a long period of time and becoming dependent on them can have its own repercussions. One of the most important gifts you can give yourself is to find a psychiatrist, psychologist, trained social worker or religious counsellor with whom you can identify and talk out your repressed feelings of hurt, depression and anxiety.

Talking it out with someone in whom you have faith permits you to reveal the heartache you are suffering. You then can be taught to cope with the intensity of your deep-seated emotional pain. Mental health clinics, group therapy and meditation techniques are but a few of the avenues.

WATERCOLORS
By Egoyan

Since his last art showing at the Provincial Museum (almost 10 years ago) Egoyan did very little in art work. Recently, however, he has started again with a new approach and concept to the subject matter and technical expression. The theme now is "Scenes & Flowers" in watercolor — unlike the previous theme of "Birds" in oil painting. The new work is totally original and everyone is cordially invited to see the display at volunteering

Variety is the key word at the Victoria Volunteer Bureau. Over 130 organizations list requests for volunteers with the Bureau, in fields as diverse as social service, education, recreation, health, mental health, corrections, culture and the environment. Weekdays, evenings and weekends, at locations throughout the Greater Victoria area, volunteers are working in offices, classrooms, hospitals and recreation centres, with children, older people and people with special needs.

Who needs you?

A high school in the Colwood/Langford area is seeking skilled mechanics to assist with a pre-apprenticeship program one morning a week. People who enjoy mechanics and tinkering with cars are also invited to assist with an afternoon course teaching students how to maintain their own vehicles.

A community family theatre group needs volunteers to help with a fund-raising drive. Volunteers could distribute pamphlets to homes and at evening theatre functions. Other volunteers would be involved in soliciting supporting funds from businesses in the area.

An adult soccer league is looking for a manager to organize, schedule and attend practices and games and to take care of equipment for the league. Practices are held at Braefoot Park.

A community fund-raising organization needs volunteers immediately to help write receipts and address envelopes for their campaign. Volunteers who could come at 8:30 a.m. would be especially welcome. This position would be a short-term one, lasting probably about one or two months.

A service providing meals to shut-in Victorians requires volunteers drivers as well as volunteers to take meals into the home and visit for a few minutes. Meals are delivered weekdays between 10 a.m. and 12 noon on routes throughout Victoria.

An elementary school in the James Bay area needs volunteers to help children on a one-to-one basis with reading or correcting exercises. Volunteers can also help in the school library, reading stories and assisting generally. Volunteers who would enjoy working with small groups can choose to help with music appreciation, cooking skills, gardening, going on field trips and directing plays.

Recreation centres in a number of areas throughout Greater Victoria provide babysitting services for parents taking courses. Volunteers are needed to babysit usually for two or three hours a week and benefits include free courses or passes to swimming or skating sessions.

An intermediate care residence for the elderly in the West Saanich area needs volunteers familiar with operation of cash registers and the calculation and balance of daily cash to work in their tuck shop with staff and residents. This position would involve 2 hours of time, once a week.

People are often amazed at the variety and scope of volunteer opportunities in Greater Victoria. Interested individuals are invited to contact the Victoria Volunteer Bureau at 386-2269 to find out more about the positions listed in today's column.

youth clinic

Dear Dr. Levine:

I am 18 and have a little problem. Every time I meet a guy, I fall in love. When I go on holidays I meet guys and fall in love again. I think I'm finally going crazy. I'm a pessimistic person because I just don't like myself. I don't know why. I've got a lot of friends, a good job, a roof over my head and I'm an easy-going person. I hope there is something you can do before I climb the wall.

Answer: You mention a couple of problems. One is that you fall "in love" with guys too easily. You also say you are pessimistic and don't like yourself. How you can be "easy-going" given these thoughts is mystifying.

You may well need to feel loved by a young man in order to convince you that you are worthwhile. Well, being in the throes of romantic love is an exhilarating feeling, but it loses its sparkle if it is repetitive and predictable. Even if it is lasting, feelings about yourself will become apparent to you in a short time.

I am more concerned that you learn to accept yourself, and feel that life is worthwhile even if no lover happens to be around. This can be done by group or individual psychotherapy, but I am not sure you need it. A concerted effort to get involved with the world, other people and interests, often does more. It depends on how much you suffer, how much you want to change, how hard you are prepared to work toward your goals.

Dear Mr. Vichert:

I am 16 and my boyfriend is 26. My friends and parents say the difference will interfere with our relationship. I care very much for him and we are very happy. Does the age make the difference or does the couple? I want people to butt out. Am I wrong to feel offended?

Answer: We all feel offended when someone comments on what we do, even though they may be right. Your relationship is important to you, but your friends probably want to protect you from being hurt and are offering advice they think is sound. Whether you believe what they say is for you to decide.

Since you have written a letter, you must have doubts if the relationship will work out. In order for a relationship to last, two people must care for each other, accept responsibility for decisions, share similar interests and have the relationship accepted by family and others important to each of you. An age difference is only one factor and it can work for or against, depending upon what each brings to the relationship. A person changes a lot between 16 and 26. I suggest you go slowly, listen to people but form your own opinions. If it develops into a relationship both of you want to continue, then you will know age has no bearing.

Dear Dr. Powell:

I think I might be pregnant. I'm only 14 and I'm terrified. The guy I was with was a one-night stand and I hardly ever see him. We got drunk in his car and were naked from the waist down, but we didn't have intercourse. I read somewhere that you can get pregnant if a sperm is released near the vagina. I haven't had my period for 35 days and my cycle is fairly regular. I don't know what to do. I can't talk to anyone but if you think I am pregnant, I'll have to tell my mom or girlfriend.

Answer; See your doctor or go to a clinic. A pregnancy test can be done when your period is about two weeks late, so it is too early yet to know for sure. Worry can upset your periods and this may be the reason for the delay.

It is possible but not likely you are preganant, since that usually entails having intercourse. make an appointment at a birth control clinic and talk to th counsellor there. They will listen and advise you and give you whatever help you need.

If you are pregnant, the doctor at the clinic will explain the choices available and refer you to an agency for help. If you decide to have the baby, or if you choose an abortion, they will help make the arrangements. In either case, your mother will have to give her consent.

If you are not pregnant, you also have choices to make — alone. Will you continue to place yourself in situations where you act irresponsibly? You have some serious thinking to do about what you want to do with your life, and about what is important to you. Your guidance teacher can help you sort out your values and beliefs.

Dear Dr. Cotter:

I am a 15-year-old girl and have been deeply in love with a guy the same age for several years. He has asked me to make love many times but each time I said no, because I'm too scared. I have told him I love him, but he has never told me he says he really likes me but any guy could say that.

After thinking this over, I have decided I want him to be the "first guy." But I'm not sure if I should I'm afraid if someone doesn't give me an idea what to do, I might do something I'll regret. About four months ago I tried suicide because of him.

Answer: You have answered your own question. First, if he does not love you, he has no business making love with you. Second you say you are deeply in love with him, and yet you talk about him being the "first" guy. Will there be a lot of others if he is the one you love? Third, you have been sufficiently upset to try suicide over this guy, and yet you are prepared to risk pregnancy, infection, disappointment and more destructive emotions in order to do something for someone who doesn't love you.

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel including Marion Powell, physician; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and social worker Bruce Vichert.

Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria V8W 2N4. Readers wishing to talk with someone about their problems can call NEED at 386-6233.

what's in store

Viewer beware

By JOAN WATSON

One complaint I hear frequently from readers and viewers is that products they buy while travelling in the U.S. are different from those same products they purchase in Canada.

The product has the same name, and is made by the parent company of the Canadian manufacturer. The packaging and labelling are so alike that the consumer wouldn't guess there was any difference at all.

A similar complaint is heard from Canadians who watch U.S. television. They see products advertised, then try to find them on Canadian shelves. Surprise. They can't always find them. Or if they do, they aren't exactly what they expected.

A Marketplace viewer complained that the shampoo she bought in the U.S. was thicker and darker in color than the Canadian product. She wondered if the manufacturer was watering the product for sale north of the border.

The company confided that their market surveys had shown that Americans preferred thicker shampoos, so a thickening agent was added. Canadian customers, howdver, showed no such preference, so no thickener was added.

That shampoo is advertised in both countries, and no mention is made of the difference. The claims are the same. A spokesman assured us that the two products cleaned equally well.

A reader found differences in packaging. The Crest toothpaste he bought in New York was cheaper, and came in a larger size than the Canadian version. Proctor and Gamble spokesman Barry Pipes says the difference in size is due to the Canadian requirements for metric packaging. Toothpaste was one of the first products to "go metdic", in 1972.

The American toothpaste must list the active ingredients on the label. Canadian brands must go one step further and identify the proportion of that ingredient.

Our New York shopper also discovered a discrepancy in what he thought was the same brand of bathroom tissue. Scott Paper Limited makes several brands that aren't available in the U.S., and the parent company makes some you can't buy in this country.

The "Scottissue" brand is available in the U.S. and the western provinces of Canada. But the name is the only similarity. The sheets are a different size, and the American brand has more sheets to the roll.

A Scott spokesman pointed out that, though the American company is a parent to Scott Paper Limited, their only practical connection is in research and development. The product quality and quantity are often very different.

The Colgate-Palmolive Company acknoledges that the formula for "Irish Spring" soap is different in Canada than in the U.S. Spokesman Ronald Bonner wouldn't elaborate on the difference, but he doesn't believe it would be noticeable. He pointed out that the differences in climate can be an influencing factor.

"If we have a box car load sitting on a side rail in Whitehorse for a few days, it has to withstand very cold temperatures. They don't have to deal with those kinds of temperatures in the U.S."

We also have harder water here, he claimed, and they attempt to compensate for this in the soap formulas.

The television ads for "Irish Spring" have featured the same characters in both countries, making them seem to be alike. But the words are actually different.

For whatever reasons, the products are different, and so are the prices.

But Canadians watching American television very likely do not realize that the ad can be a product quite different from the one they subsequently buy. That can lead to disappointment.

It would be nice to know what other products fall into this category, and what the differences are, before we buy.

U.S. television has an effect on many Canadians. Sometimes it seems we watch so many American shows we learn more about their legal system than our own. We assume, because the picture of life is so similar to ours, that the rights and regulations that apply to these U.S. characters also apply to us.

Of course that is not the case. Canadian laws are usually similar to those in the U.S., but differe in important details. For example, saccharin has been banned in Canada, but not in the U.S.

Under the Canadian Broadcast Act, advertisements for good, drugs, cosmetics and medical devices must be approved by the Health Protection Branch of the Department of Consumer and Corporate affairs prior to broadcast. That rule does not apply in the U.S.

Our consumer protection laws are quite different. U.S. agencies can force a recall of faulty automobiles. Transport Canada can only recommend such action.

If a toaster consistenly blows up, injuring users, the American company will likely face a recall order. Stock will be taken from store shelves, and the company might be required to make repairs to those alrady sold.

In Canada, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs has no such power. Under Hazardous Products legislation, they can order unsafe products off the store shelves. But once the product has been sold, no one can order that repairs be offered to consumers with faulty machines.

Vass looking more like cosmonaut than radio freak

'Ear 'ear, Jerry!

HAMILTON (CP) — Jerry Vass's ears are burning and it's all for the record.

Vass, 19, who has been walking city streets for the last 13 days with a radio in his hand and earphones taped to his head, wants to get into the Guinness Book of World Records for listening to a radio.

He broke the 250-hour record unofficially this week but said that was just practice. He plans to do it again, with witnesses, next month when he'll try to double the record.

Vass said he got the idea when he saw a picture of the reigning radio-listening champion posted in a downtown mall and knew he could beat it.

After all that listening to a local rock station, he said his ears were a bit sore but he had become used to it.

"The tape and headphones bothered me a bit at first, but I just ignore it now. People at first think I've been in a car accident or something, then they just laugh."

Dear Mike: I own a 1970 Mustang with the high-compression Cleveland 351 V-8. This engine pings even on premium gasoline. I realize that today's premium is lower in octane than it used to be. I've retarded the ignition and am using extra-thick head gaskets, but these haven't helped much. Aviation fuel isn't available to me. I've heard that a mixture of leaded and unleaded gasolines can raise the octane ratings of both. Do you know anything about this? What's the exact mixture supposed to be? — Hi Compression.

Dear Hi: For some reason that I don't understand, mixing leaded premium with premium unleaded does seem to raise the total octane rating. The mix is 50/50. Be sure you use top-rated grades of both fuels. Note that it's the premium unleaded that you need.

Dear Mike: My 1970 Nova has conventional brakes, not discs. Last spring, I had the brakes overhauled. Ever since then, there's been a loud howl when I step on the brakes while backing up. the mechanic couldn't find anything wrong and says the noise will go away, but it's been several months now with no improvement. Any suggestions? — Howler.

Dear Howler: You should hear a loud click when you apply your brakes in reverse. The clock indicates that the self-adjusters are working. Your howl is probably a resonance set up by the brake shoes dragging against the drums. As an aside, self-energizing brake systems like the Nova's tend to push the shoes away from the drums in reverse. That's why you often notice having to push harder on the pedal while backing up than going forward. At any rate, I don't feel the howl is anything to worry about.

Normalcy to Canucks is buying a false nose

TORONTO (CP) — Some people are interested in false noses. Others are dedicated to the study of Hobbits, Robin Hood or Sherlock Holmes.

It seems that no matter what your particular — or peculiar — interest, there is a club, society or organization — with real officers, meetings and the like — that is of the same mind.

Here are just a few:

The Canadian False Nose Society

Here we have the philosophy that false noses designate the central image of the Great Canadian Identity Crisis.

The club encourages the wearing of false noses and also does historical and sociological research to back its claim.

It was founded on the basis that if a Canadian enters a novelty shop, he inevitably will buy a false nose.

"This country is so normal it's grotesque," sans Andrew Dowler, spokesman for the Toronto chapter. "A false nose is both conspicuous and subtle. It's both a symbol and reality.

"A Canadian can put on his false nose anywhere and it tends to heighten his expression of alert boredom. And, true to Canadian character, hardly anyone will notice."

The Fantasy, Folklore, Mythology Discussion Group

This club attracts people who have invented a new language, have a penchant for re-creating people and are fascinated with foreigners who don't exist.

Meetings are held once every three weeks to discuss such topics as the Lord of the Rings, the Land of Oz, Mesopotamian flood legends and Norse mythology.

The Bootmakers

Finding clues within the clues within Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes stories is the intent of The Bootmakers and several hundred other Sherlock Holmes literary societies around the world.

Thus, it isn't surprising that this club has Eric Silk, former head of the Ontario Provincial Police, as a founding member.

Members are trying to determine just who Holmes and Dr. Watson may have really been — man, woman, animal, vegetable or mineral. Hmm.

The group gets together six times a year, dines at Toronto's Sherlock's restaurant and exchange views.

In London, The Baker Street Irregulars get together once a year to celebrate Holmes' birthday. However, it is by inviation only.

The Canadian Count Dracula Society

This club is for enthusiasts of Gothic literature and fantasy horror stories who convene to discuss the morals they've discovered in such writings.

The society was started by Maclean's assistant managing editor Alan Walker, who needed a Canadian angle for a story he was writing on Dracula.

"Interest in horror moves in cycles," says current group leader Captain George Henderson. "And it's really popular right now. The club is for anyone who enjoys fantasy horror and pop culture."

Order of the Golden Horde Feasting Society

This group is dedicated to recreating those long lost days when people would devour tons of food en masse.

Unfortunately, economics has made an army of chiefs impossible in modern times, so The Golden Horde recreates the great meals of history itself — lovingly and painstakingly.

One example is a Russian dish that takes four pounds of salmon, enveloped in rice, crepes, mushrooms, flavored with several different wines and spices and baked in a pastry log.

Two members work on it for eight hours.

Whole roast sheep is not uncommon fare to the society.

Tom O'Rourke, who is Dr. Justin Marler on Guiding Light, heads for a talk show in Pittsburgh this week.

The battle between Leslie and Lucas over baby Brook's real father continues on "The Young and the Restless." Also, Suzanne and Jill play out their fencing game over Derek.

Lucille devises a diabolical plan against Ben on Guiding Light. Meanwhile, Delia is once again getting in over her head.

Donna's insecurities about Tara surface again on All My Children. Big news is in the newspaper headlines while Ruth and Joe get her pregnancy test results.

Will is badly shaken by circumstances involving his children on One Life to Live. Jenny stands up to Brad and Pat is confused by Maggie's actions.

The movie production is marked by a deadly event on "Edge of Night," and Margo's interference puts April in the middle.

Hotel owner told to 'take his licks'

The owner of the Strathcona Hotel was told Thursday he can "take his licks" as council's fire prevention committee refused to alter an August agreement on a series of fire safety improvements.

Hotel president Keith Olson wrote to city manager Jim Bramley last month saying the Strathcona was willing to put in sprinklers, but wished to appeal the requirement for seven other items.

Mayor Mike Young said Olson's letter came after another representative of the hotel agreed to all the work.

"This is a letter saying we don't like what we agreed with then. The owner is in the position of an applicant and he isn't even here. I suggest we tell him to go on with the job and he can take his licks."

Conservatory loses tax-exemption bid

Twenty-one churches, charities and non-profit organizations have been granted 1980 property tax exemptions totalling more than $250,000 by Victoria city council's finance committee.

They range from the foundation which operates the McPherson theatre ($41,128.20 taxes this year) to Goodwill Enterprises ($32,727.22) and the YMCA ($66,310.39), the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria ($17,089.30) and the Truth Centre on Fort ($18,405.70).

But aldermen balked Thursday at providing exemptions to several other non-profit groups.

The Victoria Conservatory of Music, which had asked for an exemption on taxes of $22,386.15 on its new quarters in the St. Ann's Academy annex, was one of those turned down.

There is no authority under the Municipal Act, said finance committee chairman Murray Glazier. Section 328 allows exemptions for property owned by athletic or recreational organizations, charitable groups, agricultural or cultural organizations.

Golf course, cemeteries, hospitals, senior citizens' homes and community care facilities are also exempted, as are historic buildings.

Open Space, the former warehouse turned gallery and exhibition hall in the 500-block Fort, was also denied an exemption. The Victoria Theatre Guild, which operates the Langham Court theatre off Rockland, was given a property tax exemption for the first time.

Tthe R.E.A.D. Society, which tutors people with learning problems and those who are illiterate, was also refused an exemption for property taxes of $2,110.31 on its house at 720 Linden.

Ald. Bill McElroy said reading is the whole basis of learning and READ provides help in an area "in which the school board is very negligent.

"This is one group which is providing in its own quiet way an extremely valuable service to the city."

The committee voted against the proposal, however, stating that this was a function which ought to be paid for by the province and the school board.

Commerce given city nod

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce will again get the city of Victoria's business next Jan. 1 if a recommendation from the finance committee is accepted by city council.

Aldermen learned the Commerce made the best offer of the five chartered banks submitting bids to act as Victoria's banker.

They accepted comptroller Mason Sheldrick's recommendation that the Commerce get the nod when the contract comes up for renewal.

The same bank displaced the Bank of Montreal, which had been the city's banker for decades, when Victoria first put its banking requirements out to tender in 1976.

If council endorses the committee decision, the Commerce will get a five-year contract starting the first of next year.

Six chartered banks and Westcoast Savings credit union had been asked to bid, but the Bank of B.C. and Westcoast did not respond. The four unsuccessful bidders were Toronto-Dominion, Bank of Montreal, Nova Scotia and the Royal.

Funeral Monday for ex-alderman

Funeral services will be held at McCall Bros. chapel Monday at 3:30 p.m. for former city alderman Cecil Parrott, 1066 Finlayson, who died in hospital Wednesday while having batteries in a heart pacemaker replaced. He was 90.

Born in Newfoundland, he came to Victoria and had a variety of jobs — teaching school, selling life insurance, working in a lumber company office and city building inspector — before retiring in 1956.

He was on council for almost 10 years in the 1960s, serving as chairman of the public works and traffic committees. He was also a police commmissioner.

He was chairman of the Masonic Service Guild and master of the Masonic Funeral Lodge.

He is survived by his widow, Daisy, daughter and son-in-law, Muriel and Glenn Short, Victoria; two sons and daughters-in-law, Harold and Rubymay, Sidney; Herbert and Adele, Coquitlam; daughter-in-law Florence, Toronto; brother Elfol, Cornerbrook, Nfld.; sister-in-law May Parrott, St. John's, Nfld; 14 grandchildren and eight grand-children.

Act now on new firehall: Young

Mothers and children may lose part of a James Bay playground but there is an urgent need for a new firehall in the vicinity of Michigan and Douglas, the city's fire prevention committee was told Thursday.

After Chief Eric Simmons went over the department's 10-year struggle to get money and property for a new James Bay firehall, Mayor Mike Young said the time has come for council to make a strong commitment to the proposal.

"After all we're talking about the health and safety of the public," said the mayor.

The city owns property on Michigan just south of South Park school, originally intended for school expansion, but which is used as a playground. It is not formally dedicated as a park.

Ald. Robin Blencoe questioned building a fire station there and evicting children from scarce green space.

Mayor Young said the city has lots of parks, and the Michigan site "is so patently obvious as a location" for a new firehall.

"Let's not say that every piece of land we own is sacrosanct," he said, adding that the firehall would use only half the property.

But the committee did not go beyond this expression of opinion.

Chairman Ald. Larry Ryan said the best place to discuss a new firehall would be the budget hearings in the spring, where the chief has for three years running made a plea for funds to build a new James Bay station.

Chief Simmons said the firefighters at the existing fire hall at Oswego and Superior did a great job in containing the recent McQuade's warehouse fire, calling in every available piece of equipment in the city while they were en route to the fire.

But he said a new firehall would have been able to send a ladder truck as soon as the alarm was received along with the pumper.

Juvenile crime statistics drop

Crime is down in Victoria this year and fewer juveniles are involved, according to statistics released this week by the city police department.

The statistics show that from January to September a total of 8,393 criminal offences were reported, down 671 from the same period last year.

The statistics also show that 33 per cent fewer juveniles were involved in the crimes this year over last.

The total number of juveniles charged to the end of September was 345, representing about a quarter of all persons charged.

Although the total number of break-ins for the nine-month period is down only slightly, from 1,501 to 1,476, the number has sharply declined in recent months.

During September 88 break-ins were reported. Last September there were 217.

Nearly half of all break-ins occurred during the first three months of the year.

Other property offences are also down. Auto thefts dropped to 387 from 429, thefts over $200 went from 414 to 403, and theft under $200, from 3,028 to 2,956. Frauds increased slightly from 718 to 729.

There have been fewer assaults (431 compared to 488) but sexual offences increased from 33 to 45.

The number of Criminal Code traffic offences is also down. To date last year 574 charges had been laid; this year, 499.

A downward trend has also appeared in the clearance rate — the yardstick used to measure police effectiveness in solving cases. Last year the force solved 31.2 per cent of its cases in the nine-month period. The rate this year is 28.4 per cent.

Japan's leaders flail in political morass

TOKYO (AP) — Japan skidded deeper into a political quagmire today as Premier Masayoshi Ohira and former premier Takeo Fukuda competed for control of the governing Liberal Democratic party and the government.

A scheduled session of the lower house of parliament was cancelled, and Fukada's supporters boycotted a party caucus aimed at resolving the dispute.

The standoff left the country without official leadership for the third day since Ohira and his 21-member cabinet resigned en masse in compliance with the constitution following elections Oct. 7.

Ohira and his cabinet remained in nominal charge as a caretaker government, but the 69-year-old premier continued to ignore demands by other party leaders, including Fukuda, to accept responsibility for the party's unexpected electoral setbacks and quit.

Ohira called the Oct. 7 election in a move to strengthen his party's one-vote edge in parliament. The move backfired when voters, rebelling against the prime minister's sales tax plan, left the Liberal Democratic party eight votes shy of a majority and needing help from independents to maintain control of the 511-member house.

On Thursday, anti-Ohira factions rallied behind Fukuda as their choice to replace the premier. They again called on Ohira to give up his party post and the premiership.

A showdown had been excpeted to come in today's caucus. But it fizzled when Fukuda's forces found themselves lacking the votes needed to oust Ohira and boycotted the session.

The development left open the possibility that when the lower house finally convenes — no date has been set — both Ohira and Fukuda might be nominated by their respective groups, with neither able to gain a majority.

Virus leak report denied

MOSCOW (AP) — A foreign ministry official has denied a British news magazine story that hundreds of people died last summer in an accident at a Siberian weapons plant.

"This is just a real invention. There are not and cannot be any grounds for such allegations," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

The British magazine NOW! reported thousands of persons in Novosibirsk, 3,200 kilometres east of Moscow, were in hospital after the accident.

SCHOOL DISTRICT 81
(Fort Nelson)
DIRECTOR OF INSTRUCTION
British Columbia's most northern school district requires effective January 1, 1980, a Director of Instruction. The School District is positive, dynamic, and developing. The Director works closely with the District Superintendent of Schools and the Fort Nelson Board of School Trustees. The Director carries out responsibilities as outlined in the Public Schools Act Regulations and is responsible for teacher recruitment, curriculum development, administration and supervision of programs and staff not directly assigned to a school, district evaluation programs, and the implementation and supervision of the special education program. Since the Superintendent has two districts to administer the Director will have to become familiar with the total operation of the District so that he/she can provide leadership when the Superintendent is absent from the District. Extensive benefits are available including housing in Fort Nelson.
Final date for applications is November 15, 1979. Applications with full supporting documentation should be sent to:

Mr. Garry Roth,
District Superintendent of Schools,
SCHOOL DISTRICT 81,
Box 87,
Fort Nelson, B.C.

SAVE MONEY!

In a market with high mortgage interest the secret is to find a well priced house with a good existing mortgage. You also save the cost of establishing a new mortgage. Example at $70,000.00 - 10½% mortgage saves $2,365.00 per year over a $70,000.00 - 14½% mortgage. I have 3 good homes with good mortgages as follows:

(1) OAK BAY SOUTH
Character home, leaded windows, built-ins etc., 2 bedrooms plus basement with some development. $89,000.00

(2) BROADMEAD NEW
Extra large property. Contemporary design. Parquet floor in fireplaced family room. 2 baths on main, 1 down. $119,900.00. MLS.

(3) WATERFRONT
Superb West Coast design, 2½ baths, private sun areas, 3 bedrooms and den. $187,500.00. MLS 39981.

Please phone for details on the above 3 homes.

Big Mac leaves Moscow mulish

MOSCOW (AP) — Big Mac addicts would do well to rethink their plans for visiting next summer's Moscow Olympics.

Western sources close to negotiations between McDonald's of Canada and Soviet authorities say the most recent round of talks has broken down.

The sources said Moscow Mayor Vladimir Promyslov has refused, for the time being at least, to grant the hamburger giant permission to open stands here during the 1980 Games.

McDonald's of Canada, a subsidiary of the U.S. fast-food chain, had nearly put together a deal when Promyslov stepped in and said no, the Western sources said.

A spokesman for the Moscow Olympic Organizing Committee confirmed today that talks between McDonald's and the committee had been unsuccessful.

Although she said they might still be resumed, Western sources said that "unless something is done soon, the deal would seem to be off."

They said a U.S. lawyer representing McDonald's of Canada left Moscow earlier this week after hearing the bad news from Promyslov.

The sources said the lawyer indicated he will return to Moscow soon for one last negotiating session, but the lawyer is not optimistic about his chances.

Promyslov's reported refusal wasn't a surprise. Last January the Soviet world affairs weekly New Times devoted a scathing article to the hamburger chain, charging the fast-food giant was making millions in profits from a "clearly poor-quality product."

Aside from charging the company with putting inferior quality food on the table, the article said McDonald's uses tough tactics to quash attempts among its employees to organize into unions.

Western sources said the hamburger chain had hoped to establish one or two portable restaurants in the vicinity of Moscow's Lenin stadium, where most of the major track and field events will be held.

Evidently McDonald's was unable to convince the mayor that eating could become a major problem for Western tourists. Moscow has nothing equivalent to a McDonald's and this means meals must be taken in proper Moscow restaurants.

Dinner or lunch can take hours and the service and food vary widely.

. . . And Big Z's shake puzzles

ALGIERS (AP) — Zbigniew Brzezinski, U.S. national security advisor, shook hands with Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, at a reception here, sources said.

There was no official confirmation of the handshake or any word if Brzezinski and Arafat spoke. What weight such a handshake would have also awaited evaluation.

Arafat arrived in Lisbon early today to take part in a world conference on Arab and Palestinian affairs and to meet with Portugese government officials. Brzezinski was still in Algeria.

In public Thursday, the day after the reported handshake, Brzezinski shared a reviewing stand with Arafat and other leaders of the radical Arab camp, including Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan leader Moammer Khadafy. There was no contact between Brzezinski and the others.

Brzezinski and Arafat were both here for Algeria's celebration of the 25th anniversary of its revolution against France. They stayed at the same hotel, but scheduled no formal meeting.

Last hunt for crew of burning vessels

Times News Services

GALVESTON — Little hope remains for 27 sailors missing after a fiery ship collision at the mouth of Galveston Bay, authorities said, but the U.S. Coast Guard ordered another major search today on the remote chance of finding some of them alive.

Four men were confirmed dead in Thursday's collision of the Greek freighter Mimosa and the Burmah Agate, a Liberian tanker loaded with oil. Another 30 men were rescued, 25 of them injured.

"The chances of there being other survivors is slim," Lt.-Cmdr. George Davis of the coast guard said late Thursday.

Because the accident happened outside the 4.8-kilometre territorial limit, the United States has no jurisdiction to investigate the cause, he added.

Meanwhile, coast guard vessels today poured water on the sinking but still-burning and potentially explosive hulk of the 253-metre tanker.

The flaming oil that poured from an 18-metre-long gash in the tanker's side went out overnight. However, another fire still burned today on the main deck and oil still leaked from the stricken vessel, listing disabled some 10 kilometres outside the pass that leads to the Houston Ship Channel.

An oilslick roughly 11 km long and five km wide was created before nightfall at the crash site Thursday, and officials feared a major pollution problem.

The freighter, abandoned and aflame, its engines running and its rudder stuck, circled eerily for 7½ hours Thursday amid oil drilling platforms 6 km off Galveston Island. The crew of the closest rig, located about 460 metres from the collision site, was evacuated.

Tugboats chased the freighter and snagged its propellers with heavy metal cables, finally bringing it under control in the early afternoon.

The Coast Guard closed the area to ship traffic until noon, idling the 80-km ship channel connecting the Gulf of Mexico with the nation's third busiest port.

Ore carrier missing in S. Atlantic

OSLO (Reuter) — A Norwegian iron ore carrier with 40 crew members aboard is missing off South Africa.

The missing ship is the 71,207-ton Berge Vanga, whose sister ship, the Berge Istra, sank without trace after a series of mystery explosions in the western Pacific in December, 1975.

The ship's owners, the Sig Bergesen Co., said the Berge Vanga was last in radio contact on Monday during a voyage from Brazil to Japan.

After the owners were unable to make radio contact Thursday night, the ship was reported missing to South African maritime authorities.

The Berge Vanga was to have passed the Cape of Good Hope today, and a company spokesman said the ship's estimated position would have been just off the southwestern coast of South Africa.

Bolivia's new president declares state of siege

Times News Services

LA PAZ — Bolivia's new military strongman, Col. Alberto Natusch, declared a state of siege, dissolved Congress and had himself named president only hours after leading a bloody coup and promising his countrymen political freedom.

The state of siege, which suspends all constitutional guarantees, was announced late Thursday and came amid rumors that a counter-coup would be attempted. Students, unions and major political parties oppose Natusch, denouncing him as a military dictator.

Students clashed with soldiers throughout the country Thursday after Natusch seized power from President Walter Guevara's civilian government. Guevara's regime was Bolivia's first democratically-elected government in a decade and took power only 11 weeks ago.

A variety of sources, including diplomatic missions, local radio stations and hospitals, reported at least five dead and at least 188 injured.

The Bolivian Congress immediately rejected Natusch as president and declared support for Guevara, who from a hiding place somewhere in La Paz, asked his countrymen to resist the Natusch rebels and reverse the coup.

The country's top labor leaders called for a 48-hour general strike of businesses and workers and declared opposition to Natusch, even though the 47-year-old colonel and former commandant of the military college got statements of support from major garrisons throughout the country.

But Gen. David Padilla, Guevara's army chief, urged the commanders to remain loyal to Guevara and then apparently went into hiding. A high-ranking army officer who still backs Guevara said many other officers also support the ousted civilian president.

Bolivia has a $3-billion foreign debt, a 25-per-cent rate of inflation, an overvalued peso and a foreign trade deficit of $350 million a year.

In Washington, the U.S state department expressed deep concern Thursday over the military coup and said the maintenance of democratic rule there is of "great importance."

Hold on, folks, another big bird is going to crash this weekend

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pegasus 2 satellite, a huge gleaming space bird, will plunge out of orbit this weekend, and even though some parts might strike earth, the U.S. space agency says it poses little danger to humans.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) reported Thursday the target time for re-entry is 11 p.m. EST Saturday, but said it may come down anytime 12 hours before that or 12 hours afterward.

At 23,000 pounds, the satellite is much lighter than the 77.5-ton Skylab space station that fell from orbit last July. Skylab showered flaming debris over the Indian Ocean and Western Australia, but caused no damage or injury.

Pegasus 2 was launched in 1965 and, once in orbit, unfolded two wing-like arms to a span of 32 metres, giving it the appearance of a giant bird. Thin aluminum patches on the wings were rigged electronically to measure meteoroid penetrations and the danger they might pose to manned spaceships.

The North American Air Defence Command in Colorado Springs, Colo., made the re-entry estimation based on tracking data which shows atmospheric friction had tugged the spacecraft to within 243 kilometres of earth. When launched, it ranged out to 736 kms.

NASA said computer projections indicate about 20,700 pounds of the satellite and its attached rocket stage should burn up from re-entry heat, and that about 2,300 pounds of materials might survive and reach earth after breaking into perhaps hundreds of small pieces.

"Such a breakup . . . has not in the history of space flight resulted in personal or property damage on earth," the agency said.

NASA estimated that as Pegasus 2 breaks up it will scatter fiery pieces over an area 2,400 kms long and 96 kms wide. The craft is circling the globe once every 89 minutes on a path that takes it 31.8 degrees north and 31.8 degrees south of the equator, with 75 per cent of the course over water.

In the Western Hemisphere, that course ranges from the extreme southern United States to southern Brazil.

Quake report delays probe

SEATTLE (AP) — Government hearings on Puget Sound Power and Light Co.'s proposed Skagit nuclear power project have been postponed indefinitely while evidence of possible earthquake faults in the area is studied.

The Atomic Safety and Licensing Board has agreed with a recommendation of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to postpone further hearings.

Meanwhile, the power company is backing a pronuclear campaign leading up to a vote next Tuesday with nearly $17,000 in cash and services.

County voters will cast ballots on whether they want the twin nuclear power plants built along the Skagit River, but the result will have no force in law.

The atomic commission called off the hearings saying more time was required to evaluate a recently-disclosed 1971 study that indicates there may be major faults in the area of the site planned for the Sedro Woolley plants. The proposed plants, which would be about 80 kilometres south of the Vancouver area, have caused some concern in Canada.

Commission lawyer Richard Black said within a couple of weeks, his agency and the U.S. Geological Survey will present Puget Power with questions about three studies of the San Juan Islands between Washington state and Vancouver Island and the Skagit Valley.

Puget Power's donations to the pro-nuclear group, called Neighbors for Protecting Tomorrow, makes up all but $500 of the money the group will use in its campaign.

Anti-nuclear spokesmen have accused the group of being a front for the power company.

Black-white business partners okay in S.A.

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South Africa's blacks are to be allowed to go into business partnerships with whites and to hold a majority of the shares in such ventures, says Piet Koornhof, minister for co-operation and development.

He told Afrikaans-speaking businessmen on Thursday of a government plan to draw blacks into the free enterprise system as a way of uniting them with whites against the threat of revolution.

At present, the law says that whites may not go into business with blacks, although a number of black businessmen already use whites as "front men."

Koornhof is a member of Premier Pieter Botha's five-man inner cabinet which is co-ordinating his total strategy for South Africa.

Addressing the Johannesburg Afrikaner Chamber of Commerce, Koornhof announced government approval for black-white business partnerships in which blacks would hold a 51 per cent share.

The government has also approved plans for a black-white partnership to build a large commercial business center in Soweto black township outside Johannesburg, he said.

An industrial complex will be established there under a private enterprise scheme involving blacks and whites. Similar complexes will later be established in other townships.

The townships, hotbeds of black unrest, have hitherto been regarded purely as dormitory suburbs of the white cities and lack their own industry and commerce.

Koornhof stressed that greater opportunity for black business would not become a political threat to the minority whites who rule and run South Africa.

"The important point is that the level of progress that could develop among blacks in a free enterprise system should be so advantageous that chaos and revolution would hold such risks that blacks would fight against it," he said.

IRA plot in L.A. denied

Times News Services

LOS ANGELES — A Los Angeles police department investigation is reported to show that the IRA did not have a plot to assassinate Princess Margaret during her visit there last month.

Earlier police reports of a possible IRA member stationed in Los Angeles to engineer an assassination were a result of "miscommunication" within the department, police Cmdr. William Booth said Thursday.

The department's metro division, responsible for the princess' motorcade and security arrangements, received unconfirmed police intelligence reports of an IRA suspect, Booth said.

Three days after the princess's departure, the metro division still didn't know that an assassination plot had been discounted.

In Dublin, meanwhile, Irish police have seized almost 200 guns and a large amount of ammunition during a raid on a foreign ship, police sources said today.

The sources said the arms, which included U.S. military rifles and revolvers, as well as some heavier weapons, were believed to have come from the United States.

Kissing bandit bus(s)ted

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The pistol-packing kissing bandit who stopped five women at gunpoint and forced them to kiss him has been arrested, police said Thursday.

Eb Simmons, 26, was picked up after several of the women looked at some photographs and pointed him out as the man who pulled a gun on them and demanded a kiss.

All of them were frightened but none was hurt.

Simmons was booked on three counts of aggravated assault and three counts of aggravated battery and held on $37,500 bond, the police spokesman said. A pistol was confiscated.

Officers also arrested a second man, accused of breaking into a home and kissing a woman. The woman bit his tongue and sent him fleeing. He was booked with aggravated burglary.

Women, blacks pad jobless level

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spurt of layoffs, mostly among women and blacks, pushed the U.S. unemployment rate back up to 6 per cent in October, the government reported today.

The labor department said the number of unemployed persons rose by 200,000 to 6.2 million from September. As a result, the U.S. jobless rate returned to the level reached in August following a drop to 5.8 per cent in September.

Earlier it was reported that U.S. wholesale prices had increased another one per cent in October, less than the September increase but enough to signal more tough going for inflation-weary consumers.

Gold price falls off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Treasury Department announced that 1.25 million ounces of gold were sold at an average price of $372.30 at its auction Thursday.

The price was $19.68 below the last month's record average price of $391.98 when 750,000 ounces of gold were sold. Thursday's government gold sale was the first under a new "flexible date" system designed to minimize commodity speculation.

Stitch doesn't save time

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Two prisoners of the Oregon state penitentiary at Salem, who escaped Tuesday after having themselves sewn inside a couch, have surrendered to police who surrounded their motel room in Tacoma, Portland police said. Sgt. Dan Noelle of the Portland police bureau said Delbert Fuston, 56, and Wayne Strickland, 49, surrendered Thursday without resisting.

Finishing off those fall jobs

With fair weather for the weekend, several clear-up jobs may be finished. While thinking about it now on Friday evening, make a list of what you wish had already been done. Then re-arrange in order of the most necessary first, tapering off to those which may just as well be done later.

Some garden jobs are a pleasure to do on crisp cold weekends, even after rainfall may have left bare soil sticky. One of these is clearing a section of ground where blackberry, snow berry, or other rampant growth has made a thicket.

If you get a permit for open-fire burning, much of the discarded material will be reduced to charcoal pieces and ashes in a short time. This is excellent stuff when scattered in vegetable growing areas for next year's crops.

You will find that when digging out blackberry and snowberry roots the soil is particularly friable and humusy. These two are known as soil improvers in places where they have grown for years.

Deep roots and plentiful leaf-fall break up the clay soil. Some of our garden plants do the same work if we give them the chance.

Jobs to tackle at once are the lifting of gladiolus corms and dahlia tubers for winter storage. Both will be spoiled in wet cold soil. Gladiolus corms are stored cleaned and dry; dahlia tubers need not even be washed and can be stored in a damp place that is cool.

Another job to get into if it appears on your list, is planting of spring flowering bulbs. The smallest — snowdrops, aconites, winter crocuses, scillas and triteleias — go in first because they dry out more quickly than larger bulbs. But the large ones also are harmed if left lying around in a warm place. Plant them too this weekend.

While you're at it, plant a couple of small containers with bulbs for friends who have balcony gardens or perhaps cannot do gardening of any kind.

New plants already bought but not yet put into the ground should have priority now. If growing in containers, remove, and gently press the root ball with the hands to partially loosen the roots which have reached the outside of the rootball against the container. If the ball seems tight, it may need loosening with hand fork without damaging roots.

This attention frees the roots from the old soil so they can begin foraging into the new soil you provide for them.

Even though everything seems damp, plants should be given water in the planting hole before completely filling in. One reason is to ensure a moist root system, the other reason is to drive out air which may be trapped between soil particles. There must be close contact between soil and roots before the roots will begin to extend into your garden soil.

And if you have been advised to use peatmoss for some of the new plantings, put the quantity needed into a wheelbarrow, garden cart or a five-gallon can, tonight, and begin mixing water into it with a garden fork. Stir, and stir, and go on stirring until it seems damp, then add more water and stir again in the morning. Only thus is it possible to be sure the peatmoss is suitable for use.

Cherry lover avenged

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A man who shot a young woman to death for picking cherries in his orchard has been sentenced to death by firing squad, the trade union newspaper Trud reported today.

N. Petrenko was found guilty of premeditated murder a court in the Ukrainian city of Zaporozhe.

Last June, he shot vacationing 18-year-old Svetlana Ostapenko with a double-barreled shotgun as she tried to pick cherries from his trees one night, the court was told.

Inflation hits China, prices up 30%

By BRYAN JOHNSON
The Globe and Mail

PEKING — After 30 years as an inflation-free society China caught the world's economic disease Thursday, boosting prices of eight basic food items an average of 30 per cent.

But unlike the creeping inflation of the West, which makes consumers wail and finance ministers cringe, the Chinese brand arrived with an almost triumphant flourish and fanfare. The price boost officials told the country is merely proof positive of a rising standard of living.

And as unlikely as it seems that propaganda line is more than half true.

The price increases are a direct result of a sharp rise in the level paid to the country's 800 million peasants for the food they produce. According to government estimates their income will increase by about seven billion yuan (approximately $5.5 billion).

Urban workers have been cushioned from the price crunch by a monthly food bonus of five yuan which at least theoretically, represents one third of their food budget.

Then too, the controversial "incentive" raises which were rumored last week became officially fact Thursday. An announcement said that "40 per cent of the country's workers on a monthly wage will have pay raises before the end of the year."

But, as one Western economic expert put it this week "inflation is inflation and the Chinese are going to have some problems with this down the road a ways. Part of the jump really does reflect a growth in their economy but this is a lot of money and their growth isn't all that dramatic."

The official announcement refers to the eight boosted items as "non-staple" foods. But they look rather staple to a Westerner: eggs, poultry, milk, fish, pork, beef, mutton and vegetables. Most of these are being raised 33 per cent, but "poultry and milk prices will be readjusted appropriately in line with local circumstances and vegetable prices are to be maintained or raised as little as possible."

The increases are by far the most dramatic in the 30-year history of Communist China. The propaganda line that there is "no inflation in China" has long been twinned with the claim that "there is no crime in China." The second is patently false but until now the inflation axiom has been largely true.

The current government, however, is under enormous pressure to raise the standard of living — and do it quickly. Their main claim to the country's allegiance is that, unlike the discredited "leftists" (ostensibly the Gang of Four, but actually Mao himself) they have the people's prosperity at heart.

They have sold themselves as men who will get things done. And they are therefore selling the new inflation as evidence of their economic achievements.

The boost in prices paid to the peasants was the key move, immediately insuring support from fully 80 per cent of the population. And once that policy began, in March, retail price increases seemed inevitable.

But the promise of raises to 40 per cent of China's 100 million salaried workers is a far more daring manoeuvre. Thursday's official notice made it clear this would be "merit" pay — an absolutely heretical anti-Maoist idea only three years ago.

Long-lost Leonardo mural may be found in Florence

NEW YORK (NYT) — After centuries of speculation on the part of art scholars and five years of on-the-spot detective work in Florence by university researchers, important clues have been found that may lead to a major art discovery.

When investigators have finished their work, they may have uncovered from a wall in Florence's Palazzo Vecchio a long-lost mural by Leonardo da Vinci, painted in 1505. The prime evidence so far is a series of test borings that indicate the presence of pigment similar to that mixed by the artist himself for two of his most famous paintings.

The lost Leonardo work is a battle scene believed to be under a fresco painted by Giorgio Vasari, the artist and art chronicler, in the middle of the 16th century.

Work on the project was described Thursday by two American researchers, John R. Spencer and H. Travers Newton, at a press conference at Duke University in Durham, N.C. The two researchers have also published their findings in the November issue of Prospettiva, an Italian cultural magazine.

Another discovery, made through the use of such sophisticated techniques as infrared and ultrasonic reflectography, is a dense plaster layer behind the Vasari fresco that could have been used as an earlier painting surface. The layer is found on the west wall of the palazzo's vast council chamber, a wall that scholars had not considered as a possible site for the misplaced Leonardo.

Florentine officials said they had "good hopes" of finding the Leonardo. But U.S. scholars aware of the project are cautious in their predictions.

Leonardo began the painting in 1505 as part of a large mural officially commissioned to commemorate the Battle of Anghiari in 1440, at which Florentine and papal forces scored an important victory over the Milanese.

In 1976, a team went to Florence with ultrasonic equipment to investigate the east wall — the presumed Leonardo wall — of the council chamber. Newton, a student of Pedretti, was among those assisting with the project.

Customers get $220M rebate from oil firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — An oil company has agreed to repay $220 million of alleged overcharges to its customers and will reduce the price of heating oil by 3 cents a gallon, the energy department said Thursday.

Paul Bloom, department special counsel, said that Cities Service Co. agreed to make cash refunds, reduce fuel oil prices and forego possible price increases in a settlement of almost all overcharges alleged by the department.

The oil company has denied overcharging its customers and the agreement does not resolve the legal question of whether the company violated federal pricing rules.

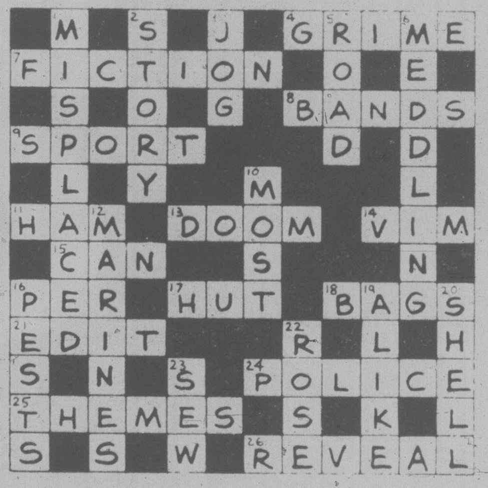
Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES ACROSS

4. GRIME not crime. Crime in general is combated (hardly eradicated) by a great variety of means than the clue's phrase "a certain choice" suggests.
7. FICTION not diction. One allows license to novelists, etc. (whose FICTION one is entitled to criticize), but one simply expects or thinks nothing of the oddities of people's diction.
9. SPORT not spurt. A spurt is itself a sudden effort, rather than that "in which" a sudden strain can occur. "SPORT" tends to embrace spurt, anyway.
11. HAM not jam. The clue's concern with tastiness links up with something savory, in the manner of HAM, rather than sweet.
13. DOOM not boom. In usage, "imminent" is applied to unpleasant occurrences rather than welcome happenings.
14. VIM not aim. Such a person doesn't so much require an aim, as such, as the ability to aim accurately. A degree of VIM, or energy is needed, of course.
15. CAN not cap or car. The idea of opening a CAN is perfectly apt. A cap (snap-on cover) is the sort of thing one wants to get off, rather than "open" in itself. Against car, it's more a question of getting a car door open.
17. HUT not hat. The idea of withstanding blizzards links up better with a HUT. A hat is suitable or unsuitable for the cold, say.
24. POLICE not polite. You have a "reasonable" entitlement to "expect" courtesy from the POLICE. Polite men simply are courteous ones.

CLUES DOWN

1. MISPLACED not displaced. Where there is a proper place for everything, nothing should ever be MISPLACED; but that is not to say that nothing should ever by displaced or moved at all.
2. STORY not storm. "Storm" is the sort of word applied to a brief violent outburst, rather than to a long history in some matter.
3. JOG not job. JOB links up more convincingly with the clue's hint that here is a boy who needs prodding into action in one way or another. There is nothing characteristically stimulating in being given a job.
6. MEDDLING not muddling. Muddling is simply incompetence, perhaps in one's own affairs. MEDDLING in things one shouldn't is more typically "the sort of thing that causes resentment" in others.
10. MOST not post. The clue is a reasonable generalization, as applied to MOST. Why single out post offices specifically?
12. MARINES not mariner. The MARINES are connected with naval "warfare" from "way back." The mariner is bound up with all naval or shipping activity from the very beginning.
19. ALIKE not alive. "ALIKE" adds a certain point to the clue, in reflecting the sad fact that not all can be cured. To specify "alive" is comparatively empty.
22. ROSE not nose. "Perfume" (rather than simply smell as a general concept) links up more especially with ROSE.

By AL FORREST

VANCOUVER — Premier Bill Bennett drew a standing ovation from about 1,000 Socreds today with a sharp jibe at the media and its preoccupation with the "dirty tricks" affair.

Bennett told the party's annual convention the proper place to resolve the dirty tricks issue is not in the media but in the courts.

"In a democracy, trials are not carried out and conducted and the accused condemned in the media. God help democracy if that becomes the final court of the land."

The remark brought a roar of applause from the Socred delegates.

Bennett said a police investigation is underway and no one should be judged unless charges are laid.

Anyone who feels he has been accused unfairly also has recourse to the courts.

The premier divided his keynote speech almost evenly between campaign tactics and energy development.

On the question of energy, he sided in general terms with Alberta against Ontario.

On campaign tactics, he said: "I have not, nor will I ever, advocate improper tactics in order to achieve election."

He said all party members must measure up to high standards of honesty and fair play.

At the same time, he said, the party should not seek vengeance but should judge all of its members with understanding and compassion.

The premier said he was surprised to return from his recent Pacific Rim tour to find campaign tactics to be occupying the attention of the media.

He said he immediately accepted responsibility for whatever unfair tactics might have been used during the provincial election campaign.

The premier said development of energy resources would be the central theme of the next four years of his government.

He said ferry services will be expanded, highways extended and rail lines will be conducted to resources where economically feasible.

He said eastern Canada will learn that the real action is the West.

Meanwhile, one of the party's researcher who is a key figure in the dirty tricks scandal has been given a slap on the wrist and asked to report to work Monday morning.

Ellen MacKay will be given a reprimand for her part in the affair, told "not to do it again" but won't be

$18M story error

British Columbians would not have to pay anywhere near $18 million a day for Alberta oil if Canadian oil prices matched world prices.

Energy ministry economist Ted France said a news story by the United Press Canada news service, carried as the main story on the front page of Wednesday's Victoria Times, contained a "gross error".

France said the mistake did not originate from Energy Minister James Hewitt or any officials of the ministry but from a calculation error by a UPC legislative reporter.

The article, which appeared in the Times and other publications and was widely broadcast, quoted Hewitt as saying that B.C. would have to pay $18 million a day for imported oil if the price was set at world levels.

In actual fact, said France, the total payments would amount to only about $2.9 million a day.

He said B.C. consumes about 160,000 barrels of oil a day with 120,000 barrels being imported from Alberta.

The current price per barrel is $13.75 plus 50 cents for gathering and quality charges. The total cost per day in B.C. works out to about $1.7 million.

The world price is between $24 to $25 a barrel.

The Times regrets its failure to doublecheck the UPC story and apologizes to its readers and to Energy Minister Hewitt for publishing incorrect information.

Constables stop human torch

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Two city police officers talked for five tense minutes Thursday before making a desperate move which prevented a 21-year-old gas-soaked man from setting himself on fire early today in a coffee shop.

Constables Bob Stiff, 29, and Brian Tugwell, 30, managed to grab a lighter away from the man as he sat poised to flick it into flame.

"It was perhaps a stupid thing to do," Tugwell said. "But nothing else could have been done.

"I don't know whether the guy realized how close he came to finishing us all off. If he had lit that lighter everybody in the place would have gone up with him."

Patrol Inspector Les Mottershead said the man, whose name has not been released, went into the Gorge Mohawk self-service station, 510 Gorge East about 1.40 a.m., bought 83 cents worth of gasoline, then poured it over himself.

He said the gas soaked the man's head and saturated his down-filled green army parka.

After paying for the gas, the man calmly walked to Coffee Mac's in the next block and took a seat in a booth at the rear of the restaurant.

Alerted by a service station employee, the two officers arrived minutes later to find the man sitting in the booth with a butane lighter in his right hand.

His thumb was on the flint wheel and he kept murmuring to himself: "I'm going to do it . . . I'm going to do it."

As about two dozen patrons in the restaurant looked on with horror, Stiff and Tugwell approached the man and began talking to him.

The man refused and Stiff slipped into the booth beside him. Tugwell took a position on the other side of the table.

Tugwell said in an interview today he and Stiff continued talking for about five minutes, and when they realized they were getting nowhere, Stiff quietly slipped his arm around the man's back.

Stiff said he grabbed the man's hand and managed to push his thumb off the flint wheel.

Tugwell simultaneously lunged across the table.

"It was a close call," said Tugwell. "At one point Bob lost his grip but he quickly recovered."

Together they managed to get the lighter out of the man's hand.

The man has been admitted to Eric Martin Institute.

Clark rejects Quebec plan

OTTAWA (CP) - Prime Minister Clark said today the Parti Quebecois government's blueprint for independence is totally unacceptable, adding that he has "confidence in the good sense of Quebecers" that they will support federalism in the referendum next spring.

"As the leader of the national government, I naturally accept the responsibility to lead the development of a renewed federalism," Clark told reporters a day after the Quebec government published a white paper on sovereignty-association.

The document contains proposals which include:

— All powers now with the federal government would be transferred to Quebec;

— Quebec's national assembly would have exclusive power to make all laws and levy all taxes on Quebec territory like any independent state;

— Quebec would remain a member of NATO and NORAD and abide by St. Lawrence Seaway Treaty;

— All Canadians living in Quebec would have right to Quebec citizenship with a separate Quebec passport;

— Quebec would offer to negotiate with the rest of Canada maintenance of "the present Canadian economic entity;"

— Movement of people, goods and capital would remain and the Canadian dollar would be the common currency;

— An independent Quebec and the rest of Canada would set up four institutions to run the proposed economic community between them;

— The community would include a council, a commission of experts, a court of justice and a central monetary authority.

— The referendum on sovereignty-association will take place next May or June and the question will require a simple "yes" or "no" reply;

— There would be no unilateral declaration of independence immediately after the referendum;

— The Quebec government would guarantee old age pensions, family allowances, veterans' pensions and direct subsidies to farmers during a transition period;

— Job security is guaranteed for all federal civil servants residing in Quebec who join the Quebec civil service after independence.

Clark, who has been criticized by opposition party leaders for refusing to become aggressively involved in the campaign, said he does not see himself "as an emotional rallying point" in the referendum debate.

However, Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau could be an emotional rallying point because he is a Quebecer and a former prime minister who has improved the lot of French-Canadians, Clark suggested.

Trudeau responded to the white paper Thursday by calling it an attempt to mislead Quebecers into supporting separation from Canada.

PQ paper causes dollar dip

LONDON (Reuter) — The Canadian dollar tumbled on European foreign exchange markets today after news of Quebec independence moves and a fall in Canada's foreign currency reserves but later staged a partial recovery.

It fell as low as 84.10 U.S. cents compared with Thursday's London closing price of 84.47 U.S. cents.

It later recovered to around 84.29 U.S. cents as some commercial buying and apparent support by the Bank of Canada came into the market, dealers said.

At noon in Montreal, the dollar stood at 84.25 U.S. cents.

The Canadian finance department announced that Canada's foreign currency reserves fell $591.3 million in October to $3.92 billion.

Figures released today show official holdings of international currency re-

Military to get boost in pay

OTTAWA (CP) — Armed forces servicemen will get a two-stage pay raise covering the next 18 months, averaging 6.4 per cent retroactive to Oct. 1 and 5.4 per cent next April 1.

However, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said in a statement Friday that pay increases for generals and medical officers will be introduced when pay raises for comparable public service groups are approved.

The minister's announcement deals with one of two armed forces pay problems that have spread discontent among servicemen across the country recently.

Servicemen have complained about the delay in approving annual pay increases. And they have protested rent increases for married quarters on armed forces bases.

Under the new pay plan, a private will earn $608 a month after the April increase, up from $536 before the October pay boost.

A sergeant radar operator will receive $1,590 a month, a $180 monthly increase. A major pilot will get $2,775 monthly, a $225 raise.

Gangster killed in police ambush

PARIS (CP) — Jacques Mesrine, wanted in Canada for murder and armed robbery and the man regarded as France's Public Enemy No. 1, died today in a hail of police bullets, a girlfriend, two grenades and a French poodle at his side.

Mesrine, 42, after two bloody decades of murder, bank robbery, kidnapping, prison escapes and cunning humiliations of Canadian and French authorities, was gunned down in his grey BMW automobile in a meticulously prepared ambush staged by 80 police officers, including six sharpshooters.

Sylvia Jeanjacquot, 29, the suave, hard-bitten killer's latest girl-friend, was shot in the head and seriously wounded in the hail of 21 police bullets that hit the car.

Police sources said 18 bullets riddled Mesrine who did not have time to return police fire or use his grenades — although the pin on one grenade was partially pulled. The poodle also was killed.

One hour after Mesrine's car was cut off by six police vehicles, including a canvas-covered truck containing the marksmen, his body was still slumped over the steering wheel and throngs who had raced to the working-class Porte de Clignancourt neighborhood of northern Paris pressed up to the bullet-shattered windshield for a final look.

An accomplice of Mesrine was arrested three hours later in the police sweep co-ordinated by Police Chief Maurice Bouvier and woman detective Mirielle Balesrazzi, who had been assigned to lead the Mesrine manhunt.

The six sharpshooters hiding in the canvas-covered truck ended in a matter of seconds long months of fruitless searching for the notorious Mesrine — son of a bourgeois family, a graduate in architecture and a soldier decorated for his heroic exploits in the Algerian war.

Mesrine's long career in crime and his love for thumbing his nose at police made him a folk hero in France.

Between March, 1962, and 1967, he was sentenced in absentia to 4½ years in prison on three different charges.

Fleeing to Canada in 1969, he abducted industrialist Georges Delaurier and extracted a ransom of $200,000.

After a number of holdups in the United States, he was later accused of the murder of a Quebec hotel owner and two Quebec game wardens.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

We, the family, would like to use this means of thanking all those who showed their concern and sympathy during Cathie's sickness, and then her passing into the presence of her Saviour. We thank those who were able to attend the funeral service to show their last respects and for those who were with us in thought and prayer, who were not able to attend personally. We thank all who donated for the placement of Gideon Bibles and also through the Canadian Bible Society, and the Cancer Research Fund. We appreciated the services of McCall Bros. and Staff and for their kind and efficient help. — J. H. Collins and family

THE FAMILY OF THE LATE John A. Turner wish to thank their families and many friends for their loving support and kind expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement. The love that has surrounded us has been a great comfort to us all.
Win, Betty and Joanne.

Big Mac leaves Moscow mullish

MOSCOW (AP) — Big Mac addicts would do well to rethink their plans for visiting next summer's Moscow Olympics.

Western sources close to negotiations between McDonald's of Canada and Soviet authorities say the most recent round of talks has broken down.

The sources said Moscow Mayor Vladimir Promyslov has refused, for the time being at least, to grant the hamburger giant permission to open stands here during the 1980 Games.

McDonald's of Canada, a subsidiary of the U.S. fast-food chain, had nearly put together a deal when Promyslov stepped in and said no, the Western sources said.

A spokesman for the Moscow Olympic Organizing Committee confirmed today that talks between McDonald's and the committee had been unsuccessful.

Although she said they might still be resumed, Western sources said that "unless something is done soon, the deal would seem to be off."

They said a U.S. lawyer representing McDonald's of Canada left Moscow earlier this week after hearing the bad news from Promyslov.

The sources said the lawyer indicated he will return to Moscow soon for one last negotiating session, but the lawyer is not optimistic about his chances.

Promyslov's reported refusal wasn't a surprise. Last January the Soviet world affairs weekly New Times devoted a scathing article to the hamburger chain, charging the fast-food giant was making millions in profits from a "clearly poor-quality product."

Aside from charging the company with putting inferior quality food on the table, the article said McDonald's uses tough tactics to quash attempts among its employees to organize into unions.

Western sources said the hamburger chain had hoped to establish one or two portable restaurants in the vicinity of Moscow's Lenin stadium, where most of the major track and field events will be held.

Evidently McDonald's was unable to convince the mayor that eating could become a major problem for Western tourists. Moscow has nothing equivalent to a McDonald's and this means meals must be taken in proper Moscow restaurants.

Dinner or lunch can take hours and the service and food vary widely.

. . . And Big Z's shake puzzles

ALGIERS (AP) — Zbigniew Brzezinski, U.S. national security advisor, shook hands with Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, at a reception here, sources said.

There was no official confirmation of the handshake or any word if Brzezinski and Arafat spoke. What weight such a handshake would have also awaited evaluation.

Arafat arrived in Lisbon early today to take part in a world conference on Arab and Palestinian affairs and to meet with Portugese government officials. Brzezinski was still in Algeria.

In public Thursday, the day after the reported handshake, Brzezinski shared a reviewing stand with Arafat and other leaders of the radical Arab camp, including Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan leader Moammer Khadafy. There was no contact between Brzezinski and the others.

Brzezinski and Arafat were both here for Algeria's celebration of the 25th anniversary of its revolution against France. They stayed at the same hotel, but scheduled no formal meeting.

Cattle

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. today at the Calgary public stockyards of 4,000 head consisted of mostly feeder cattle and stock calves. There were very light receipts of slaughter cows trading fully steady to slightly higher from a good local demand.

Cows D1-2 48-50.50; D3-5 43-48.

Heavy receipts of feeder cattle and stock calves met a good demand from local, Eastern and U.S. buyers.

Good feeder steers and heifers traded active at prices up to $2 higher. Good stock calves sold steady with very few top quality kinds on offer to 11 a.m.

Good feeder heifers over 700 lbs. 75-79.40; common to medium over 500 lbs. 70-80.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market rose sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said shares of Bank Canadian National and The Provincial Bank of Canada were to be removed from the trading list at the close Friday and be replaced at the opening Monday with shares of National Bank of Canada, formed from the merger of the other two banks. The shares will be listed in the industrial category.

Shares of Carolin Mines Ltd. of Vancouver will be listed for the first time at the opening Tuesday in the mining category.

Vancouver

Computer problems halted transmission of the Vancouver Stock exchange noon report today, but early trading was active.

Volume at 7:39 a.m. PST was 252,759 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 37 advanced, 30 declined and 51 were unchanged.

In the industrials, B.C. Resources Investment Corp. was down .10 at $7 1-4 on 10,590 shares and Ardiem Industrial Corp. was unchanged at .21 on 2,000. Saratoga Processing was unchanged at $8 on 500 and Webb and Knapp Ltd. was steady at $2 on 200.

New York

Stock prices showed some scatterd gains today amid hopes for some letup in the recent tightening of credit by the Federal Reserve Board.

Late Thursday the Federal Reserve reported a $1.3 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week.

The figures brought some tentative signs of progress in the effort to slow monetary growth.

Citibank of New York today deferred action on raising its prime lending rate, although its formula called for an increase to 15½ from 15¼ per cent.

Chrysler rose ¼ to $8¼. On Thursday the Carter administration put its support behind a plan to provide the troubled company with $1.5 billion in loan guarantees.

London

The London stock market fell sharply near the close of trading today.

The Financial Times index was down 6.1 to 430.6.

Industrials, golds, oils and banks all declined.

Canadian shares firmed.

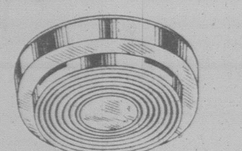
Invest in safe future for your family now



Installing a smoke detector is probably the most important home improvement you can make this fall, when you consider the safety of your family.

How much is the safety of your family worth?

Most folks would say you cannot put a price on it.

Which makes the few dollars spent on a pair of smoke detectors one of the best investments in home security you can make this year, or any other. They cost about $25 each.

Smoke detectors signal a warning of a fire which can provide the precious extra minutes or seconds needed for your family to flee to safety if suddenly awakened in the middle of the night.

There are some 1,650 home fires every day in North America. The total is costly, not just in property, but also in life. It is estimated that only about one of three existing residential dwellings are now protected by smoke detectors.

While two smoke detectors are normally adequate for most home situations, you may want to consider more, depending on the style of your home. In general, smoke detectors should be installed on every level of the house, so a tri-level, for example, could easily use three.

In multi-story homes, one detector should always be positioned at the top of the stairs, where it can detect smoke rising from the lower level. You'll also want one close enough to the bedrooms so you'll be ble to hear it, should it alarm at night.

Some detectors have a high-pitched, 85-decibel horn that is very difficult to sleep through. It is powered by a 9-volt battery which generally lasts up to a year. When the battery needs replacing, it beeps at regular intervals. They are simle to install, and the job can be completed in just a few minutes.

If you're making only one home improvement this fall, make sure it is the installation of smoke detectors.

ARCHITECTS ANSWER

Our porch needs replacing: should we talk to an architect ?

By RICHARD HUNTER

The porch of our 1920s home is rotting and needs to be replaced. We would like to tear it off and replace it with a deck and step arrangement. However, we think this would be too open to the street, and would like some screens or trellises incorporated for privacy. Is this a job for an architect?

Any job involving design or the environment is, potentially at least, a job for an architect. But in the modern world these subjects have become so complex that a growing fabric of professional and semi-professional specialists now assume tasks once performed exclusively by architects.

There may be structural issues which demand some form of professional advice; however, the important matter seems to be the owner's wish to create an exterior place together, perhaps, with a more inspiring entry to his house. If presented with this problem, an architect may attempt to discover not only ramifications of the owner's functional wishes, but also desires he may not have expressed.

For example, we might ask: how extensive is the rot? Does it warrant demolishing the entire porch and perhaps impairing the facade? What are the sun and weather implications for currently protected walls and windows within the porch? Might the owner's funds be better spent by building the deck in a more favorably oriented location? Is the deck important at all, or is the owner's unexpressed desire for a new entry the real issue?

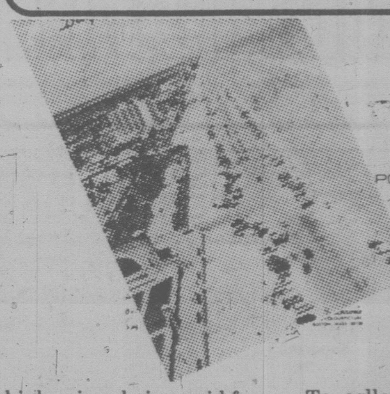
If screens and trellises are to be added, can they satisfy both the owner's wish for privacy and the local building code?

Through such analysis, the client becomes the prime benefactor of discoveries inspired by and guided by his architect, emerging from his own personality and his own situation. Richard Hunter is a member of the Vancouver Island Chapter of Architects.

If you have a question you'd like answered by an architect, send it in to the Homes Today Editor, Victoria Press, 2621 Douglas Street, V8W 2N4. Watch for the reply in this column in future issues.

Old ledgers and post cards tell us interesting facts

COLLECTIBLES



By JOHN HEARN

Margaret Fear of Ridgeville, Ontario offers a new idea in collectibles which sounds very worthwhile.

"My interest in old ledgers," she says, "began some time ago when I bought one at a local auction. It came from the Port Colborne area where the first business transaction was Jan. 2, 1792. Inside the cover is written in German a note to the effect that 'I made myself this business in 1791.'

The script is difficult to read but later on we find the beginnings of some entries in English and eventually it is entirely in English. This man was apparently a farrier, blacksmith, woodworker, money lender and shipper.

The last entries are dated 1811, 1813, etc. In between, in the ledger, people have practised caligraphy, written in musical scores, poetry and scraps of philosophy. Names mentioned, with variations in spelling, are still to be found in the local telephone directory.

Mrs. Fear adds, "By rights, of course, it should go to the local historical society but meanwhile I'm having too much fun with it."

Very understandable and presumably, by now, the ledger has been made available to the local historical society for whom such a record might well be invaluable. What you have here is a twenty-year slice of some of the earliest history of the region. Names appearing for the first time may shed light on when that family first arrived in the district. The pattern of their purchases may reveal when they built their first home or extended it, how and when they acquired their horses and how many. Precise jobs done, goods ordered, money borrowed, credit extended are all critical pieces of evidence from which the early life of a community can be traced.

I remember a few years ago rummaging through a box of old papers which I had picked up at a sale and finding a private diary written between 1940 and 1965 in a series of what we used to call 10¢ note books (they are now 50¢). For twenty-five years the writer methodically recorded her purchases (cabbage, 19¢), the visitors who came, the cakes she baked, births of grandchildren, deaths of relatives. Only once in all those years did the outside world intrude — "Nov. 22, 1963: President Kennedy shot in Dallas. Terrible tragedy." That's all. You sit and look at it in a kind of awe. You are holding twenty-five years of someone's life in the palm of your hand. The question 'what's it worth?' is marvellously irrelevant.

In a similar vein the collecting of old postcards is becoming a fine hobby. I will anticipate some of the letters by saying that old postcards of England and other European countries are of great interest to people who live there but in Canada the emphasis is almost entirely on Canadian urban scenes. The golden years were 1900-1914 although cards up to 1939 are very collectible and are likely to become ever more so.

I have yet to hear of high prices being paid for postcards — 50¢ to $2.00 appears to be the range but sooner or later those prices will go right through the roof. You are talking about a finite number of cards — a diminishing number of cards as fire and damage and loss take their toll.

You are talking about a unique and irreplaceable slice of Canadian history and you are talking about something which takes up very little room and offers unlimited challenge.

To collect all the possible postcards for a single Canadian city is a formidable task while the possibile number for a whole province must run into thousands.

We are in desperate need of a well-researched collector's book on the subject — something like the Hogan's 'Country Store Collectibles Book' — and also a Canadian Postcard Collectors Association.

If anyone's working on it, let me know.

HOME AND GARDEN

What to do for plants if you've a water softener

In most cases water passing through a softener does have a harmful effect on plant growth. Softeners exchange the calcium (harmless) for sodium (harmful).

Sodium is harmful because it tends to puddle a soil (make it sticky) and sodium can be toxic to plants that are sensitive. However, if you have a water softener, don't worry because there's a simple trick to eliminate the sodium hazard.

Since the softener takes calcium out, why not add calcium to the water to restore that which was present before softening removed it?

This simply nullifies the effect of the sodium added in the softening process. Here's all you do: Go to your garden centre or farm store and buy some gypsum (calcium sulfate), a very cheap and harmless form of calcium. It has low solubility yet can be dissolved to treat softened water.

One-half level teaspoon is added to a gallon of softened water or a tablespoon per six gallons of water is enough to supply the necessary calcium to change the softened water back to the "unsoftened" water.

This simple little trick will (or should) settle the controversy over water softeners. You can draw enough water off for your house plants and add gypsum to it, thus eliminating any risks.

The cost is so little and gypsum is such a harmless source of calcium that many home gardeners use it on their gardens to help loosen up a claylike soil.

Modern Spanish home built for a family with six kids

It's got 7 toilets, 13 sinks all told, and 2 dining rooms

by
ANNE SWANNELL

Shannon Place is a cul de sac off Queenswood in Gordon Head. Right at the end of it is a huge white house with a red tile roof and wrought iron balconies set into tall arches that reflect the Moorish influence in Mediterranean design.

The house was planned by its owners, Elaine and Dominic Hanley, five years ago, based on a design they had seen for a house in California. "Of course, we had to adapt it to suit our particular style of living" says Elaine, "and we had a lot of help from Adrian Greenbank, a Victoria designer." A contractor was hired to oversee the project, and the house was ready to move into within the year.

Even with six children and two adults, there's no crowding here! No sharing bedrooms - they each have their own, and no fighting over the bathrooms, because there are seven of them. You've seen plumbing stores with fewer sinks! There are tenbathroom sinks (some bathrooms have two, you see), and even a special separate sink for washing hair. Then of course, there are two sinks in the kitchen, and one in the downstairs bar..

There is a formal dining room for guests and large family get-togethers, as well as a gazebo off the kitchen which seats eight at its octagonal table. With its windows on all sides and Italian terrazzo tiles, its a lovely airy room for breakfasts and informal family meals. "We sort of regret the gazebo idea now, because its pointed roof traps the sound that a big family makes when they all talk at once, and it's very noisy" Elaine says. "Although the octagonal table which was specially built for the room, was a good idea because, when the kids were younger, there was no argueing about touching elbows, because each had her own "side" of the table.

The cheerful kitchen features hand-adzed cabinets, which were done by Cowichan Joinery, who were also responsible for making the curved window frames in the house. The natural wood cabinets are oiled every three years or so, are virtually kid-proof, because they're so rugged. A microwave, a regular oven, and a grill are all necessary, Elaine says, because cooking pancakes for eight people in a frying pan is just too slow.

The stained glass windows throughout the house were done by Victoria's George Bailey. They light the hall, the upstairs den, and the basement bar, which has been made to look like a room tucked away in a fourteenth century English pub with dark beams and low ceilings, its cosy, rough-hewn appearance. The Hanleys have used pottery drainage tiles, stacked on top of one another along the walls to hold wine bottles.

Upstairs, is a central hall as big as the average living room overlooking the entry hall below. The six bedrooms off it are really three large bedrooms, each with a partition down the middle. These can easily be removed when the children leave home and fewer, larger bedrooms are required.

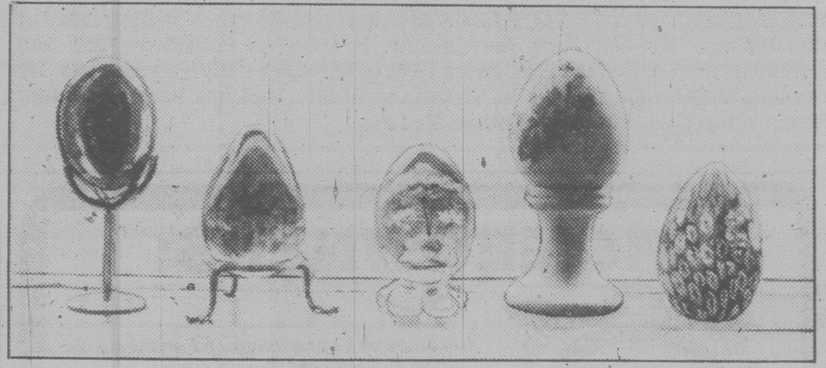
. If they were building the house again, they would not have open beams between family room and games room, so that there would be less noise filtering down.

Asked whether there was anything else they would change about the house now that they've lived in it, Elaine laughed and said that they had had to change one thing right off the bat. They had forgotten to include a place for an ironing board in the plan. They had built a house with seven bathrooms and thirteen sinks, but nowhere to iron clothes, so walls were promptly torn apart, and an ironing board was built in.

The house is on 1.89 acres, about half a block from the water, though the great number of trees prevents any ocean view. The building to the left in the photograph of the exterior is a separate guest house, containing a bedroom, bathroom, kitchenette, and living room for out-of-town-guests.

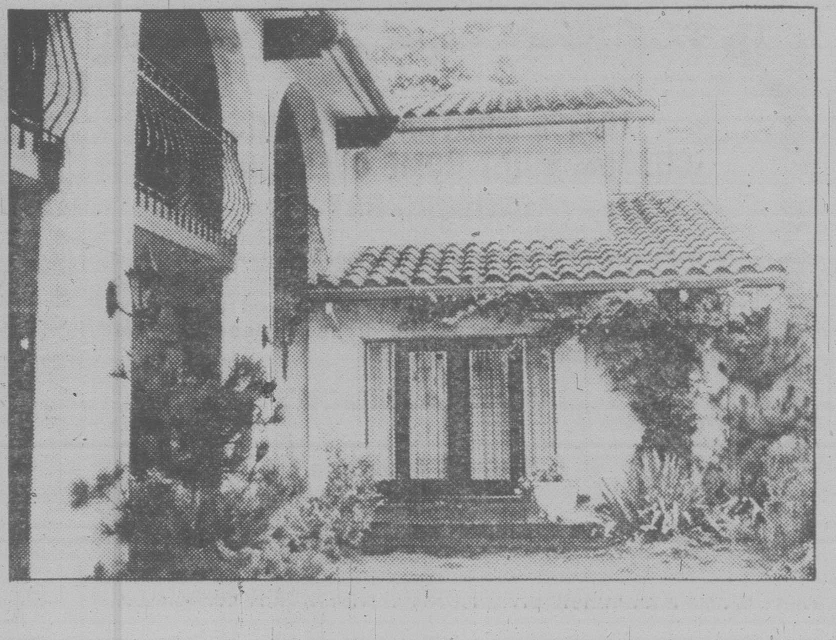
There is a also hobby room and yet another bathroom (for a total on the property of nine), Elaine says she uses the hobby room for her never-finished projects: there is a kiln, paints, and other interests she has taken up over the years.

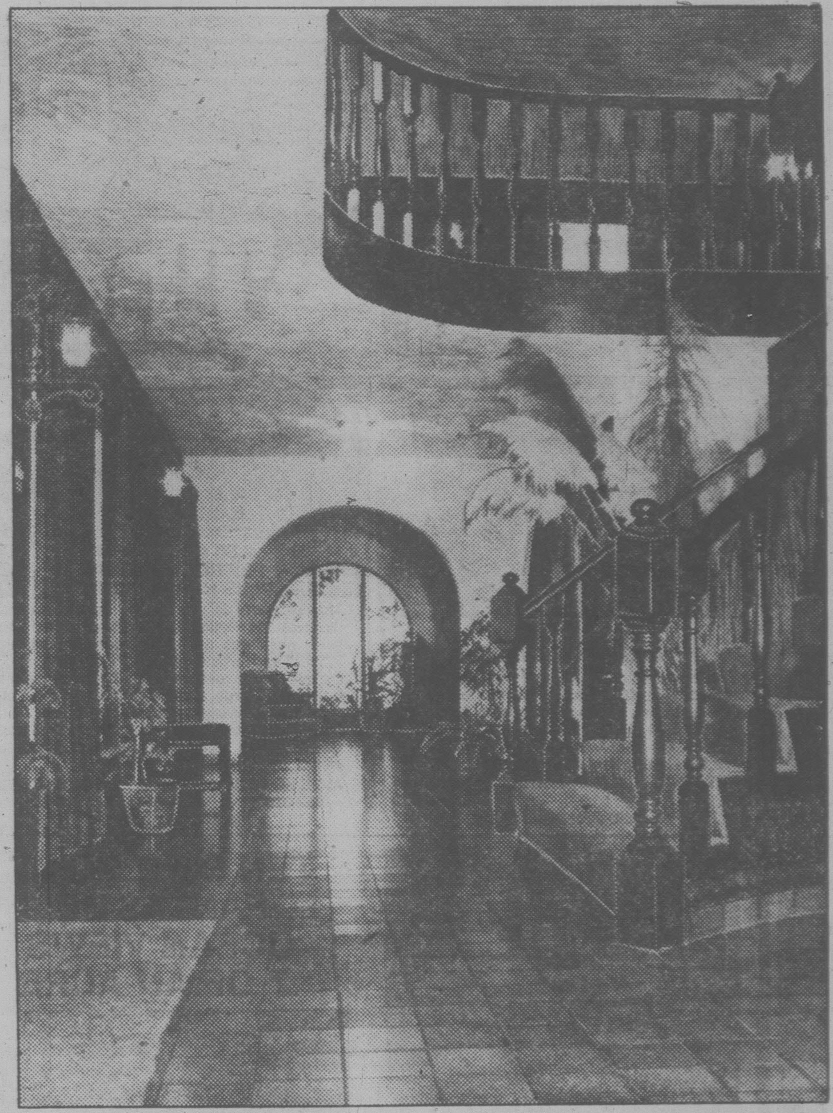
Elaine is presently involved in growing orchids, which she has in profusion in her greenhouse up on the rocks.



IN THE LIVING ROOM is a fascinating array of glass, china, papier mache, leather,and onyx eggs; a collection Elaine adds to each time they go on holiday. Pictured above are just five. There are eggs by Royal Doulton, millefiore eggs; eggs on tiny brass stands, and eggs that are like "worry rocks" which you work back and forth in the palm of your hand.

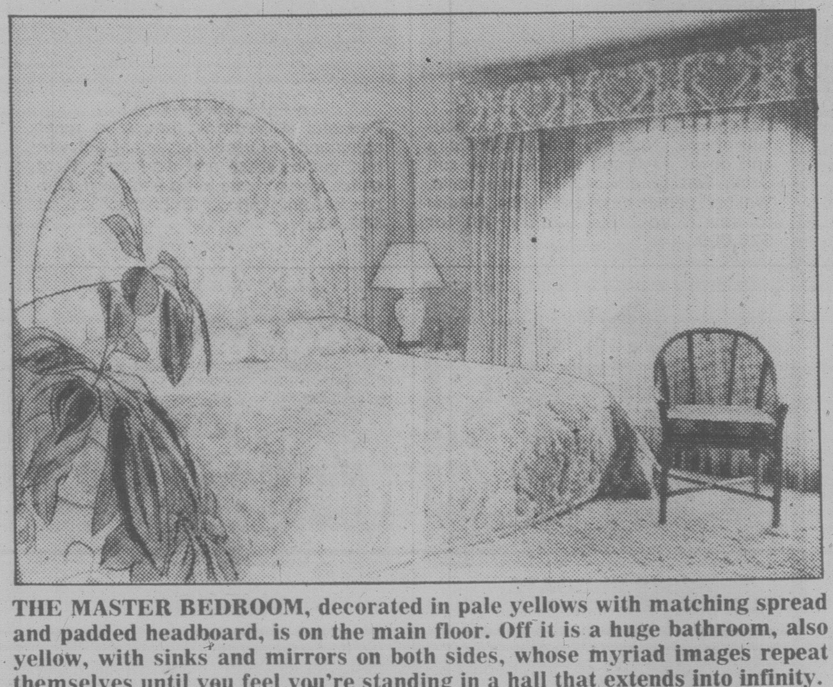
BELOW: FRENCH DOORS OFF MASTER BEDROOM. Real Spanish roof tiles were trucked from California, are each about two feet across. A man came with them to lay them in the proper fashion.



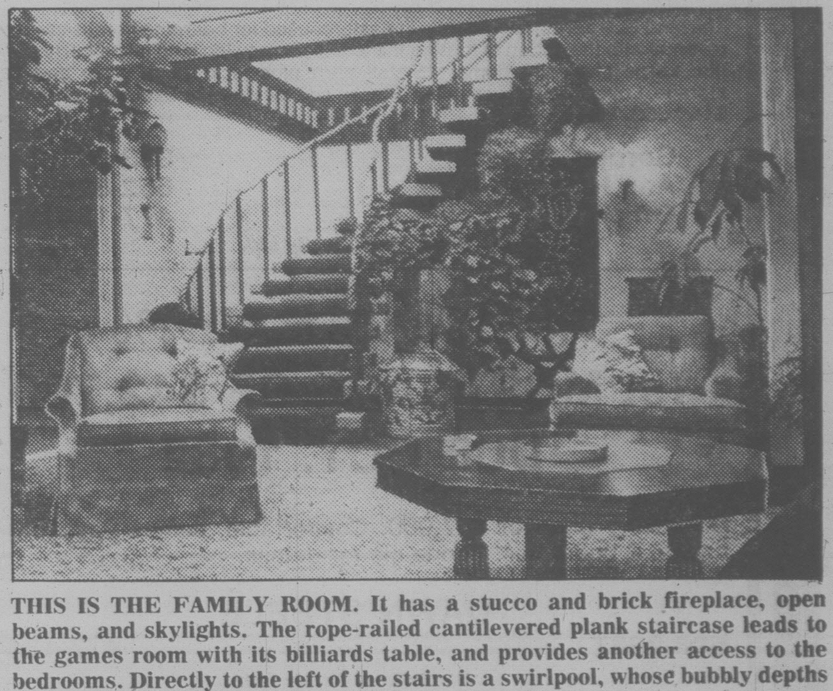


FRONT ENTRY features double staircase to second floor, Italian terracotta tile floor. Stained glass window is between living room and formal dining room. Family room is at this end of the hall.

People rarely build houses like this today! This one's only five years old. Its imposing entry, its sheer capaciousness are reminiscent of the large family homes built in the Victorian era.



THE MASTER BEDROOM, decorated in pale yellows with matching spread and padded headboard, is on the main floor. Off it is a huge bathroom, also yellow, with sinks and mirrors on both sides, whose myriad images repeat themselves until you feel you're standing in a hall that extends into infinity. There is also a mammoth dressing room, with his and hers closets.



THIS IS THE FAMILY ROOM. It has a stucco and brick fireplace, open beams, and skylights. The rope-railed cantilevered plank staircase leads to the games room with its billiards table, and provides another access to the bedrooms. Directly to the left of the stairs is a swirlpool, whose bubbly depths invite anyone who glimpses it to jump in and relax.

INTERIOR DESIGN

Accessories make a room traditional or contemporary in style

Even without changing the furniture at all, the entire feeling of a room can be altered by the use of color, texture, and pattern in accessories, or by choosing accent pieces that are of a particular period or mood.

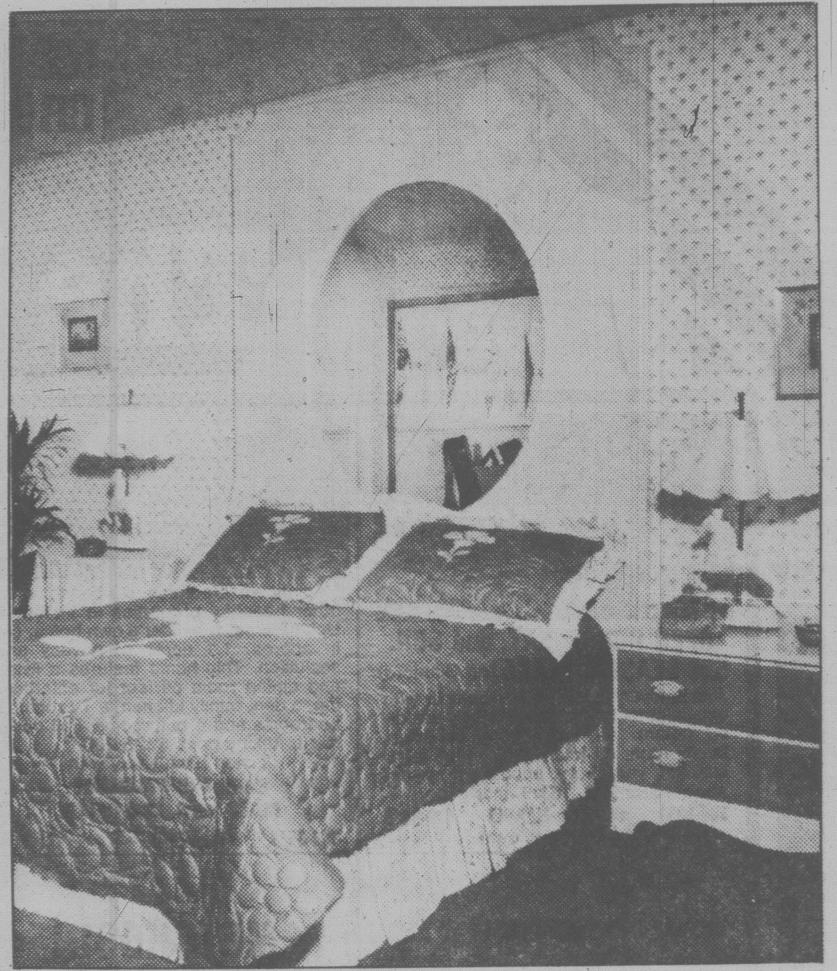
The first impression one gets on entering a room is of the total, overall look. Sometimes it is the major furniture pieces of which one is instantly aware, but often the backgrounds and accessories create the overall atmosphere.

For instance, a room carpeted in off-white, with oatmeal-coloured upholstered pieces, is going to look quite different with white velvet cushions and chrome and glass furniture than will the same room accented with, say, turquoise slub silk cushions and a woven rattan coffee table.

In the bedroom seen here, by decorator Laura Merlo, the design could have gone either contemporary or traditional because the major pieces are not aggressively one style or another. The bed, a mattress and box springs on legs is neither, the round table generally would be more contemporary than traditional, and the bedside chest has the straight, simple lines of today's designs except for the scroll bottom trim. The backgrounds and the accessories stamp this room as traditional.

Giving the most impact is the wall behind the bed. The 1''x8'' tongue and groove panel, edged with picture molding, is reminiscent of the siding in older houses.

The unusual touch, the oval mirror centred in the panel-ling, reminds one of picture and mirror shapes typical of an earlier period. This becomes an architectural detail, however, because the mirror is inset rather than superimposed.



ALL A ROOM NEEDS to make it interesting and innovative is one strong idea that dominates the room, such as this wood panel that functions as a headboard, with the oval mirror as an inset.

Builder believes houses should be underground

WINNIPEG (UPC) — When Gary Davis builds a house, he uses a construction medium that will heat, cool, noise-proof and dust-proof the structure — and save about 10 percent on construction costs.

The revolutionary material: Mother earth!

Davis has blueprints for 10 homes, all built with three sides into a hillside — manmade or natural — and at least two feet of earth on the roof.

Dark and gloomy? On the contrary, says his wife Paula, since the south wall is left uncovered to take advantage of sunshine and the blueprints include "bright and cheery" lighting around the clock.

Stuffy? Fans installed in the homes can totally replace the air circulating in the house within 15 minutes. The homes remain dust-free, too.

Security is another advantage: the Davis' expereience is that, because access is restricted to one side of the house, opportunities for thieves are limited and theft insurance costs about 35 percent less than in conventional housing.

The Davis' five-bedroom, 4,000-square-foot home in Granite City, Ill., is all underground, with a heated swimming pool in the centre. Annual heating and cooling costs — about $300, or about half the conventional homeowners' bill.

Davis' company, U-Bahn Earth-Homes Ltd., has sold about 300 homes since its inception in the early 1970s, and about twice as many blueprints.

The company is just setting up in Canada and so far no one has bought an underground home here, although Mrs. Davis thinks the concept is a natural for this country.

"Canadians are more adjusted to underground living than we are in the States," Mrs. Davis said in an interview. "People in Winnipeg shop every day in indoor or underground shopping centers, so we don't see why you wouldn't become easily accustomed to living underground."

Although the firm hasn't constructed any dwelling houses in Canada yet, an underground school opened this fall in Brandon, 200 kilometers west of Winnipeg.

"It's so bright that I just don't think about it being underground," said Diana Cruise, a teacher at Riverheights School.

HOME & GARDEN

Pre-fab fireplaces re-use air, cut fuel costs

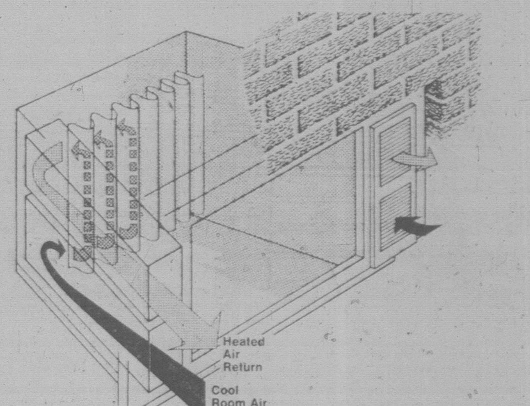
The revolutionary fireplaces that help heat the home are called "energy-saving" fireplaces. They are designed to put significantly more heated air into the home than they take from the home.

In the past, homeowners were told that conventional masonry wood-burning fireplaces lose more heat than they produce.

That means a reduction in the amount of conventional heating fuel needed while an average-size fire is burning.

Screens should always be closed for safety while a fire is burning, but glass doors should be left open in order to benefit from the full radiant heat of the fire.

Only when a fire fades to embers should glass doors be shut to prevent room air from going up the chimney through the open flue.



SHOWN HERE is the flow of room air around an "energy-saving" fireplace. Cool room air is warmed by the fire and returned to the room to provide supplemental home heat.

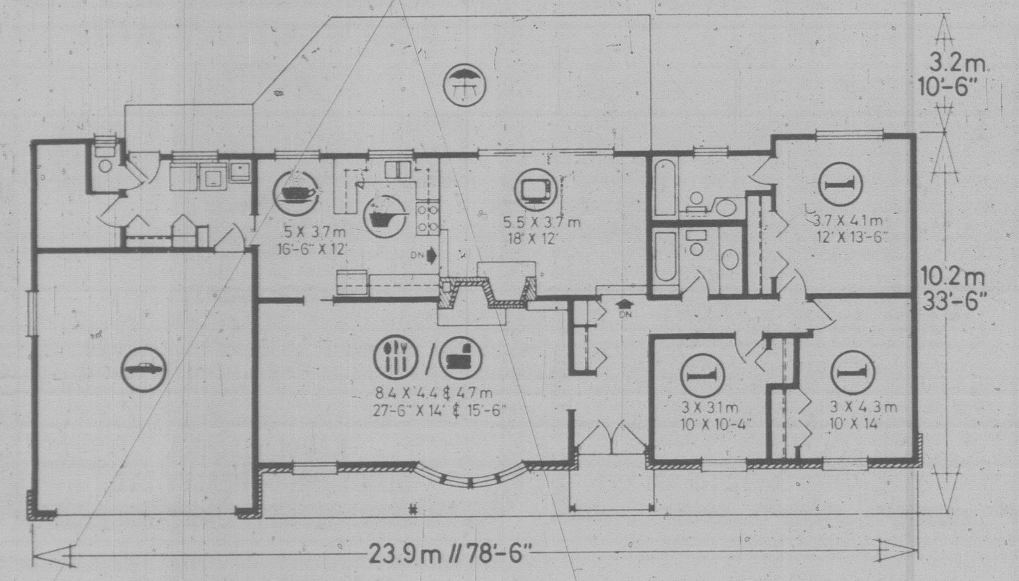
Ranch-style bungalow has low, wide profile

PLAN OF THE WEEK



This impressive ranch-style, non-basement bungalow is perfectly suited to the wide frontage residential building lot and is ideally suited to the medium-size family. The rambling exterior creates a sense of a spaciousness which is carried forward by the feeling of openness and dimension of the interior.

The brick veneer and chimney, horizontal channel siding and shutter-accented windows of the exterior lend an air of permanence and solidity to the design, which is in keeping with its country origins.

The loggia-sheltered entry leads into a reception foyer and closet storage area, whence either left to the large living-dining room combination, or straight ahead to the sunken family room.

The living room features a charming bow window and a double-sided, cantilevered-hearth masonry fireplace. The dining room divides from the dinette via convenient pocket door.

A well-"planned U-shape kitchen-dinette combination has an excellent work triangle configuration, ample countertop work surfaces and generous cupboard storage.

The dinette vides pocket door access to the laundry-utility areas, one-piece vanity bath and generous indoor storage area. This latter area could be developed as a mud room if access from the garage were provided at the construction stage.

The large family room-lounge area is sunken two risers from the kitchen and entrance hall. It contains the second side of the cantilevered fireplace, and sliding glass doors to the large rear patio.

All three bedrooms are positioned around the central bath and linen storage area, well away from the main entertaining area for freedon from disturbance.

Each has generous closet storage and excellent exposure for natural light. The large master has a three-piece ensuite with tub.

A double enclosed garage, with space for the establishment of a work bench for the home handyman, completes the convenience features of this outstanding home design.

Plans for design No. 74-1826 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $85.00 for the first set and $14.00 for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $120.00 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $150.00.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 5% sales tax.

Moving furniture ? Here's a tip:

Make a floor plan and use cutouts to represent furniture in making your arrangements; you'll save a lot of time and energy if you figure it all out on paper first.

The public doesn't always know what it's really looking for

A REALTOR SPEAKS

"Often people haven't the vaguest idea what they really want when they begin to search for a house" says Jamie MacGregor, manager of Canada Trust Realty on Oak Bay Avenue.

McGregor tells of one instance where he had someone drop into his office and tell him that she wanted to buy a waterfront home with six bedrooms, a tennis court, and maid's quarters. And she preferred stone construction. Very specific. She was willing to spend up to $150,000. He set to work right away.

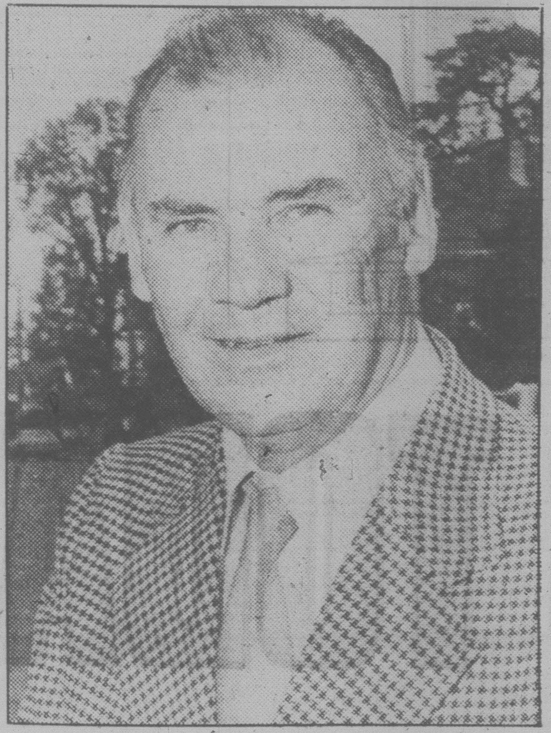
Having no listing of this precise nature, he parked his car near the Oak Bay Golf Course, and set out on foot to see what he could find that would answer the woman's requirements.

He passed several houses that seemed suitable in most ways, but either there was no tennis court and no space for one, or there were no maid's quarters, or it was wood and stucco rather than stone. But at last, after several blocks and increasingly sore feet, he saw what he thought would be perfect for his client.

He knocked on the door and asked if, by any chance at all, the owners had considered putting their home on the market. "Well, how did you know ?" the amazed occupant asked. "We just decided last night!"

It was arranged that in a few days' time, he would bring his clients to see the home. He raced back to the office, called the woman, and told her what he'd found. They set up an appointment for three days hence. She called back later to say they couldn't make it. Another appointment was arranged - with both parties. A third was set up because the second couldn't be kept.

And then she told him. She wouldn't be going at all as she had just bought a house. All the while MacGregor was working to find exactly what she wanted, according to her description, she also had another realtor working for her. The house she bought by the way, was a three bedroom farmhouse several miles from the ocean.



Jamie MacGregor

"If realtors are doing their jobs properly, they will make it their business to find out exactly what the prospective buyers' needs are before they begin the big search" adds MacGregor. That is one of the reasons, he strongly emphasizes, that people who are about to buy a home should select a realtor very carefully.

People often begin looking for a new home by perusing the newspapers, finding something that looks interesting, then phoning the realtor whose name appears underneath the description or the photograph of the house

Before a realtor shows the home, if he's doing a good job for the vendor whose listing it is, he tries to ascertain whether the person phoning is serious or just wants a free look.

He should ask a few questions to ascertain whether, for instance, the house is within the price range of the person enquiring about it, check out whether it is in the location he/she had in mind, whether it will be suitable size-wise, etc. A realtor does this to avoid wasting time - the vendor's, the prospective buyer's, and the realtor's own.

"If you are the person who's doing the phoning, this can mean divulging personal information about your finances, for example, to every realtor you call - some of whom you may never have heard of before," adds MacGregor. This is one of the reasons realtors feel that you, as a house-hunter are much further ahead to get one realtor working for you, instead of dealing with several realtors who are employed initially by the vendor.

"In order to get to know what clients really want in a house, you have to get to know them a bit." says MacGregor. And the best way to do that, he feels, is to spend half an hour or so in the client's present home. He was once doing just that, and noticed that the coffee table in front of him was hand-carved.

He asked who made it, and found out that the owner's hobby was woodworking. "I could have shown him houses all week, and none of them would have been any good for that man. He hadn't mentioned that he needed a workshop area, and if I hadn't seen that coffee table, I'd have never known it either".

By not jumping around from realtor to realtor, and by sticking to one who knows your needs, you often get service beyond the level of what you might reasonably expect. For example, there was the swimming pool incident.

A man whom we shall call Mr. Oxford once asked MacGregor to find a home for him and his family. He had a very beautiful daughter. She was, it seems, also very musical, and so the new house was to have a basement room with a ceiling high enough to accomodate the pipe organ that she loved to play.

This was no big problem for the realtor, and several houses were found which filled the bill. But for some reason, none of them seemed to suit Mr. Oxford. He couldn't explain why none of them was quite right; he just felt it in his bones.

So our intrepid realtor racked his brain, and thought to himself that there must be something that he didn't know about; some ingredient that he hadn't been aware of. So he went to see Mr. Oxford at his home.

They got chatting over coffee, and MacGregor asked about his daughter. It turned out that as well as playing the organ, she liked to swim. Where ? She walked up town to the YM/YW and back three times a week.

The next day, MacGregor called Mr. Oxford, because, as he said, he had found the perfect house. It was, and Mr. Oxford was anxious to make an offer on it the minute he saw it.

The house had a swimming pool in the back yard. The key to finding the right house was that Mr. Oxford was worried about his daughter walking back and forth to town, and figured that with a swimming pool in her own back yard, she would do that a lot less often. Mr. Oxford hadn't realized himself where his real concerns lay, and so couldn't communicate them to the realtor. As McGregor points out, a realtor who wasn't working hard for the prospective purchaserwould never have touched on the real problem.

Cement blocks in basement leaking ? Grimy cabinets ?

By GEORGE DALGLEISH

Q. I have problems with the mortar between the cement blocks in my basement coming out and in the wintertime water comes through. What can I do to repair it?

A. The first step is to clean out any loose mortar with a hammer and chisel and clean the crack with a whisk broom or a vacuum cleaner. If the crack is less than ½'' wide, chip out the mortar so that it is at least ½'' wide by about ¾'' deep. Then use a product called hydraulic cement available under various brand names in this area and following the instructions, insert the hudraulic cement into the crack. Make sure that you are able to work quite fast with the cement as it sets in a matter of minutes. The hydraulic cement actually shrinks when it is moist, but expands as it dries, making a positive seal. It is important that the crack be chiselled out with square edges and not v'd. The crack should be dampened with water before the hydraulic cement is inserted.

Q. I have a build-up of grease and grime on my kitchen cabinets. I have tried numerous furniture polishes and this seems to add to the build-up rather than eliminate it. My cabinets are finished with liquid plastic. How can I clean them?

A. One of the best and most economical overall cleaners for cabinets, furniture or kitchen appliances is a solution of trisodium phosphate (TSP) and water. For general cleaning use two teaspoons of trisodium phosphate to one quart of warm water. For more stubborn build-ups use a slightly stronger solution, adding an extra teaspoon to a quart. TSP is available at most building supply stores and in drug stores. After you have washed your cabinets, furniture or appliances, they should be rinsed with a cloth dipped in clear water to remove the TSP residue.

Q. I want to install a rubber backed carpet on my basement floor. Some people tell me that the rubber will rot especially if it gets damp. Do I need a wood sub-floor in order to install the carpet successfully?

A. If you get a rubber backed carpet that is guaranteed by the manufacturer not to mildew, must, rot or smell when applied to concrete below grade with an approved adhesive, then you won't have any problems. If the carpet is not guaranteed by the manufacturer then you could have problems. Remember that the salesman and the manufacturer may have two different stories so make sure that you get it straight from the manufacturer, preferably in writing. If the salesman is sure that the manufacturer will guarantee it, he will quite likely have a copy of that written guarantee on file or available to you. I would suggest that you install this approved carpet directly to the concrete without the use of a wood sub-floor. A wood sub-floor can be expensive, difficult to install and can cause more problems that it will solve. Make sure that you use an adhesive that is recommended by the manufacturer and make sure that the carpet is glued down in its entirely. Do not loose lay rubber back carpet on a basement floor.

Comedy team back on radio

For CBC-TV superstars Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, it was like coming home. There they were in CBC Toronto's Studio G standing in front of a mike, recording their first radio show in nearly 25 years.

Moreover, it was a drama for CBC Radio's new series, Soundstage. And they were loving every minute of it.

Wayne and Shuster have been associated with CBC-TV variety specials for so long that it may have been forgotten that they got their first exposure on radio.

They had their own radio show in 1941 on Toronto's CFRB when they were billed as the "kings of Canadian comedy." They were soon snapped up by the CBC for a network show.

In 1954, they gave TV a try. A year later, they made a fulltime switch to the fledgling medium. And, as they say, never looked back.

Though he's scarcely old enough to have heard them in person, CBC Calgary producer Bill Gray hadn't forgotten their radio days. Gray was in possession of a script by David Mamet, Duck Variations, that cried out for two actors who knew each other well, had excellent timing and a feel for vaudeville type delivery.

So, in a history-making appearance on radio, spouting words other than their own, Wayne and Shuster will star on CBC Radio's Soundstage, Sunday, Nov. 4 at 1:05 p.m.

Duck Variations has two elderly gentlemen sitting on a park bench in front of a lake, speculating endlessly and often comically on the mysteries of life. Though it has been staged in the States and in London (both England and Ontario), it's a work ideally suited to radio because there is little action and much talk.

It's as if the play was tailor-made for Wayne and Shuster. The often repetitious dialogue rolls off their tongues like, well, water off a duck's back.

AT ETERNITY — We seem to be waiting an eternity for the premier of "From Here to Eternity." I have been anxiously awaiting its debut since I saw the mini-series last year. Can you please tell me what happened? — Mrs. Cynthia Marans, Kansas City, Mo.

Early-season shuffling is what happened to it. "From Here to Eternity" was originally scheduled for a late October debut, which is already considerably behind the rest of the season's premiers. But the latest word from NBC is that they plan to fill that Wednesday night slot with re-runs of "Saturday Night Live." "From Here to Eternity" will be on reserve duty, ready to be called into action as soon as another hour-long series falls in battle.

YOURS, MINE, OURS — I know that Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood were married to one another twice. Can you tell me how many children they have? — L. S. Kaufman, Asbury Park, N.J.

They had no children during their first go-round, each had one daughter by their second marriages and the two have one daughter by their latest attempt at wedded bliss. That makes three combined children. Wagner's daughter, Kate, lives with her mother for the most part, though.

Surprised!

If you're an advertiser we hope not, at least not unpleasantly when you find yourself involved in the game of ''numbers.''

Numbers in the advertising business refer to your audience, whether it be listeners, viewers, readers, subscribers or just plain purchasers of a product containing advertising messages. Of these only the last two can be documented. All other numbers in the advertising game are the results of surveys, estimates, or the publishers stated press run.

In most daily newspapers (the Times and Colonist among them) our numbers are the papers we sell and those figures are audited by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. They don't accept the papers we use ourselves in the plant, papers supplied to advertisers as checking copies, papers distributed for promotional purposes or papers printed and unsold. They just count those our customers buy!

You won't be surprised when you select The Victoria Times and the Daily Colonist as your advertising medium. Our representatives can quote our net paid circulation at any time.
